2d Division Rushed To Battle Positions; Situation 'Serious'; U. S. Equipment Lost

BULLETIN

U. S. EIGHTH HEADQUARTERS IN KOREA, Nov. 3 (AP).—The United States 24th Division has withdrawn as much as 50 miles from the Yalu River frontier because of enemy pressure on its eastern flank.

ON THE NORTHEAST KOREAN FRONT, Friday, Nov. 3 (AP).—A Tenth Corps spokesman said the United States Marines started a general attack today toward the Chinese-Communist defended Changjin reservoir.

A briefing officer said there were no reports from the attack, which jumped off from Sudong, 20 miles south of the big hydroelectric complex.

Three Chinese Communists were captured by Marine patrols in the area yesterday, the briefing officer said. This indicates the Chinese are opposing the attacking Marines.

SEOUL (Friday), Nov. 3 (AP). Furious Chinese Communist and North Korean blows hurled back United States and South Korean troops in northwest Korea and air spotters reported new ominous enemy movements behind the flaming lines.

The United States Second Division was rushed into battle positions behind the United States First Cavalry and Twenty-fourth Divisions and four South Korean divisions which were forced on the defensive. About 1000 men from the United States First Cavalry were trapped.

A field dispatch said the fighting was increasing in fury on this front near Unsan, which is about 65 miles north of the fallen Red Korean capital of Pyongyang.

The savage attack on its east flank forced the United States Twenty-fourth Division to pull back after it had punched to within 15 miles of the Yalu River between Manchuria and Korea.

The Second moved into line south of the Chongchon River. Unsan is about 15 miles north of the river at its closest point.

Air observers reported "considerable enemy movement in the Yalu River area toward Korea." This was believed to mean activity in Chinese Communist Manchuria, which is separated from Korea in the northwest by the Yalu.

Arrival of the Second Division—not previously reported in northwest Korea—came as the United Nations position was described officially as "very serious" by United States Eighth Army headquarters. A First Corps spokesman said it was "not so good as it could be and not as good as we would like it."

D. C. Gains 23.9 Percent

Official Census Gives Virginia, Maryland Extra Seat in House

(State-by-State Table on Page 18)

Maryland and Virginia stand to gain one seat each in the House of Representatives at the next reapportionment, according to official population totals released yesterday.

The 1950 census lists the District of Columbia population at 802,178, a 23.9 percent increase over the 1940 census of 663,091.

The District's gain, however, doesn't change its representation in the House — still 0 for the voteless territory.

Total population of the United States was set at 150,697,361, or 19,028,086 more persons than in 1940.

Maryland's new official population was given as 2,343,001, a 28.6 percent increase over its 1940 count of 1,821,244. Virginia's population is now 3,318,680, a 23.9 percent increase over the 1940 figure of 2,677,773.

The President is expected to send the totals to Congress during the first week of its 1951 session, in January. The House will then have 15 days to decide whether to increase its membership, set at 435 in 1910, or adjust to the population changes by taking seats from some States and giving them to others.

Twenty-eight seats in the House would be affected, with extra seats going to seven States and nine other States losing seats.

States scheduled to win extra seats in the House include California, seven; Florida, two, and one each for Maryland, Michigan, Texas, Virginia and Washington.

States due to lose seats include Pennsylvania, three; Missouri, New York and Oklahoma, two each, and one each for Arkansas, Illinois, Kentucky, Mississippi and Tennessee.

The present formula of equal proportions provides one representative for about every 301,000 persons. With the House sticking to its present limitation, the ratio would be one for every 345,000 persons under the 1950 count.

Guided Missile Ships in Fleet Near at Hand, Navy Reports

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Navy said yesterday that a major new development in sea power—the actual introduction of guided missile warships to the Fleet—is close at hand.

Research has advanced to the point, Secretary Francis Matthews announced, that limited production of one type of guided missile is starting and conversion of a combatant ship to fire them is planned.

This was the first official announcement that guided missiles, on which a huge share of American military research funds has been concentrated, has moved out of the experimental stage into actual production.

"Their introduction as standard equipment will extend and greatly strengthen the Navy as a major arm of the Nation's fighting forces," Matthews said in a semi-annual report.

The vessel to be converted for firing guided missiles is said to be a 13,700-ton cruiser. It would employ them as its primary anti-aircraft weapon. Experimental firing of the missiles from ships at sea has been underway for some time.

The Navy disclosure came as Defense Secretary George C. Marshall named Maj. Gen. K. D. Nichols as fulltime deputy to K. T. Keller, recently-appointed director of the armed forces' guided missiles program. Nichols has been head of the armed forces Special Weapons project since April, 1948.

Matthews' report and accompanying ones from Army Secretary Frank Pace, jr., Air Force Secretary Thomas K. Finletter and former Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson were submitted to President Truman more than a month ago and just made public. They cover the period January 1 to July 1, 1950.

Both the Army and Air Force reports also discussed new equipment under development and spoke significantly of plans to use atomic weapons tactically in support of troops in battle. Existing A-weapons are designed for use in strategic bombing against vital enemy targets like manufacturing centers, hydro-electric dams, etc.

Army chiefs previously had disclosed that atomic artillery and other tactical employment of A-weapons was under development, but Finletter gave the first an-

D. C. Aircraft Defense Group To Go to Britain

Remaining Forces Held Reasonably Adequate To Handle Emergencies

The Army disclosed last night it is sending a portion of the antiaircraft defenses of the Nation's Capital to protect American strategic bomber bases in Great Britain.

An announcement said that four ack-ack units—three battalions and a headquarters company—will be moved to England in "the early winter." Two of the battalions will come from Fort George G. Meade, Md.

A spokesman told The Washington Post that there are no plans to replace the forces being withdrawn from Meade—where the antiaircraft units for the protection of Washington largely are concentrated—as it is felt that the "remaining forces in this area are reasonably adequate."

The battalions at Meade alerted for overseas duty are the 4th AAA and 39th AAA—both equipped with 40-millimeter guns. Each unit has close to 500 officers and men, it was said. In addition, the 60th AAA Battalion from Ft. Scott in San Francisco, and the Heaquarters and Headquarters Battery, 16th AAA Group, from Ft. Bliss, Tex. will be transferred to Britain.

The Air Force uses about five former Royal Air Force bases for operation of B-29 bomber and jet fighter groups and servicing of aircraft.

All three of the battalions going to England have 40-millimeter weapons, designed for close protection against low-flying aircraft.

Antiaircraft units remaining at Fort Meade and available for protection of Washington in an emergency are two—a 120-millimeter and a 90-millimeter gun battalion.

Judges Back Alexandria Annexation

Fairfax Loses By Tentative Verdict; More Arguments On Finances Set

By William H. Smith
Post Reporter

A three-judge court yesterday handed down a tentative verdict in favor of Alexandria in its annexation suit against Fairfax County.

Speaking for the special tribunal, of which he is a member, Judge Paul E. Brown of Fairfax said it was of the "unanimous opinion" that the annexation should be allowed. Judge Brown said, however, the decision carried some reservations and he said the court felt "some modification" should be reached in a final settlement.

He stressed the fact that the court's decision was not final and that the jurists could change their minds in the event a satisfactory financial settlement is not reached by litigants.

Final arguments are scheduled for 10 a. m. Thursday in Fairfax Circuit Court.

While inclined to award the disputed territory to Alexandria, Judge Brown said, the court is still open to arguments by attorneys for both sides as to what financial solution should be reached. Another "modification" favored by the court is a revision of the boundaries of the annexation zone to permit Fairfax County to retain the Lincolnia school.

In the annexation map outlined by Alexandria, the school property is split by one of the proposed boundary lines.

The financial solution urged by the three-judge tribunal centers on Alexandria's assertion that it does not believe it should assume any share of county debts of $10,500,000 for proposed school construction and $980,000 for a courthouse addition.

Fairfax contends that under existing annexation laws a municipality awarded property of a neighboring territory must assume its "just and proportionate share" of that territory's existing debt.

Litigants also are at odds on how much of a three-million-dollar bond issue approved for the county's Sanitary District No. 1 as well as a $2,400,000 school debt should be assumed by Alexandria.

The disputed territory is part of the Sanitary District whose residents voted last year to float the sewer bonds.

Before announcing its tentative decision, the court unanimously rejected motions by Fairfax County attorneys to dismiss the case and to strike the evidence offered by Alexandria.

The territory sought by Alexandria comprises about 7⅛ square miles, mostly to the west and partly to the south of the present city limits. Elimination of the Lincolnia school property from the annexable zone would not materially alter the size of the affected area, attorneys for both sides agreed yesterday.

Blair House Gunman Expected to Recover

Truman Sees No Story in Threat to Life

So Unnecessary, He Tells Press; Grieved at Death

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman summed up the attempt on his life yesterday in one sentence: It was all so unnecessary for a thing like that to happen.

He showed up at his regular weekly news conference attired in a blue suit, and jaunty as ever except when he was talking about the policeman who was killed and the two who were wounded in fighting off the assassins. He said he hated that part of it.

To Mr. Truman's surprise, the 192 reporters present broke into applause as he entered the rococo, high-ceilinged conference room in the old State, War and Navy

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

Dear Mrs. Coffelt:

My heartfelt sympathy goes out to you in the tragedy which has taken from you a loved and loving husband. I wish it were in my power to say a word which would even in slight degree diminish or mitigate the sorrow which is yours.

Your devoted husband has made the supreme sacrifice in the discharge of duty. I am deeply sensible of the fact that he died in my defense and in the defense of law and order and the maintenance of the stability of government.

I can but pay humble tribute to his valiant memory and acknowledge a debt beyond any power of mine to discharge. Mrs. Truman and I are thinking of you in this crushing sorrow and pray that the Everlasting Arms will enfold you and that the God of our Fathers in whom all creatures live will comfort and sustain you and yours in this dark hour.

Very sincerely yours,

Harry Truman

Mrs. Leslie Coffelt,

2 Assassins Hoped They Could Set Off Conflict

Survivor of Battle At Blair House Tells How They Planned Attack

By Jean Reiff
and Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporters

Oscar Collazo yesterday confessed his part in the plot to assassinate President Truman on Wednesday, and bragged that he was a "hero" to his countrymen in Puerto Rico.

He told Secret Service agents and police that he considers himself a martyr. Then he gave a detailed account of how he and a companion, Guselio Torresola, when they met in New York City about two weeks ago hatched up the scheme to storm Blair House and shoot the President.

Torresola was killed in the gun battle in front of Blair House Wednesday afternoon. A White House policeman lost his life in the exchange of bullets and two other policemen were wounded.

To the interrogators, who questioned the wounded Collazo through yesterday's early morning hours in his prison room at Emergency Hospital, the Puerto Rican Nationalist talked eagerly about the plot. He refused to make a signed confession.

It was their idea, he said, to kill the President, start a revolution in this country and win independence for Puerto Rico.

Later, however, at a preliminary hearing in which he was charged with first degree murder, Collazo spoke only twice—once to say he wanted counsel and later to refuse to pose for pictures or talk to reporters.

The hearing was held in a strong room at Gallinger Hospital, where the prisoner was transferred at 10:30 a.m. yesterday under heavy guard.

He was charged with the slaying of White House Policeman Leslie Coffelt. United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence ordered him held without bond and continued the case to 10 a.m. on November 21.

Collazo told Secret Service agents and police that he was born in Puerto Rico of a wealthy family, but came to this country with his parents at the age of 2. There were 14 children in the family, he said. Six of them are now dead, as are his parents.

He denied that the plot to kill Mr. Truman originated in Puerto Rico, but insisted it was his and Torresola's own idea.

He repeated again and again that they came to Washington to kill the President and anyone else who got in their way. He said Torresola provided the guns.

The two arrived by train from New York City Tuesday night, and checked in at the Harris Hotel, 17 Massachusetts ave. nw. They entered the hotel separately

13 West Europe Nations Meet At Rome on Single-Army Plan

ROME, Nov. 2 (AP).—Representatives of 13 western European nations met here today to open work on plans for a unified European army, including German troops.

Advisers to the Foreign Ministers of the 13 countries held secret sessions to frame an agenda for the ministers, who will start a three-day conference Friday.

It was understood the conference will focus on whether and how to integrate West German troops into European defense plans if the defense ministers of the North Atlantic Alliance agree to the formation of a unified army.

The issue of including German troops caused a stalemate at the Washington meeting of European defense ministers earlier this week. Winston Churchill proposed a 50-division West European army at last summer's sessions of the European Council's consultative assembly at Strasbourg, where it met British laborite and Scandinavian opposition.

Communist aggression in Korea, however, has spurred modifications and the plan for a united army has won the approval of most of the ministers meeting here. France has objected to a revival of the German army.

A Bonn dispatch today announced the first meeting of the three western generals appointed to plan West Germany's security. Maj. Gen. Wansbrough-Jones of Britain, Maj. Gen. George P. Hays of the United States and Gen. Jean Ganeval of France met with German representatives in a secret session.

Puerto Rico Police Round Up 400 Nationalists, Communists

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Nov. 2 (AP).—Insular police jailed top Nationalist and Communist leaders today and rounded up scores of other revolutionaries as an aftermath of the abortive Puerto Rican uprising and the attempt to assassinate President Truman.

The roll of prisoners mounted to more than 400.

San Juan, the capital of this little United States Territory, was under a virtual state of siege. The city has been tense since the American-hating Nationalists, a small but fanatical group, touched off Monday the revolt that claimed more than 30 lives.

Dragnet Spread

Roads were blocked and a huge dragnet was thrown out in police efforts to track down some 600 Nationalists and 150 Communists, a third of them in the San Juan metropolitan area.

Pedro Albizu Campos, president of the Nationalist Party, who was flushed out of his home with tear gas; Cecil Andrew Iglesias, Communist Party president, and others were quesitoned intensively at police headquarters.

Gov. Luis Munoz Marin announced that charges have been filed against Albizu Campos, but declined to specify their nature.

Governor Munoz Marin cabled President Truman, notifying him of the arrest of the Nationalist Party president, a Harvard-educated man of 63 who was freed from the Federal penitentiary in 1943 after serving six years of a 10-year term for insurrection activity.

President Truman cabled the Governor his congratulations that the rebellion had been brought under control. The President also conveyed his sympathy to the families of officers killed in the defense "of law and order and democratic government." Ten policemen and a National Guardsman died fighting the rebels. President Truman made no reference to the attempt on his own life.

Albizu Campos surrendered without a fight after tear gas bombs had been hurled into his besieged home early this morning. He hung a white towel on a broomstick out of a second story window and then staggered to the street crying that he was blinded.

In a search of his home, police said they found "numerous documents and lists," three cases of ammunition and three guns.

Besides the presidents of the

3 Puerto Ricans Subpenaed In Probe of Truman Shooting

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 (AP).—A Federal grand jury investigation of the attempted assassination of President Truman was indicated today with the issuance of grand jury subpenas to three persons.

The three subpenas were issued to Juan Pinto-Gandia, self-proclaimed leader of the Puerto Rican Nationalist movement in New York City; John Correa, sports goods manufacturer and a member of the movement; and Juan Cortes Cordero, an uncle of Mrs. Oscar Collazo.

Mrs. Collazo's husband was one of the men shot by White House guards in the attempted attack on the President.

The three men had been brought to the office of United States Attorney Irving M. Saypol for questioning earlier today.

The date the subpenas are returnable was not disclosed.

Meanwhile, it was learned that the FBI has been questioning a number of persons in connection with the attempted assassination. The FBI refused comment on its activities, however.

The young widow of Griselio Torresola, slain in the attempt on President Truman's life, disappeared while the FBI was looking for her.

In another action, Mrs. Collazo was held in $50,000 bail on a

Labor Market Held Tightest Since War II

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The Labor Department yesterday disclosed that the Nation is experiencing its tightest labor supply since the all-out mobilization of World War II.

Robert C. Goodwin, director of Defense Manpower, reported that "the twin impact of booming production of civilian goods and mounting defense expenditures cut deeply into the Nation's available labor supplies in September."

As a result, there was a "dramatic increase" in the number of major cities showing a scarce labor supply and important occupational shortages.

Between July and September, the number of unemployed fell in 147 out of 150 cities checked by the local offices of the Bureau of Employment Security. More than half of the areas cannot meet employer requirements for workers in some occupations.

Ninety-eight of the 159 labor areas showed considerable rises in employment and drops in unemployment.

Between July and September, the number of "A" areas—those with a tight or balanced labor supply and unemployment below 3 percent—jumped from 20 to 51. Among the cities moving into the tighest labor supply centers were Washington and Richmond.

The number of "B" areas—with unemployment between 3 and 4.9 percent—increased from 46 to 57. Among these was the Portsmouth-Norfolk area.

"D" areas—with idleness running between 7 and 11.9 percent—fell from 40 cities in July to 7 in September. There were four "E" areas in July—unemployment of more than 12 percent—but these fell to two cities, Scranton and Wilkes-Barre, Pa., in September.

Defense Manpower Chief Goodwin said employers anticipated further employment increases as the defense program gained momentum. He added, however, that this employment outlook must be tempered by the effects of credit and material controls.

Wounded GI Returns to See Recruiter

It was a year ago this month that Pfc. James Caudle, 19, of Herndon, Va., was "talked into" enlisting in the United States Army.

It was a year filled with new experiences, some of them "pretty rough"—training in this country, then overseas to Korea, and 59 days in the front lines there until he was wounded by a burst of shrapnel.

But Private Caudle has no regrets. And yesterday one of the first things he did after arriving in Washington was to look up the man who did the talking that made him enlist—Sergt. Robert E. Hunter, 34, of 4820 N. 9th st., Arlington, a Washington recruiting officer.

Caudle, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Caudle of Herndon, greeted Hunter with a quick handshake, a grin, and a short remark: "I'm not sorry you talked me into it, sergeant, even though it was pretty rough over there."

He enlisted November 21 of last year for a 3-year term and was sent to Japan in June. On July 18, he went to Korea. He was there 62 days, when the shrapnel hit him in the back, arms, legs and hips. A month ago, he was returned to this country and is now stationed at the Fitzsimmons Army Hospital in Denver for treatment.

Caudle, who was awarded the Bronze Star and the Purple Heart, is home on a 30-day leave. He plans to marry a girl from Louisville, Ky., shortly after Christmas. And when his three years of Army service come to an end, "who knows, I may even reenlist," he told Sergeant Hunter yesterday.

Casualties Total 27,610; 4401 Dead, 18,879 Wounded

The Defense Department yesterday reported 27,610 casualties in the Korean fighting through October 27, including 4401 dead, 4330 missing and 18,879 wounded. This was an increase of 909 over the number announced last week.

The Army suffered 23,987 casualties, the largest number of the services. The Marine Corps was next with 3142. Navy suffered 284 casualties and the Air Force, 197.

Gene Jones Gets Purple Heart

Gene Jones, NBC television cameraman who was seriously wounded by shrapnel in Korea, was awarded the Purple Heart by the Marine Corps yesterday afternoon.

Jones, who with his twin brother Charles has been covering the Korean battle front for NBC, received the award during the Kate Smith Hour television show on WNBW-NBC at 4 o'clock.

In discussing Gene's injury, sustained during the landing at Inchon September 25, Charlie happened to mention the seriousness of the wound, but Gene shushed him with a reminder that their mother was watching the show. Their mother, Mrs. Marguerite Jones, 5420 Connecticut ave. nw., is always a source of concern to the 25-year-old twins who asked NBC not to let anyone know they were due back in Washington last Sunday for fear they'd be late arriving and worry their mother.

During World War II, the Jones boys were in the Marine Corps, and earned a citation for photographic work on Iwo Jima.

Yesterday's award, made by Maj. Lewis Wilson, went to Gene as a civilian who was injured while helping the armed forces.

Two Marines Given Awards

They are Second Lieut. Willis Lee Kay, 31, of Shirley Duke Apts., Alexandria, and Warrant Officer Aloysius C. Gidlewski, 33, of 5309 1th rd., S. Arlington. Both men served in the Pacific theater.

Lieutenant Kay originally received a Silver Star for his heroism in the battle for Guam. He presented himself as a target to draw enemy fire. However, a review brought a revocation of this decoration and substitution of the Navy Cross.

W/O Gidlewski received a letter of commendation with ribbon and pendant for setting up an ammunition dump on Guam and preventing its destruction or deterioration.

Angered Symington Warns of Rollbacks

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

In an angry speech—the toughest he has made since his appointment as mobilizer of defense production—W. Stuart Symington last night warned of possible action to roll back prices and berated industrial profiteers.

Symington assailed the "deliberate policy of limited production" on the part of some businesses which were utilizing "scarcity as a means for raising prices."

He said that the Administration plan for inflation control was to be carried out first, "with a few selective controls and with a higher tax policy in an effort to pay as we go, to discourage the drive for ever greater profits and to siphon off boom-time purchasing power."

Warns of Price Fixing

But, he warned, if this fails, we are going to impose whatever controls and issue whatever directives are necessary." His reference, it was obvious, was to over-all price and wage fixing.

Symington spoke to the Theater Owners of America, at Houston, Tex. Copies of his address were made available here.

Repeatedly the National Security Resources Board chairman expressed his distress at the lack of sufficient public support in the fight against inflation. In particular, however, he lashed out at price profiteers.

U. S. Action Needed

"If opportunity for profits, based upon scarcity, is to be standard behavior," he said, "that can only constitute an invitation for Government action of a scope and degree we have so far sought to avoid."

Referring to shortages of materials, Symington bluntly stated, "Those of us in Government know that most of these shortages have little to do with current military demands."

He referred to one company, which, "after deciding that expansion would be wrong, and that scarcity would be better . . . increased its profits over 750 percent between 1945 and 1950."

He also bitterly attacked copper interests which successfully lobbied against removal of a 2 cents per pound tariff on the imported metal.

Earlier in the day Senator Humphrey (D., Minn.) called for an immediate "temporary price stop," steps to control wages and an early 10 to 15-billion-dollar tax boost.

These actions, he said in a statement released by his office, are needed to clamp an emergency lid on living costs rocketing toward inflation.

Defense Factor
Brannan Calls For Large '51 Corn Crop

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan yesterday asked for a bigger corn crop next year, just as he recently asked for more wheat and cotton to meet the demands of the defense mobilization program.

The announcement also indirectly called for more cattle and hogs and poultry. More corn, the Secretary said, is needed to assure sufficient feed for an "abundant" production of livestock.

No crop goals were announced. Acreage allotments for corn, which will be liberal, will be set later, in accordance with the law. The announcement pointed out the department's belief that the Nation's reserve corn stock, although now a near record, will shrink considerably during the coming year.

Before the full planting season arrives, it is expected that only peanuts and cotton will be subject to acreage quotas.

It is known that some department experts are fearful that the Government's desire for a bigger meat supply next year may not be fulfilled. Economists predicted at the annual outlook conference at the department that ends today, that 1951 production of meat will average only 148 pounds per capita, against a potential demand for 155 pounds. They emphasize that some Government action to encourage meat production is urgently needed.

As a result, it is expected that immediately after election Brannan will address the chairman of each of the two congressional committees on agriculture to take some action to boost meat output. The law gives Brannan the power to proclaim price supports and the recently slumping market for hogs has brought pressure on him to do so on this output at least. Brannan is hesitant to take any action that might lead to piling up huge supplies of a highly perishable item such as pork.

On the other hand, with the price of grain supported, farmers who might otherwise feed their crops to livestock are hesitant. Given good crop weather, the chances are bright for the largest grain production in history.

Huge Alcohol Purchase From France Set

The shortage of molasses usually supplied by Cuba has curtailed the manufacture of alcohol in this country, the National Production Authority said last night.

As a result, a report by the NPA's Alcohol Industry Advisory Committee stated, the Government hopes to buy at least 10 million gallons of alcohol a month from France. A contract for this amount to be supplied by the French government was announced last week.

In the meantime the committee is studying:

1. A plan to make alcohol out of surplus grain.

2. Reactivation of Government-owned alcohol plants, that provided the alcohol for World War II.

The committee report stated that about 350 million gallons of alcohol will be needed next year to "meet anticipated military and nonmilitary requirements."

Two Republican Senators, Kenneth S. Wherry (Neb.) and Owen Brewster (Me.), yesterday accused Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan of "bungling" the defense program by failing to provide alcohol.

In a joint statement, Brewster, who is chairman of the GOP Senatorial Campaign Committee, agreed with Wherry that surplus potatoes should be used to make industrial alcohol instead of being destroyed.

They said the alcohol shortage has become "so acute that the Reconstruction Finance Corp. has had to contract with France for alcohol from sugar beets."

Secretary Brannan's recent remark that destroying potatoes is a "useless drain upon our resources" is one of the few "ever made by Mr. Brannan with which Republicans agree," they declared.

Flash Lights Up Sky From Canada To Connecticut

BOSTON, Nov. 2 (U.P.).—A brilliant flash of light believed caused by a falling meteor lighted the sky over New England, southeast Canada and up-State New York tonight.

The glare appeared for several seconds. Eyewitnesses said it made the sky as bright as daylight. In Ottawa, many persons thought it was caused by an explosion at the nearby atomic plant at Chalk River, Ontario.

Reports of the flash came from such separated points as Hartford, Conn., and St. Johnsbury, Vt., where Gilbert Summers said it was a bright "green-blue light that lit up the whole valley." Frank Bennett said he saw something that "looked like a large bushel basket with a tail of fire." He said it seemed to be coming down to earth when it passed over.

Two airplane pilots over Burlington, Vt., said it was so bright they had to turn their heads away.

Dirksen Is Indorsed By Former Gov. Stelle

CHICAGO, Nov. 2 (U.P.).—Former Democratic Gov. John Stelle today indorsed Republican Senate Candidate Everett Dirksen for election over Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas.

He said he was against Lucas because Lucas "is urging the Brannan plan and socialized medicine."

'No Such Thing as an Incurable Disease', Baruch Says, Dedicating Plaque at GWU

AT G. W. UNIVERSITY—Bernard Baruch yesterday attended the unveiling of a plaque, dedicated to two of his friends, at George Washington University. With him are Dr. Cloyd Marvin (left), president of the university, and Dr. Walter Bloedorn (right), dean of the School of Medicine. The plaque denotes dedication of Baruch's gift of $30,000 to a hospital department to the memory of Rear Admiral Cary Grayson, physician to three United States Presidents, and Maj. Gen. Edwin Watson, military aide to President Roosevelt

"There is no such thing as an incurable disease but only those for which we have not yet found a cure . . ."

In those words, Bernard Baruch, who donated $30,000 to equip George Washington University Hospital's department of physical medicine and rehabilitation, yesterday gave his reason for his interest in physical medicine.

Baruch spoke at ceremonials dedicating a plaque commemorating his gift. He made it in memory of Admiral Cary T. Grayson and Maj. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, whom he called Christian gentlemen."

Dr. Walter A. Bloedorn, dean of the university's school of medicine and medical director of the hospital, said the gift enabled the hospital to equip the physical medicine department "with the most modern facilities. This department now ranks as one of the finest in the country and is rendering splendid service to patients suffering from handicapping illnesses, convalescents, victims of accidents, poliomyeletis, arthritis, to mention only a few of its uses.

"The opportunity, on single occasion, to pay tribute to a great man and to a noble cause is most unusual.

"Throughout the world, it is well known that Bernard Baruch is one of the great men of our times. He is one of the world's honored statesmen; his benevolent influence in economic, social and political affairs will continue to benefit people in even the remotest lands for generations to come."

Dr. Bloedorn said that Baruch "recognizes that of all human rights and privileges the most highly prized is the opportunity of the individual through his own work to support himself and to make some useful contribution to the life of the community."

The ceremonies were attended by Mrs. Edwin Watson, widow of the general, who unveiled the plaque; Edward Nash, her nephew; Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. Felix Frankfurter, Vice Admiral Ross T. McIntire; Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, G. W. president; Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of The Washington Post; Michael J. Shortley, director of the Office of Vocational Rehabiliation; Arthur Krock, of the New York Times, and Oliver Kincannon, of the Vocational Rehabilitation Office.

No Austerity Relief in Britain Forecast by New Chancellor

LONDON, Nov. 2 (U.P.).—Hugh Gaitskell, new Chancellor of the Exchequer, told Britain today there was no chance of relief now from "Cripps' austerity" and that the nation may have to endure even more of an economic pinch.

Gaitskell, in his first big Commons speech since he succeeded Sir Stafford Cripps, said rearmament plus soaring raw material costs meant not only the end of the last year's economic relaxation, but the possible reimposition of stringent controls.

The present "economic climate," he said, removed any chance of reducing British taxes—already the highest in the world.

Gaitskell said Britain did not intend to swing over to a complete war footing.

The mounting demand for wage increases clearly cannot be resisted, Gaitskell said, but he warned that if increases take place "on anything more than a moderate scale" they will lead to dangerous inflation.

"It is the duty of the Government to take all possible steps to see that its own actions do not generate inflationary pressure," he said.

"Indeed it must as far as possible so control, through its budgetary and credit policy, the flow of money as to reduce pressure, provided this does not lead to unemployment."

Gaitskell was speaking for the Labor government in a Commons debate on the speech King George made at the opening of a new session of Parliament, outlining the Cabinet's legislative program. He hit back at Conservative Oliver Lyttelton, who said the Laborites were trying to make a "planned human being" with the Socialistic economic policies.

Free Economy Called Weapon Against Reds

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 (AP).—Foreign traders today urged Americans to use "the economic might of a free people" as a principal weapon in the fight against communism.

Delegates to the thirty-seventh National Foreign Trade Convention in a resolution "at a time of great national emergency" said:

"Our country is faced with the reality of a life and death struggle against forces of military aggression and Communist subversion, inspired by the Kremlin and dominated by a resurgent Russian imperialism — a struggle which pits our physical energies, our free economic system, our political concepts, and our spiritual ideals against a ruthless, dictatorial regime and a way of life diametrically opposed to all we stand for.

"Now, more than ever, it is abundantly clear that we must be productive if we are to be strong, and that we must be strong if we are to survive. We must build up our strength in the realm of ideas as well as in the field of physical production."

The convention suggested the United States go slow on further ECA aid in Europe where drastic needs "for industrial rehabilitation and economic recovery have been substantially met." The United States Government should concentrate on military help, the delegates said, and leave the rest to private enterprise.

Halaby Chosen for ECA Task; To Aid Europe's Arms Output

The Economic Cooperation Administration, hitherto mainly concerned with the economic recovery of Europe, is about to appoint an officer to handle its new responsibility of stimulating European military production, it was learned yesterday.

The new position, that of special assistant to the ECA Administrator in charge of international security and military assistance matters, will be filled by Najeeb E. Halaby, until now the director of the Defense Department's Office of Foreign Military Affairs. Halaby, a wartime Navy test pilot, will probably be named to the job today.

He will be in charge of administering 475 million dollars of the four billion dollar sum appropriated after the Korean outbreak for foreign military assistance. Of this about 3.5 billion dollars, under the present statute, will be spent for production of munitions here, to be supplied in finished form mostly to the European nations in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The Defense Department will administer this phase of the program.

The remaining 475 million dollars, however, will go to the NATO nations as dollars, to defray the costs of those raw materials, tools and components for munitions production in Europe that must be purchased in the dollar area. The EC will be in charge of disbursing these funds.

It has been intimated that the Administration may request Congress to amend the statute to permit a larger portion of the mutual defense assistance funds to be spent in this way. The expectation is that European nations, with this dollar aid, can make a larger proportion of the necessary implements of war within their own borders, and thus require less end-items from America.

Top coordination of the international defense program, covering both the allocation of the dollars for weapons production and the distribution of American-made munitions to Europe, will rest in the State Department. A director, still to be appointed, will serve with top-level authority as a right-hand man to Secretary Acheson on all matters of military assistance.

Temporarily, the Point Four organization is conducted by a special agency in the State Department, with Capus M. Waynick, the Ambassador to Nicaragua, as acting director.

Yesterday, it was disclosed that Nelson A. Rockefeller, former Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs and former Assistant Secretary of State, will be head of a 13-man citizens advisory committee for Point Four operations.

2d Infantry Division Joins Battle Against Reds in Korea

Half of U. S. Force Escapes

The First Corps spokesman said about half the American force filtered through the Red ring during the night and got back to United States lines. They abandoned all their heavy equipment and vehicles.

The Reds augmented Chinese and North Korean infantry with tanks, rockets, self-propelled artillery and cavalry. Russian-built fighters, possibly from bases in Red China, roared over the Korean front Thursday for the second day in a row. Conventional piston-engine Yak fighters tangled with United States planes both days.

Only in northeastern Korea was the Allied border drive making any headway—and it was rough going there.

A North Korean communique asserted the U. N. drives toward the Manchurian frontier had been checked by Red counterattacks. The communique was broadcast by Russian radios at Moscow and Khabarovsk.

The Red China radio at Peiping said rallies demanding Chinese Communist intervention in the Korean war were being held throughout Manchuria. "All over Manchuria, people are declaring that action must be taken to assist Korea and protect our country at home," the broadcast asserted.

Strong Support for Foe

While the extent of Chinese Communist participation was not clear, it was obvious the enemy had picked up powerful support, tanks, planes and artillery, from some quarter. The North Koreans who fled from the debacle in South Korea had left all their heavy equipment behind.

Now, for the first time in North Korea, enemy tanks and artillery were appearing again in numbers. The strength of the resistance was shown by what happened to the proud and veteran First Cavalry Division which ran into the trap.

Trapped Men Are on Their Own

The trapped men near Unsan were ordered to escape as best they could.

Frontline reports said they represented a "considerable portion" of the First Cavalry Regiment which had moved up to Unsan to support South Korean Republican troops farther north.

An Eighth Army spokesman in Seoul reiterated early Friday that the cut-off forces were parts of two battalions numbering the equivalent of one battalion. This would be possibly 1000 men.

Regiment Badly Hurt

Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, division commander, said the regiment had been "very badly hurt" by the entrapment and the three-pronged Red attack that preceded it.

Americans who escaped said there were many Chinese Reds in the attacking force. A captured Chinese prisoner said there were 3000 Chinese Communist troops in the action. The Reds used American equipment against the trapped force. (How they got it was not clear; it could be booty taken from the Chinese Nationalists long ago.)

Associated Press Correspondent Tom Lambert, with the First Cavalry Division, said the Red attack seemed well-planned and was effectively carried out.

It began about sunset Wednesday and continued until dawn Thursday. The three-pronged attack came from the east, north and west.

The unit's leading element was cut off in two hours near a dry river bed four miles southwest of Unsan.

The Reds came at the Americans with bazookas, Browning automatic rifles, Thompson submachineguns and rapid-firing "grease-guns."

The trapped troops fought back all night. At daylight a rescue team from other First Cavalry units ran into heavy Red fire at Yongsong, about a mile from the surrounded men. It was unable to break through.

Tank radios of the surrounded force, which had been silent all morning, came on the air Thursday afternoon and directed Allied plane strikes at the Reds.

Presumably, it was over these radios that the trapped men were told rescue was impossible and that they should try to get out on their own.

A sergeant who escaped said the Chinese soldiers in the attacking force acted "crazy."

"They would stand right up in front of you, laughing to beat hell," he said. "We killed them by the hundreds. Still they kept coming."

Lambert said the action was "probably the most costly battle United States forces have fought north of the thirty-eighth parallel in Korea."

He said the men who managed to break out and rejoin other divisions—the First, Sixth, Sev- atmosphere strikingly reminiscent of the early days of the Korean war when North Koreans were battering United States forces south of Seoul."

A United States First Corps spokesman said the situation all along the northwest sector was "very serious."

The newest and strongest Red counterattacks designed to turn back the Allied drive to the border not only trapped the First Cavalry's leading element but also forced back four South Korean divisions—the First, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth. The Sixth and Eighth fought back later for some small gains.

Some of the South Korean leading elements also were reported cut off, but there were no details.

The Twenty-fourth Division's forward elements had reached four miles northwest of Charyongwan. They were within 15 miles of the Manchurian frontier near the west coast, before their pullback was ordered.

An Eighth Army spokesman in Seoul said another unit of the division was withdrawing from positions five miles north of Kusong. That town is 30 miles west of Unsan and about 20 miles east of Charyongwan.

A third element of the Twenty-fourth Division, cleaning up by-passed Reds on the road south of Kusong, fought Thursday against an estimated 2000 Reds. The Eighth Army spokesman declared, however, that the Twenty-fourth's retirement was entirely owing to the flank situation and not to enemy action.

The indicated maneuver was to form a tight defense arc until more offensive power could be built up to deal with the Unsan situation.

Marines Gain in Northeast

In the northeast, United States Marines drove nearly a mile against strong Red resistance to high ground about two miles south of Sudong, about 30 miles northwest of Hamhung.

The Seventeenth Regiment of the United States Seventh Division fought northward from Pungsan and was last reported less than 38 miles from the Manchurian border. Pungsan is about 70 miles northeast of Hamhung.

A South Korean company advancing in the northeast reported seizure of four deep caves which contained an estimated 4000 tons of Red ammunition.

Behind the northeast front, three small United States motor convoys were attacked by Reds at three places eight to 12 miles from Wonsan, big east coast port where United States Marines landed in force recently.

Two were Marine convoys. The other consisted of United States Tenth Corps anti-guerrilla fighters.

One Marine was killed and 15 other Americans wounded in the attacks. Red casualties were reported heavier. The Reds were driven off by Marine Corsair planes.

For the second consecutive day, American Mustang fighter planes and Russian-built Yak fighters battled over Sonchon in the northwest.

American pilots reported two Yaks destroyed out of a flight of four encountered at 6000 feet.

That brought to 23 the total of Russian-made Red planes, mostly Yaks, destroyed or damaged in the past three days in the air or on the ground.

Fifth Air Force bombers destroyed four United States L-5 observation planes on a landing strip near Unsan to keep them out of Communist hands.

Pilots did not have time to get the small planes off the field before it was overrun by fiercely attacking Reds.

U. S. airmen also destroyed 33 vehicles and 500 rounds of 90-millimeter ammunition at Unsan.

Many Weapons on Border

Air reconnaissance reported large concentrations of weapons, self-propelled guns, tanks and other military supplies along the Manchurian border on the Chinese side of the Yalu river.

Other reports told of Red troop movements during the day southward from the Manchurian border area in various places from Sinuiju east to Unsan.

An Army intelligence officer in Tokyo said elements of three North Koreans divisions, two brigades and one armored regiment, were operating against allies in the Unsan area. He emphasized they were only elements and did not have an estimate of the total.

He said all the elements were North Korean and added that he still was unable to make an official statement about presence of Chinese troops reported in the area.

Other American authorities have officially reported that Chinese troops were aiding the North Korean Reds in the revived Red attack, but none has estimated the number.

Army briefers in Tokyo deliberating began using only the word "enemy" as an inclusive term for the opposition. Formerly they referred to the opposition as "North Koreans."

India Seeks Solution of Tibet Issue

NEW DELHI, India, Friday, Nov. 3—(AP)—India disclosed today she had told Communist China that her invasion of Tibet is unjustified. At the same time, it was suggested that a negotiated settlement of Chinese-Tibetan differences is still possible.

Prime Minister Nehru's Indian government, a bellwether in efforts to restore peace to Asia, made public three notes exchanged between New Delhi and Peiping, Red China's capital, since the Peiping radio announced 10 days ago a Chinese army had been ordered to "liberate the 3 million Tibetans." The Communist vanguard is now reported within 200 miles of Lhasa, the Tibetan capital.

Domestic Matter

An Indian note to China last week expressed surprise and regret at the invasion order. China replied sharply that the issue was strictly domestic. A second Indian note, also sharply phrased, contained a paragraph that official quarters said was "a possible opening."

This referred to a seven-man Tibetan delegation now at the border city of Kalimpong on a projected trip to Peiping after talks with Chinese diplomats here for an accord on relations between China and Tibet, which has claimed autonomy from China for years.

"In view of these developments," the note said, "the government of India is no longer in a position to advise the Tibetan delegation to proceed to Peiping unless the Chinese government thinks it fit to order its troops to halt their advance into Tibet and thus give a chance for peaceful negotiations."

Despite the hostilities, the Tibetan delegation has planned to leave Kalimpong for Peiping at the weekend. The leader is Finance Minister Tsepon Shakabpa, who said in an interview before leaving New Delhi October 25 that the group had "an open mind and full hopes of an amicable settlement."

On Tibet's Future

India's first note emphasized that India wanted Chinese assurances of a peaceful solution of Tibet's future.

The Chinese reply declared Tibet is an integral part of Chinese territory and the Tibetan problem is solely a domestic problem.

"The Chinese people's liberation army must enter Tibet to liberate the Tibetan people and defend the frontiers of China," it said. "This is the resolved policy of the Central People's government."

The reply charged that the Tibetan delegation had intentionally delayed its departure for Peiping "under outside instigation."

Indo-China Fighting Spreads But French Cling to Laokay

SAIGON, Indo-China, Nov. 2 (U.P.)—Fighting between French troops and Viet Minh rebels has erupted at various points throughout Indo-China, but French forces still are clinging to their western frontier fortress of Laokay, a French military spokesman said today.

French authorities reported a "definite lull" in the fighting around Laokay and indicated that French were holding their own.

Fort Pennequin, a mountain-top installation 1¼ miles east of Laokay, was reported under sporadic rebel mortar and machine-gun fire, the spokesman said, but the only other action in the battle zone was that of French bombing and strafing attacks on Viet Minh positions.

Skirmishes between French and rebel forces were reported in various sections of Indo-China from the upper part of embattled Tonkin Province to the southern swamps, where a French patrol launch struck a mine in the Mekong River and was "gravely damaged."

In one skirmish, a French patrol killed several Communists near the Gialam airport in the suburbs of the Tonkin provincial capital of Hanoi.

French infantry, supported by tanks and artillery, continued operations against the followers of Ho Chi Minh who are threatening the Red River delta, Indo-China's chief rice-growing area, near Dongvan, 30 miles below Hanoi, the spokesman said.

French officials said several rebels were killed or taken prisoner in a clash near Dongtrieu, 36 miles east of Hanoi.

Chang to Speak At World Trade Conference in Va.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 2 (Spl.). The Korean Ambassador to the United States, Dr. John Myun Chang, will be the featured speaker at the second Virginia Conference on World Trade here November 16 and 17.

Sponsored by the Virginia Chamber of Commerce, the meeting is open to shipping men from two dozen Eastern and Midwestern States, and to representatives of the U. S. and foreign governments.

Dr. Chang will speak at the World Peace luncheon on Friday, November 17, at Norfolk's Monticello Hotel. He will be introduced by Representative Porter Hardy, jr., of Norfolk.

Big Wheat Crop Seen

OTTAWA, Nov. 2 (U.P.).—A 1950 Canadian wheat crop of 465,300,000 bushels—the largest in five years—was estimated today by the Bureau of Statistics. The estimate was nearly 109 million bushels higher than last year.

Tory Wins Oxford Vote

OXFORD, England, Nov. 2 (AP). The Conservative Party retained its hold on the Oxford District in a special parliamentary election today. Conservative H. F. L. Turner defeated Laborite S. Kersland, 27,583 to 20,385.

Chinese Reds Cut Up U. S. Troops, S. Koreans In Overpowering Surprise Action at Unsan

IPSOK, Korea, Nov. 2 (U.P.).—Chinese Communist hordes, attacking on horse and on foot to the sound of bugle calls, cut up Americans and South Koreans at Unsan today in a savage Indian-style massacre that may prove to be the costliest of the Korean War.

Two combat regiments were badly chewed up and hundreds of civilians—men, women and children—who tried to escape along the roads leading from Unsan were killed by enemy machinegun and mortar fire.

Those who escaped got to Ipsok, a tiny village 9 miles south of Unsan. Many of them who were wounded had to swim across the icy Kuryong River to reach friendly troops.

The Communists charged in the frosty early morning hours in an attack so vicious it left the surprised and confused Americans no choice but to run. Many did not escape.

Here in the words of some men lucky enough to escape is the story of how the Chinese infiltrated the lines of the American First Cavalry Division and the South Korean First Division and left the ground bathed in Allied blood.

Pfc. Joseph Sutherland of North Gardens, Va., said:

"I woke up when they started shooting the fellows in the foxholes around me. I couldn't see anything until a tank came along. I climbed on and fell off three times or was pulled off by others trying to get on. Then the tank burst into flames and we all started running."

Pfc. Henry Tapper of High Point, N. C., said "someone woke me up and asked if I could hear a bunch of horses on the gallop. I couldn't hear anything. Then bugles started playing taps but far away. Someone blew a whistle and our area was shot to hell in a matter of minutes. I'm not too sure how it all happened right now, but I know we lost more of our outfit there than got out."

"There was no such a thing as fighting back," Lieut. Patrick J. MacDonnel of Vancouver, Wash., said. "The chances were the greatest that you would hit one of your own men rather than the enemy."

Corpl. Frank L. Galindo of Yukon, Okla., said he was at an outpost on the perimeter with a reconnaisance section when the attack started.

"Four mortar rounds landed near us, so we withdrew about 30 yards," he said. "The Commies started picking us off one at a time. I was the only one to get back to the company command post as far as I know. We organized for an orderly retreat, but discovered we were surrounded, and on our captain's orders we made the best stand we could. They could see us, but we didn't know where they were. They murdered us."

Pfc. George Dick of Lake Village, Ind., said he was "talking to a couple of other guys who couldn't sleep as to whether there really were Chinese Communists helping the North Koreans when the bugles sounded."

"We kidded about some frustrated GI bugler playing his tin horn," Dick said. "We were having a good laugh when two guys no more than five feet from us began spraying us with lead."

The men who escaped to Ipsok built up a defense around the tanks that escaped. Officers in the immediate area did not know what help if any was being rushed to this front.

Reconnaissance elements were sent out to find a route over which truckloads of wounded men could be evacuated and amunition and ration trucks were emptied of their loads to carry the wounded.

Mess supply and other large trucks were set up as emergency hospital wårds and the more serious wounded were tagged for evacuation by helicopter.

Vishinsky Says Anglo-U. S. Bloc Plots 'Stab'

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 (AP).—Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky today accused the "Anglo-American bloc" of talking peace but actually "sharpening their knives for stabs in the back." He also attacked American Delegate John Foster Dulles as a "warmonger" and an old backer of Hitlerite Germany.

The Soviet Foreign Minister's long blast in the U. N. Assembly against Dulles drew a rebuke from the Assembly president, Nasrollah Entezam, who reminded delegates that they were in an international forum and personal attacks were not allowed. Dulles himself laughed as he heard some of Vishinsky's attacks on him, but had no immediate comment.

Vishinsky claimed also that the Russian armies saved Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in the Battle of the Bulge in World War II and said he had documents to prove it.

Vishinsky spoke against an American - backed plan to strengthen the U. N. against aggression. He denounced the proposal as a violation of the U. N. Charter, said it would shunt aside the Security Council and would established aggression.

Kenneth Younger, British Minister of State, indorsed the anti-aggression program in a speech to the Assembly, which is expected to approve the proposal by a large majority. It won 50 votes in the political committee. The Soviet bloc alone voted against it, even though the Russians agreed to serve on a peace observation committee under the proposal.

The program also calls for U. N. members to set aside trained troops for use by the U. N. on instant call and permits the Assembly to convene within 24 hours' notice in an emergency.

Vishinsky said Dulles in his speech to the Assembly yesterday favoring the plan had "enhanced his well-established reputation as a falsifier of facts aand warmonger" by charging Hitler and Stalin agreed in 1939 to divide Poland.

He said the 1939 pact of nonaggression gained time for the Russians to patch their defenses and thus saved the Allies from the Germans. He said Dulles' statement could be explained only by what Vishinsky called Dulles' "insatiable desire to fan the flames of hatred for the U.S.S.R."

He said the USSR will continue its struggle for peace and not act like the organizers of the "Anglo-American bloc who are speaking honeyed words about peace" while "sharpening their knives for stabs in the back."

Vishinsky attacked Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Philippine Foreign Secretary, referring to him sarcastically as a "fear-inspiring warrior." Romulo spoke yesterday in favor of the antiaggression program.

Cuba, Chile, Turkey, Iceland, Bolivia, Yemen and Ethiopia supported the resolution. India announced she would abstain.

In the meantime, a United Nations committee today threw out Polish proposals criticized by the United States as propaganda to blacken foreign investors.

Communist Poland wanted the United Nations secretariat to report on national income in underdeveloped countries, with special attention to interest and other costs of public and private foreign debts.

A Polish draft resolution before the General Assembly's economic and financial committee observed that these latter costs might be responsible for low living standards in the backward countries.

Pope Asks Three Special Prayers; Hopes for Peace

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 2—(U.P.)—Pope Pius XII asked Roman Catholic cardinals, patriarchs, archbishops to offer three special prayers today and said that they must not abandon hope that peace may be maintained.

The Pope in expressing hope for peace denounced the "calumnious accusations"—made by Soviet Russia and its satellites—that the Catholic Church worked for war.

He said also that decrees excommunicating Communists were aimed not against any people or any government but against "erroneous doctrines and systems" only.

The three prayers for which the Pope asked were:

1. For persecuted Catholics.
2. "Invoking a major spirit of mortification, of penitence and of voluntary sacrifice in conformity with the precepts of God and of the Church."
3. For the integrity and safeguarding of matrimony and the family "whose degeneration can be called the cancer of modern society."

New Arlington Post Goes to Glassman

Gerald J. Glassman, 31, of 311 Howard ave., Kensington, Md., has been appointed to Arlington County's new $7000-a-year post as technical assistant to the Public Utilities Commission.

Glassman left his job as an ecomist for the Federal Supply Service of the General Services Administration to take the new position. A native of New York City, he received his A.B. degree from George Washington University.

During World War II, Glassman served in the Army in the Italian and Rhineland campaigns, was discharged as a captain. He is married and has one daughter.

Gen. Spaatz Pleads for Aid for Iron Curtain Refugees, Sees U. S. Gain in Their Knowledge

By the United Press

Gen. Carl A. Spaatz said yesterday that nearly 1000 persons are escaping daily through Russia's Iron Curtain, many with "vital intelligence" of great use to the American military.

The retired Air Force Chief of Staff made the statement as he accepted the chairmanship of a one-million-dollar Iron Curtain refugee campaign, sponsored by the International Rescue Committee.

Purpose of the drive, he said, is to help the 300,000 political refugees who have escaped to western Europe from Communist domination and now are penniless or without jobs to fit their skills. They do not qualify as displaced persons, admissible to the United States and are outside the sphere of Red Cross and Army assistance.

United States Aided

"My only interest is in the ultimate benefit of these people to the United States," Spaatz said. "Their experience could be valuable for military operations."

This does not mean he thinks war with Russia is inevitable, Spaatz hastened to add. But he explained that information on location of Soviet industrial centers and scientific progress is hard to come by.

Several of the most prominent Russian scientists have been aided by the refugee campaign, said the general, who now is a special writer for a news-magazine (Newsweek).

One scientist—who could not be named for fear of harm to his relatives—was "one of the foremost Russian nuclear physicists under whose direction a vital program of nuclear research was carried out at a major Russian university," Spaatz said. He now is working in this country, but it was not divulged if he was on atom bomb research.

Famous Red Scientists

Others included Prof. Andre Karpinsky, geologist and nephew of the head of the Soviet Academy of Science, and the man who first reported Russia had completed a second strategic Trans-Siberian railroad. He also conducted important surveys of the Tashkent region, Spaatz said, "now believed to be a proving ground for Soviet atomic experiments."

Another was Dr. Pavlo D. Lysenko, a leading Russian coke chemist and brother of Academician Trofim D. Lysenko, a biologist.

Spaatz indirectly attacked the new subversive control law as "legislation against our own interests," but said the organization would make no effort to get it changed though it might harm their immigration program.

Asked if there might be Communist spies planted among the refugees, he said he was "satisfied" in his own mind that the committee's own "police force" screened them adequately. Additionally, he said, they are checked by military intelligence.

Whirlwind Hits Singapore

Berlin Police Club Mob of 800 East Reds

BERLIN, Nov. 2 (AP).—West German police smashed an attempt today by 800 young Communists to storm a British-sector courthouse and clubbed the mob back half a mile to Soviet-held territory.

The clash was the latest in a series of violent incidents instigated by the Socialist Unity (Communist) Party to show "national resistance" against the Western powers in Berlin.

The Communist Free German Youth (FDJ) answered a party call to mass at the courthouse where a 22-year-old "peace fighter," Werner Byzio, was to be tried for attacking Western police at a recent demonstration.

Neues Deutschland, official Communist newspaper, called the court a "terror weapon against peace" and its judges a "terror tribunal."

For three hours the young Communists taunted the Western police and sang Red marching songs.

When the situation became explosive, the court postponed Byzsio's trial until midafternoon.

Police issued a ultimatum for the mob to disperse. Defiant and jeering Communists pressed forward. Then the police charged. Fifty persons were clubbed.

Churchill Raps Elliott Roosevelt for Printing 'Rubbish' About Conference at Casablanca

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 (AP).—Winston Churchill, in the latest chapter of his memoirs, politely raps Elliott Roosevelt's knuckles for publishing "rubbish" about the Casablanca conference in 1943.

On several points, the former Prime Minister disputes Elliott Roosevelt's version of the historic meeting between Churchill and President Roosevelt. Elliott attended the meeting with his father and wrote about it later in his book, "As He Saw It."

In the installment of his own story published today in Life Magazine, Churchill points out that he was anxious for Gen. Charles de Gaulle to attend the conference. He says:

"It is very odd to see the account which the President's son, Elliott Roosevelt, gives of this in the book which he hastened to write about the confidential talks he heard at the meals to which he was brought by his father.

"He seems to suggest that the President suspected me of trying to stop de Gaulle coming, and objecting to his being brought there, whereas I was putting the utmost pressure possible to get him to come. This rubbish has had wide and long currency."

"No Friend of England."

Expanding his sentiments about de Gaulle at the time, Churchill adds:

"I knew he was no friend of England. But I always recognized in him the spirit and conception which, across the pages of history, the word 'France' would ever proclaim. I understood and admired, while I resented, his arrogant demeanor."

Churchill also mentioned the "unconditional surrender" policy announced at Casablanca. Critics of this policy have argued that it prolonged the war. In 1949, Churchill said the first time he heard the words, "unconditional surrender" was at the Casablanca meeting, when President Roosevelt announced the policy to the press.

Now, in his memoirs, Churchill corrects that statement. He says that, on consulting his records, he found he had asked his cabinet's advice on the policy of unconditional surrender before President Roosevelt announced the policy. Churchill adds:

"Elliott Roosevelt asserts in his book that the words 'unconditional surrender) were used by the President at one of our dinners. I am reported by him to have 'thought, frowned, thought, finally grinned, and at length announced 'perfect'," and also that the nightcap proposed by me that evening was 'unconditional surrender.'

No Recollection of Remarks

"I have no recollection of these private and informal interchanges where conversation was free and unguarded. The matter must certainly, however have cropped up in my official talks with the President."

Churchill says he does not recall discussing unconditional surrender with President Roosevelt after hearing from his own war cabinet on January 20.

"Meanwhile," he says "the official joint statement was being prepared by our advisers and by the chiefs of staff. There is no mention in it of 'unconditional surrender.'

"It was with some feeling of surprise that I heard the President say at the press conference on January 24 that we would enforce 'unconditional surrender' upon all our enemies. It was natural to suppose that the agreed communique had superseded anything said in conversation.

Supported Roosevelt

"In my speech which followed the President's, I, of course, supported him and concurred in what he said. Any divergence between us, even by omission, would have been damaging or even dangerous to our war effort. I certainly take my share of the responsibility, together with the British war cabinet.

Churchill quotes President Roosevelt's account of this to the late Harry Hopkins:

"We had so much trouble getting those two French generals (DeGaulle and Henri Giraud) together that I thought to myself that this was as difficult as arranging the meeting of Grant and Lee—and then suddenly the press conference was on, and Winston and I had had no time to prepare for it, and the thought popped into my mind that they had called Grant 'Old Unconditional Surrender,' and the next thing I knew I had said it."

Army Denies Use Of Nippon Troops As Soviet Charged

The United States Army flatly denied yesterday a Russian charge that it had used Japanese troops in Korea.

The Russian embassy here earlier yesterday had released a copy of a statement made to the Far Eastern Commission by Vladimir I. Bazykin, Russian alternate on the 13-nation group.

The Russian statement said "it has been proved that Japanese military personnel, together with American troops, participated in the fighting in the Seoul sector; that one Japanese company participated in the fighting in the Cholwon sector, and that there is a considerable number of the Japanese within the Seventh and Eighth Divisions of Syngman Rhee troops."

The State Department refused to comment; so did the commission. An Army spokesman, however, bluntly threw down the Russian charge. He said there are not now, nor have there been, either any Japanese units or even Japanese individuals fighting with American forces in Korea.

Falls Church Book Fair

A book fair will be held today at Madison School, Falls Church, to raise funds for a fireproof stage curtain and backdrops. The event will be open for children during school hours and will be open for the general public from 3:30 to 10 p. m.

Peace, Liberty Main Job, Rusk Tells Teachers

BALTIMORE, Nov. 2 (AP).—Assistant Secretary of State Dean Rusk warned today that Americans should not become so obsessed with Russian diversion that we lose the initiative in world leadership to the Kremlin.

"The answer to the cold war," Rusk said, "is to get on with our main job. We seek peace, liberty and material well-being for ourselves and others.

"For ourselves, because our moral purposes and aspirations compel us to do so. For others because we have learned we cannot enjoy peace, liberty and material well-being if aggression, tyranny and abject poverty infect the world about us."

The State Department official in carge of Far Eastern affairs made his remarks at the opening general session of the Maryland State Teachers Association. More than 10,000 delegates attended.

Previously, Governor Lane reviewed the conditions of th State's school system during the years after the last war "when we found ourselves faced with more than 100,000 school children for whom no provision had been made."

"In some counties," the governor added, "the teacher turnover was in excess of 100 percent." This became very confusing to the pupils, he said, for there was a constant succession of teachers trying to train them.

Since the war years, Lane said, 280 schools have been built and education standards have been increased tremendously.

Woodie's New Suburban Store Opened by 1st 1880 Buyer

The Washington Post

By Lucia Brown
Post Reporter

A package of hooks and eyes purchased 70 years ago brought Mrs. Margaret A. C. Welsh back to Woodward & Lothrop's store yesterday.

Spry and sprightly at 94, Mrs. Welsh cut the ribbons at the opening of the firm's new Bethesda-Chevy Chase suburban store at Wisconsin and Western aves. and she will be the first customer when selling starts at 12:30 p. m. today.

Back in 1880, when Samuel W. Woodward and Alvin M. Lothrop started a dry goods business at 921 Pennsylvania ave., she made the initial purchase there.

"My mother sent me to town to buy some hooks and eyes," recalls Mrs. Welsh, long-time Rockville resident. "I didn't know I was the very first customer of the new store until they handed me a corsage."

A replica of the same corsage was presented to Mrs. Welsh yesterday—a cluster of sweeheart roses centered by a gardenia and mounted on a long black stick.

"No lady wore bunches of flowers pinned to her clothes in those days," says lively little Mrs. Welsh. "The stick was to carry the flowers by."

Mrs. Welsh's husband, the late William W. Welsh, was a merchant, too, operating a general store in Rockville. She started the first Rockville women's club, was instrumental in organizing the General Federation of Women's Clubs in Maryland, and reared five children.

Today, she has three great-grandchildren, still buys her clothes from Woodward & Lothrop, including the black velvet dress and pert black hat she wore for yesterday's ceremonies.

The new emporium is far different from the one Mrs. Welsh helped open in 1880. It is located at the busiest intersection in Montgomery County, as County Manager Irving McNayr pointed out yesterday. Thousands of cars drive by every hour, and there's room behind the building for some 550 of them to park while their drivers shop. Grounds and building occupy six acres.

Architecturally, the store is modern Georgian red brick, with a curved facade. There are three floors, decorated in light, clear colors, studded with mirror-covered pillars. A beauty parlor, children's barber shop, shoe repair shop and soda fountain are among the service units of the store, which sells everything from mousetraps to mink coats.

With 70,000 square feet of selling space, it brings to 10 the number of buildings owned and operated here by Woodward & Lothrop, including the downtown store, branches and warehouses.

Betty-Wall Luttrell, great-granddaughter of Founder Lothrop, and Andrew Parker, jr., great-grandson of Founder Woodward, placed historical material in the cornerstone of the new building at yesterday's ceremonies. John Tyssowski, chairman of the board of directors, presided.

Speakers at the day's events included leaders of Montgomery County civic, business, and religious groups. Philip M. Talbott, senior vice president and secretary of Woodward & Lothrop, reviewed the company's history. Today, Andrew Parker, president of the firm, will welcome suppliers at a special opening. Saturday a parade and exhibit of antique automobiles in vogue during various phases of Woodward & Lothrop's history will be a morning feature.

'Room306-Sue' Receipt Nabs 2 Procurers

Two men pleaded guilty to soliciting for prostitution yesterday, after a policeman testified the men gave him a receipt for $7 marked "Room 306 — Sue."

Richard A. Howerton, jr., 22, 1205 Harvard st. nw., and Wilson M. Moore, 23, 1229 Q st. nw., originally pleaded not guilty, but changed their plea after the officer produced the receipt.

Judge George D. Neilson sentenced each to pay a fine of $50 or serve 60 days in jail.

Known as a "Murphy," the Howerton-Moore operation worked this way, police explained.

A customer is asked to check his valuables and is given a receipt. On the receipt is marked the name of the girl and the number of a room. The customer takes the receipt and heads for the room. When he gets there, no girl. When he gets back to the lobby, no valuables.

Humans Volunteer For A-Type Burning

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

A British research team has been subjecting its volunteer members to flash burns simulating atom bomb burns, it was reported here yesterday.

The painful research has been going on since 1947. The purpose is to further medical planning for the care of casualties of atom bomb attack, said the group leader, Dr. W. J. H. Butterfield, of London.

Dr. Butterfield, a member of the British Medical Research Council, spoke at the opening of a three-day symposium on burns. The meetings, at the National Academy of Sciences here, are sponsored by the National Research Council.

Couldn't Afford Animals

Other speakers discussed other burn research projects under way with dogs, moles and pigs, rather than humans.

The British work with human volunteers, Dr. Butterfield said, was begun simply because the research group couldn't afford laboratory animals.

"We found we could do it cheaper on ourselves," he said. "This proved fortunate, because we could also evaluate the pain." This could not have been done on anaesthetized research animals.

Dr. Butterfield explained that the eight scientists involved exposed their arms to calculated flash burns. However, he said, they ran but little danger of permanent injury or scarring.

Most of the burnings, his charts showed, were those which would occur at the outside fringe of an atom bomb airburst.

Thick vs. Thin Skins.

Many of the burns, however, were severe enough to raise large blisters, which left "large ulcerated areas" and took weeks to heal, he said.

Their findings, to date, he said, include:

Unprotected humans may suffer first degree (reddening) skin burns at a distance of 5600 yards from an A-bomb blast. At 4300 to 4600 yards, blister burns may result.

The researchers calculated "tough-skinned" men would be blistered at 4500 yards, adding another 1000 yards for "delicate-skinned" men. No women were among the British volunteers. Dr. Butterfield said there was "indirect evidence" they'd be in the latter category.

Dr. James W. Brooks of Richmond, Va., told of increased mortality when dogs were exposed to both burns and radiation, as compared to exposure to similar doses of one or the other. The work was done in the surgical research laboratories of the Medical College of Virginia.

Dr. Herman E. Pearse of Rochester, N. Y., speaking on the dangers of clothing set ablaze by A-bomb flashes, warned against using more-combustible rayon for wool in military uniforms.

D. C. Man Named

24 Scientists Selected for Foundation

President Truman yesterday announced his appointments for the 24-member National Science Board of the National Science Foundation.

They included one local man, Dr. Robert Percy Barnes, head of the department of chemistry of Howard University, here.

Dr. Detlev Wulf Bronk of Baltimore, president of Johns Hopkins University, was also on the President's list.

The 24, whose appointments must be confirmed by Congress, will select their own chairman and together will direct operations of the National Science Foundation.

The Foundation, authorized by the past session of Congress, was established to develop and encourage basic research and education in the sciences. As enacted, it provides that up to 15 million dollars may be authorized annually in appropriations by the Congress.

List of Appointees

Besides Drs. Barnes and Bronk, the appointees include:

Sophie D. Aberle, special research director, University of New Mexico, Albuquerque; Chester I. Barnard, president, Rockefeller Foundation, New York; Gerti Theresa Cori, professor of biological chemistry, Washington University Medical School, St. Louis, Mo.

James Bryant Conant, president, Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass.; John W. Davis, president, West Virginia State College Institute, W. Va.; Charles Dollard, president, Carnegie Corporation, New York; Lee A. Dubridge, president, California Institute of Technology, Pasadena, Calif.

Edwin B. Fred, president, University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wis.; Paul M. Gross, M. D., dean of Duke University Graduate School, Durham, N. C.; George D. Humphrey, president, University of Wyoming, Laramie, Wyo.; O. W. Hyman, M. D., dean of medical school and vice president, University of Tennessee, Knoxville, Tenn.

Robert F. Loeb, bard professor of medical services, College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University, New York; Donald H. McLaughlin, president, Homestake Mining Co., San Francisco, Calif.; Frederick A. Middlebush, president, University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo.

Edward L. Moreland, partner, Jackson & Moreland, engineers, Boston, Mass.; Joseph C. Morris, head of physics department and vice president, Tulane University, New Orleans, La.; Harold Marston Morse, professor of mathematics, Princeton University, Princeton, N. J.

Andrey A. Potter, dean of engineering, Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind.; James A. Reyniers, director, bacteriology laboratories, Notre Dame University, South Bend, Ind.; Elvin C. Stakman, chief, division of plant pathology and botany, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis.

D. C. Management Unit Named Best in Nation

The Washington, D. C., Chapter of the Society for Advancement of Management yesterday was named best among the society's 50 chapters.

The local group was especially commended for calling attention to many recommendations of the Hoover Commission affecting management. George D. Hanson, last year's president of the local chapter, has accepted the Emerson Trophy Award for outstanding chapter program accomplishment.

If you want your breath taken, drop around to the Smithsonian Institution these days.

There you will find a breathtaking exhibit of enormous, beautiful stones that sparkle like emeralds or sapphires.

Between eight and ten inches in radius, these stones are not super gems like sapphires, but pseudo gems. They have fancy names like azurite, cerussite and dioptase.

And the reason they aren't super is they are soft. They are crystals of lead or copper mixed with carbon or sulphur, formed by percolating waters. They occur in cavities in the upper layers of copper deposites.

The collection now on exhibit contains about 900 specimens and was gathered as a hobby by a former superintendent of a South African copper mine.

Soviet Scientists Claim Discovery of Key to Life's Origin

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—(AP)—Soviet scientists claim a great new discovery that they say may even help science create life from nonliving matter.

The purported discovery is in how living cells—of plants or animals—are formed. It has been given official Soviet blessing as a new theory, and marks another split with Western science.

Robert C. Cook, editor of the Journal of Heredity, published by the American Genetic Association, declared this is "complete nonsense."

All scientists believe new living cells are formed by a cell's dividing into two new cells. The amoeba splits into two new amoebaes.

The Russians say, yes, this happens, but that they have found something in addition. The new thing, they claim, is that some living cells come from tiny living particles that are not cells.

The cells generated by these particles are different from ordinary cells, and form a vital part of the new plant or animal, they hold. The particles may be "a connecting link" between living and nonliving matter, declare articles in Soviet newspapers, adding:

"Soviet science is approaching the solution of the great problem . . . of the transformation of nonliving matter into living."

The theory also offers support to Soviet claims that wheat has been changed into rye by grafting plants together. The strange particles supposedly figure in bringing this about.

The discovery is credited to a woman biologist, Prof. O. B. Lepeshinskaya, who was awarded a Stalin prize.

The Russian articles say Lepeshinskaya has found "proof" that the tiny mysterious particles can become cells, under the right conditions. She is said to have photographed tiny grains of white matter in the yolk of birds' eggs, tracing their development into cells.

This is one critical point. The Soviet geneticist, T. D. Lysenko, claims to have turned wheat into rye by grafting and by changing environment. The Russians hold that characteristics acquired during life can be inherited by the offspring.

Lepeshinskaya's work opens up "vast new prospects" says an article in Bolshevik. It may help explain how cancer starts and grows, how to regenerate organs, how new kinds of germs are formed.

1000 Germ-Fighting U. S. Scientists Infected, 39 Dead, in 20 Years, Incomplete Study Shows

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 2 (AP).—At least 1000 germ-fighting scientists have been infected—presumably in the course of their work—in the last 20 years, the first national roundup on this subject disclosed today.

The still incomplete survey is being conducted under the auspices of the American Public Health Association and the United States Public Health Service.

Prompted by reports to the health service "significant increases" in infections among laboratory workers have occurred as a result of the increased personnel required for the demands of modern medicine, the survey showed these figures:

In the last two decades, according to some 5000 laboratories queried so far, there have been 1334 infections among trained scientific personnel, students, animal caretakers, janitors and others working around laboratories.

Of the total, 1005 involved trained scientific personnel.

In the total of 1334 infected cases, there were 39 deaths.

The report, prepared by Dr. S. Edward Sulkin and Dr. Robert M. Pike of the University of Texas, did not contain a breakdown, however, to show the occurrence of such infections year by year.

Public Health Service officials, declaring that all private and governmental laboratories are being surveyed, said they hoped eventually to obtain figures from 10,000 laboratories not included in the present report.

The report was read at an American Public Health Association meeting at which other scientists outlined certain precautionary procedures designed to protect laboratory personnel from the hazards of occupational infection.

These methods include special ventilation, use of masks and other protective clothing, special instruments and inclosed chambers for handling dangerous germs, use of protective vaccines, and constant vigilance against laboratory "accidents."

The report showed that brucellosis and tuberculosis were the most prevalent of all infections. Hepatitis, a liver infection, led the viral diseases; "Q fever." which resembles pneumonia, topped the "rickettsial" diseases; amebic dysentery led the ailments caused by parasites; and "coccidiomycosis" topped the infections caused by fungus organisms.

Jury Deadlocked For Second Time In Traffic Death

For the second time in one year, a Municipal court jury was unable to reach a decision yesterday in the case of Hugh N. Hanger, 24, 5201 T st. se., a bus driver charged with negligent homicide.

The jurors deliberated for two hours, reported themselves hopelessly deadlocked and were discharged by Judge Armond W. Scott.

Hanger was charged with causing the death of Harry S. Hall, a Washington attorney, as he walked across New York ave. at 13th st. nw., October 7, 1949.

Assistant United States Attorney Frank H. Strickler said he did not know whether a third trial would be scheduled.

Chief Wardens To Be Named

Leaders for the District's civil defense warden system will be nominated by civic groups in six defense areas at six simultaneous meetings November 18, it was agreed last night.

The plans were made at a meeting of about 30 civic group representatives, called by Chief Warden Max C. Schwartz and held at the District Building.

Schwartz announced the tentative boundaries of the six civil defense divisions, as follows:

Division A, police precincts 1, 3 and 4; Division B, precincts 2, 10 and 13; Division C, precincts 5 and 9; Division D, precincts 6 and 12; Division E, precincts 7 and 8, and Division F, precincts 11 and 14.

The meetings to be held at 8 p. m., November 18 will include all organizations in each division wishing to participate in the civil defense program.

Secret Senate Crime Papers Are Published

By The Associated Press

Senate crime investigators said yesterday some of their secret documents on crime in Chicago have fallen into the hands of a newspaper reporter "who misrepresented himself to get them."

The investigating committee, headed by Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.), announced it will meet next week to inquire into the circumstances.

Alfred M. Klein, assistant counsel to the committee, said he has learned the reporter—he didn't identify him—has obtained a transcript of testimony given to the committee by Police Capt. Daniel Gilbert, candidate for sheriff of Cook County, Ill.

"Whether the reporter got more than the transcript of Gilbert's testimony is not yet clear," Klein told a reporter here. "We are checking into that. We understand that the transcript of Gilbert's testimony is being published today in the Chicago Sun-Times."

Klein said a reporter "got the documents from the offices of the Alderson Reporting Service, a stenographic firm whose employes recorded the testimony." The committee aide added: "The reporter misrepresented himself as someone with authority to have access to the transcript, and it was handed ovr to him."

Klein said the committee learned yesterday afternoon that the reporter had the information, and "we phoned every Chicago newspaper, telling them this was confidential and restricted information which should not be published."

The testimony of Gilbert, who is chief of detectives in the Cook County district attorney's office, was given at closed door committee hearings in Chicago, Klein said.

Gilbert, he added, appeared at the invitation of the committee but was not subpoenaed.

Klein said exact date of next week's hearing has not been set.

In Chicago, the Sun-Times devoted some 15 columns of yesterday's editions to statements to describes as "a partial text" of testimony given by Gilbert, a Democrat, before the committee on October 17.

The article said, Gilbert, 61, told the committee in Chicago that:

He had acquired a fortune of about $360,000 in stock market speculation and in betting on sports events and elections.

He had described himself as "a gambler at heart", paid income taxes on $49,000 in 1949, and estimated his average income from dividends on investments at $42,000.

He had made big bets on most sporting events with a LaSalle st. bookmaker.

The Sun-Times, which generally has supported Democratic candidates, is opposing Gilbert in the race for sheriff. Gilbert earns $9000 a year as chief investigator for the Cook County (Chicago) State's attorney.

Woman Is Accused Of Prankster 'Torture'

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 2 (U.P.)—A warrant was prepared today charging a woman with "torturing and tormenting" nine youngsters who approached her house on Halloween night seeking a treat.

The children's parents told police the youngsters were invited inside and asked to sing while the woman went to the kitchen to prepare something for them. She returned and offered them a treat in a pan.

Suddenly, the youngsters ran from the house screaming. The pan had contained small coins, heated in grease.

Arlington Plan for Continuous Assessment May Be Illegal, Two Key Officials Declare

By Don Olesen
Post Reporter

A proposed Arlington ordinance setting up "continuous" assessment of county real estate received a setback yesterday when two Arlington officials expressed "grave doubts" of its legality.

Commonwealth's Attorney Denman Rucker and Commissioner of Revenue Harry K. Green said that the ordinance may be found unconstitutional.

The law, now being advertised by the County Board, would establish a County Department of Assessments, headed by a full-time Director of Assessments, and an Assessment Review Board. It comes up for public hearing and possible County Board adoption November 18.

The measure would try to keep real estate assessments always current. It is backed by the three-member "independent" majority of the board, which feels the present four-year assessments set "inequitable" values on Arlington real estate.

Green said the proposed changes would raise "confusion" between the authority of his office and that of the new director.

He felt that official would be "nothing more nor less than a high-salaried glorified clerk," and his regular assessments would "create turmoil" without bringing in much more revenue.

Green said he had "grave doubts" that the ordinance, if approved, would "stand the test in the courts."

Rucker said the board "must consider the likelihood of an attack on the ordinance on the ground that it is a special, or local law forbidden by the Virginia constitution."

Status Quo Favored by 2 Officials

Two key Fairfax County officials whose jobs would be abolished by a changeover to either the county executive or county manager forms of government yesterday called for retention of the existing system.

They were John W. Ferguson, commissioner of revenue, and Lewis M. Coyner, county treasurer, whose offices would be incorporated into a department of finance if voters ballot for a change in government in next Tuesday's referendum.

While Ferguson expressed opposition to any change, Coyner went a step farther and called on voters to ballot for the county executive system even if they oppose a governmental change on the two-part referendum ballot. He pointed out that those who oppose a change still may vote for either of the two alternative systems as the "lesser of two evils."

He urged voters to ballot for the county executive system "rather than let your county fall into the hands of one man who could become the tool of any pressure group."

Meanwhile, on the opposing side, County Supervisor C. B. Runyon yesterday indorsed the county manager system. Runyon was the only member of the board of supervisors to oppose a resolution, adopted by the board on Wednesday, backing the county executive system if a change is approved

In the same resolution, the board said it would appoint a commission to draft a new county charter should the governmental change be defeated in Tuesday's balloting.

In another development yesterday, the Committee for Good Government assailed the supervisors for saying they would attempt to mould a special form of government for the county if a change is defeated next Tuesday.

Commenting on the supervisors' additional indorsement of the county executive form, the committee asserted: "The fact that the court house group opposes change but considers the county executive form an acceptable second choice should warn the citizens of Fairfax County to vote for real change by voting for county manager next Tuesday.

School Cost Furor Assailed

Mrs. Elizabeth P. Campbell, chairman of the Arlington County School Board, last night said wide publicity given to Arlington school costs has simply been an attempt to "confuse the voters."

Mrs. Campbell said the only issue before the voters is "adequate school facilities for our children." She spoke at a special meeting of the board, called after publication of a report of a special committee of the Arlington Ridge Civic Association.

The report was blistering in its criticism of Arlington County school costs as compared to those of other sectors of Greater Washington. The Association membership has refused to act on its committee's report until after next Tuesday's election.

Last night, five architects, most of them planners of school buildings both in Arlington and Montgomery County, spoke in defiance of Arlington school costs.

The men were unanimous in their agreement that cost figures may be used to prove any point.

Council Asks Honors for 3 Heroic Police

A movement to obtain official recognition of the efforts of the three White House guards shot in the defense of President Truman Wednesday, was set on foot last night by the Northeast Council of Citizens Associations.

On a motion by Jerome Lynch, delegate from Brentwood Terrace, the council voted to start movement aimed at having either Congress or the District Commissioners draft a "suitable citation" for Policeman Leslie Coffelt, who was killed, and Joseph Downs and Donald T. Birdzell, who were wounded.

Arkansas Avenue

Frank Gauss of 4604 Georgia ave. nw. was elected president of the Arkansas Avenue Citizens Association last night in Burdick School.

Also elected were Desmond Murphy, first vice president; Mrs. Essie Robbins, second vice president; Robert Hurley, third vice president; Charles Manoogian, treasurer; Fred Morgan, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Katherine C. Laverine, secretary, and Mrs. Mildred Eichner, assistant secretary.

The outgoing president, Clifford H. Newell, and Philip Moorehead were elected delegates to the Federation of Citizens Association.

Connecticut Avenue

The Connecticut Avenue Citizens Association last night voted, 30 to 4, against the proposed rezoning of a portion of the old Woodley estate.

Owners of the property have asked the Commissioners to rezone about 11 acres and have expressed the intention to build apartments there. Residents of the area have registered protests with the commission.

Conference Given Pope's Benediction

Pope Pius XII yesterday told the National Conference of Catholic Charities that the theme of their conference, calling for a crusade of charity, has "particular relevance to the present ills of society."

His statement came in a message of benediction to the conference, which is holding its thirty-sixth annual convention jointly with a meeting of the St. Vincent de Paul Society at the Statler Hotel.

If there is bitterness and distrust among nations, hatred and misunderstanding between the social classes, or lack of respect and mutual love in the intimacy of the family circle, it is to a great extent for want of charity, the Pope said.

All-day institutes on administration, counseling services, supervision and intake policies of Catholic agencies were held yesterday.

John H. Palacios, director of psychiatric social work at the child center, Catholic University, was among those discussing counseling services.

Leroy L. Stockmann, vice president of the Particular Council of Washington, was a participant in an afternoon discussion of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul on training for local leadership.

James J. Norris, European director of war relief services of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, warned that the expelled Germans and refugees from East Germany are in great danger of becoming a political football.

The national conference will continue through Monday morning.

Harpsichord Recital Opens Cathedral's Bach Festival

By Paul Hume

Ralph Kirkpatrick opened a Bach festival last night in Washington Cathedral.

His harpsichord recital is the first of three such programs Kirkpatrick is playing on successive nights. The festival will include an organ recital Saturday afternoon by the Cathedral organist, Paul Callaway.

Sunday afternoon the Cathedral choir and the Washington Chamber Choral group will sing motets and cantatas by Bach, and on Monday evening the B Minor Mass will climax the five-day observance of the 200th anniversary of the master.

Kirkpatrick's harpsichord was placed immediately in front of the rood screen, standing almost in the center of the great crossing. Though the tone of this instrument is notoriously small, it carried throughout the vast reaches of the building with ease. Echoes robbed it of some clarity at various places in the seating space, but it is surprising how well it sounded in surroundings quite unlike those for which it was intended.

On the other hand, what a pleasure to hear Bach's music from the instrument for which he wrote it and not in some inadequate and misleading arrangement for piano, organ or orchestra.

Kirkpatrick gave three of the six partitas, and the Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue last night. And he plays them all from memory, an amazing feat.

Silver Spring Rally Hears Sen. O'Conor

The Nation's citizens will decide Tuesday whether to continue to "forge ahead under the Democratic Party" or return to the "old program of special privilege under the Republicans," Senator Herbert R. O'Conor (D., Md.) declared last night.

Speaking at a Democratic rally in the Silver Spring National Guard Armory, he urged the people of Montgomery County to vote the Democratic Party "right down the line."

Other speakers at the rally were Maj. Gen. Russell P. Hartle, who is Democratic candidate for Congress from the Sixth Maryland District; Mayor G. LaMar Kelly, of Rockville, and Mrs. Stella B. Werner, both candidates for the Montgomery County Council.

Montgomery Group 'Deplores' Attacks

A group of seven Montgomery County residents who call themselves "convinced Democrats" last night "deplored" attacks by "Democrats" and "Charterites" on Democratic candidates for the County Council.

The seven said they saw no "essential difference between those Democrats who were indorsed and those who were not . . . We see no reasons why we have to support Republicans in order to have an honest, efficient local government dedicated to the best interests of all the people of the country."

Signers of the statement were Mrs. Elizabeth Asay, Charter movement leader, of 4416 East-West hwy.; Mrs. Evelyn Fryeman, president of the American Federation of Radio Artists in Washington, of 510 E. Woodbine st., Chevy Chase; Mrs. Pearl Hertz, of the League of Women Voters, of 4612 S. Chelsea la., Bethesda; Mrs. Alice W. Hostettler, who helped write the first charter, of Glen, Md.; the Rev. Thomas B. Keehn, of 2218 Washington ave., Silver Spring; James J. Lynch of 8466 Piney Branch ct., Silver Spring; and Phillip Thorson, 7001 MacArthur blvd., Glen Echo Heights.

Prince Georges Budget Data Called False

The Prince Georges County Commissioners last night were accused of understating actual expenses of government by as much as 40 percent in publicly announced budgets for the past five years.

The charge was made by William R. Turner, former executive secretary of the Citizens Committee for Good Government, at a meeting of the County Civic Federation at the County Service Building, Hyattsville.

Turner read figures from a report he compiled from auditor's records of county funds for the five-year period.

Publicly announced budgets represented only 60.7 percent of actual expenditures in the fiscal year 1945-1946; 59.4 percent in 1946-1947; 63.3 percent in 1947-1948; 68.7 percent in 1948-1949; and 73.2 percent in 1949-1950, he said.

League Says Council Favors Elective Posts

Six of Alexandria's seven city councilmen favor a change in the method of filling the offices of city attorney and city tax collector, the League of Women Voters said yesterday.

A poll of present council members shows that all but one are in favor of having both officials elected instead of appointed, as now is the case, the league reported.

Alexandria voters will ballot Tuesday in a referendum to determine whether the two offices shall be appointive or elective. The question is the only local issue to be decided in the general election.

Favoring appointment of the two officials in the league poll were Mayor Franklin P. Backus and Councilmen Leroy S. Bondheim, Albert A. Smoot, James M. Duncan, jr., R. Samuel Luckett and Marshall J. Beverley. All, according to the league, echoed Backus' view that in a council-manager city government, the elected council should be the policy-making body, with power to appoint administrative officials.

Councilman Roy S. Bragg, the only dissenter, told the league he felt the city attorney could function more independently if elected instead of appointed. He said the attorney then would be in "no position to be dictated to" by the council.

Eligible Voters In Maryland Total 928,000

By The Associated Press

Maryland's registration books showed yesterday about 928,000 voters are eligible to cast ballots in next week's election. It's a new record.

The registration also shows there are about five Democrats in the State for every two Republicans.

Including approximate figures for Baltimore City and Worcester County, the breakdown lists 653,993 Democrats, 255,570 Republicans and 18,425 independents or minor party members.

The new record compares with 882,775 voters registered for the 1946 elections and 863,951 for the 1948 balloting.

Four years ago there were 600,058 Democrats, 264,976 Republicans and 17,741 independents or members of minor parties. Two years ago there were 593,397 Democrats and 248,047 Republicans.

Here's a partial breakdown of the current registration:

| County | Dem. | Rep. | Others | Total |
|---|---|---|---|---|

Ceremony to Open Arlington Incinerator

Arlington's new $750,000 incinerator will be formally opened at 2:30 p. m. Saturday to the strains of band music and some old-fashioned oratory.

Ceremonies will take place at the new plant, first in the county, at S. 31st and Eads sts. The Washington-Lee High School band will play, County Board Chairman Daniel A. Dugan will speak, and then light the incinerator burner. The structure then will be open to public inspection.

5 From Maryland At Youth Conference

Five young Marylanders are attending the Ohio-West Virginia Older Youth Conference at Jackson Mill, W. Va., beginning today and running through Sunday.

Participating in the discussion on development of rural leadership will be Miss Elaine Akehurst, assistant home demonstration agent for Baltimore County; Fred Hutschenreuter, of Glen Arm; David Patrick, of Woodbine; Diane Jeanne Winn, of Fallston, and Jame Iliff, of Cresaptown.

Krum Speaks Tonight

Tyrrell Krum, Republican candidate for Congress from Virginia's Eighth District, will speak at a GOP rally at the Lyon Village Community House at 8:15 o'clock tonight.

9 Workers Honored By Garfield

MRS. ALICE E. McWHORTER
. . . honored for her services

Garfield Hospital yesterday applauded six employes and three officials with a total of more than 300 years' "service to humanity" to their credit.

Directors and stockholders, orderlies and engineer, the two women and seven men had each served the hospital continuously for 25 years or more.

Awarded certificates and service pins at the Kellogg Building ceremonies on Garfield grounds were:

Former presidents of the board of directors, Clarence A. Aspinwall and Henry Benning Spencer, and Vice-president G. Thomas Dunlap; Sarah Walker, 44 years service in housekeeping department; Charles Murphy, 33 years in engineering units; Bob Keener, stock clerk for 32 years; Oscar E. Overend and Grace L. Putman, 26 and 27 years in business office; and William Hamblin, pharmaceutical orderly since 1925.

Mrs. Alice E. McWhorter, 81, long-time superintendent of nurses, now retired, who still lives at the hospital, was also honored.

Zoning Board Criticized as 'Bunglers'

A citizens group yesterday criticized the District Zoning Commission for "confusion and bungling" in handling a drawn-out zoning case at South Dakota ave., Taylor and 18th sts. ne.

Four years ago at the request of residents in the neighborhood the commission rezoned the triangle of land from commercial to residential. On the owner's appeal District Court last winter upset the commission's action as unjustified.

In an attempt to salvage something before a final court order was signed, the commission held a closed meeting last May with owner Jack Coppersmith. It agreed not to appeal the decision if Coopersmith agreed to build only row houses and a pick-up laundry. Permits have been issued for 15 row houses. The case came up yesterday in the form of a proposal to formalize the compromise by rezoning the property back from restricted residential to a category between that and commercial.

Miss Katherine L. Flynn, chairman of the citizens' committee, said her group had not been informed of the May compromise meeting until it was over, although the committee was then dickering for purchase of the land as a Federal park. And the building permits were issued before the time was up for the citizens to appeal the court decision, she complained.

Miss Flynn suggested a "suitable apartment house" would be the best solution. Other residents asked that the land be kept restricted to single family homes.

The commission took this and other cases under advisement.

Guard of Honor Of Legion Installs Officers Tonight

New officers, headed by Gail T. Judd, will be installed at a dinner meeting of the American Legion's National Guard of Honor at 7 p. m. today at the New Colonial Hotel.

Judd, member of Henry C. Spengler Post No. 12, succeeds Warren A. Hilleary, of George E. Killeen Post No. 25, as captain.

The chief speaker at the installation ceremonies will be Walter L. Morgan, District of Columbia department commander. Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, military aide to President Truman and holder of the National Guard of Honor's distinguished service medal, will also give a short address.

Other new officers include: first lieutenants, James A. O'Neill, Harry A. Mills, Guy C. Dodson; second lieutenants, Alden I. Dame, Julius Cerulla James A. Raeburn, Phillip Domras, William Mitchell; executive committee, James C. Clarke, Thomas P. Royston and Andrew J. Micheats.

Housework Easy Without Nagging Backache

As we get older, stress and strain, over-exertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Own Enticing Posters Beckon Travel Agents at Convention

The posters and literature that entice tourists here or there must work on travel agents, too.

Otherwise, why would there be more than 40 booths and displays at the Hotel Shoreham in connection with the twentieth annual convention of the American Society of Travel Agents, which continued yesterday for the second day.

From the exhibits it is even possible to compile a special gazetteer. Thus:

"The New Vacation Land"—East Africa.

"Holiday Isle of the Tropics"—Cuba.

"Country of Emeralds"—Colombia.

"The Package DeLuxe"—Bermuda.

"The Land of Eternal Spring"—Gautemala.

Backing up the printed matter are items as varied as Latin American ceramics and Egyptian jewelry. Promoters of Africa do even better. Not content with zebra skins and spears, they display Zulu "love letters"—little beadwork tablets which have special meanings in courtship.

Britain has a few tricks in her bag, too. A placard bears the legend: "Publicity Support in Your Own Home Town . . . Another Service of the British Travel Association."

Shown are clippings of pictures from American newspapers, showing two girls from Waukegan, Ill., looking at Westminster Abbey; a Quincy, Mass., couple shopping in Mayfair. If you go all the way to England maybe you can get your picture in the hometown paper.

Yes, travel has its lure. Many of the 1000 travel agents at the convention, which ends today, are from overseas, including Germans and Japanese, for the first time since the war.

On Mixed Groups

Ministers Ask Schools to Reverse Rule

The Baptist Ministers Conference of Washington yesterday urged the District school board to reverse its decision that supported the banning of a mixed group of white and Negro Sesquicentennial actors from the stage of Anacostia High School:

In a letter to School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning, the conference said the action of Mrs. Opal Corkery, principal of the school, of Dr. Corning and of the Board of Education was "undemocratic, un-American and calculated to do much harm in race relations nationally and internationally.

Rent Examiner Quits in Row

District Rent Control Examiner William F. Mansfield broke up a rent hearing he was conducting yesterday by disqualifying himself after a verbal tangle with a witness.

Some 269 of the 440 tenants at the Good Hope Hills apartments in Southeast Washington had applied for a "substantial" rent reduction. The management, Waverly Taylor, Inc., was recently heard and a decision is pending on its request for a 10-percent rent increase.

Yesterday's hearing came to a sudden end, Mansfield said, as Denis K. Lane, attorney for the tenants, was questioning a tenant, Thomas R. English, of 3000 30th st. se.

Ernest F. Henry, attorney for the management, objected that Lane was asking leading questions. Mansfield said English started to answer a question despite the examiner's request that he refrain until a ruling was made on the objection.

This led to an exchange of remarks between Mansfield and English, the examiner said, with the result that at Lane's request Mansfield disqualified himself for having become "emotional."

Mansfield said the hearing would be continued indefinitely until another examiner was named to hear it.

First Day's Drive Proves Costly to Learner-Driver

Robert J. Jacobs, 18, of 8107 14th ave., Hyattsville, Md., started out yesterday for the first time driving on a learner's permit.

Jacobs banged the rear fender of a car (parked) owned by James T. Coakley, 213 S. Edgewood st., Arlington. His car jumped a curb and struck a tree.

Damage: about $300 to the Coakley car, $100 to the Jacobs car and $10 more to Jacobs for colliding.

Recreation Grounds Bought

Purchase of 10 acres between Westmoreland Hills and Little Falls Branch for a community recreation center was announced yesterday by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The land, costing $40,000, will be an addition to Little Falls Branch Park on the route of the proposed parkway to link Bethesda with MacArthur blvd. near the District line, Vice Chairman Blair Lee 3d announced.

Negotiations are nearing completion for the purchase of a 47-acre combined school and park site on Randolph rd., west of Glenmont and north of Connecticut Avenue Estates, Commissioner Lee said. The planning commission expects to purchase 20 acres for $24,000. The school board would use the remaining 27 acres for an elementary school and junior high school site. A. S. Kay, owner of the property, is donating 15 acres of the school site.

The commission also plans to buy a 2½-acre tract to be added to Long Branch Valley Park, uniting Oak View Elementary School with the new Long Branch recreation center, due to open in the spring.

Ft. Eustis GI Seized In Bank Robbery

WINONA, W. Va., Nov. 2 (U.P.). A "tall, skinny" soldier accused of a $19,500 bank robbery was caught today when hunger apparently drove him to his mother's home from the wooded hillsides surrounding Winona.

Police nabbed Oscar Neff, 25, but they failed to recover the loot taken yesterday at pistol point from the National Bank of Winona. Neff told officers the money was held by a companion, who was still at large.

The hunt for the pair was launched when their leave papers from Fort Eustis, Va., were found in an abandoned get-away car. A posse searched the woods while watchers waited at the home of Neff's mother.

Doolittle, Cochran, Rosendahl Awarded Harmon Air Trophies

President Truman presented America's highest aviation awards—the Harmon international trophies—to three aviators yesterday at a White House ceremony. He also handed out scrolls for five aviators, three of whom are dead.

The trophies, indicating top rating for an aviator, an aviatrix and a balloonist during the years 1940 to 1949, wen to:

Lieut. Gen. James H. Doolittle, one-time commander of the Eighth Air Force and leader of the famous Tokyo raid; Jacqueline Cochran, wartime leader of the Women's Air Force Service Pilots (WASP), and Vice Adm. Charles E. Rosendahl, wartime commander f the Navy's lighter-than-air craft.

Mr. Truman smilingly greeted each person at the ceremony in the White House garden and joked with the award winners during the presentations.

He noted that only a single large trophy was available for the two men winners and expressed a hope that some day there would be one for the aviator and one for the aeronaut (an airman who specializes in lighter than air craft.)

By custom, the trophies normally are presented annually to Americans for "the most outstanding international achievements in the arts and science of aeronautics." However, the awards were suspended with the start of war in Europe in 1939. Yesterday's presentation covered the 10-year gap.

The awards were established in 1926 by the late Col. Clifford B. Harmon, and are continued under a trust he established.

The certificates for secondary honors for aviators went to Capt. Charles Yeager of the Air Force, the first man to fly faster than sound, and the late Geoffred DeHaviland, British test pilot.

The aviatrix runner-up award went to the late Pauline Gower, organizer of the British air craft ferry service using women pilots. The aeronaut certificates went to Charles Dolfuss of France and the late Lieut. H. C. Walton, commander of the Navy airship M-1 when it set a world's endurance record.

School Amendment Draws Opposition

A proposed school consolidation amendment to the Virginia constitution which voters will decide at the polls Tuesday was attacked as "a dangerous threat to local self-government" yesterday by the committee for Home rule in Falls Church.

The amendment would permit the Virginia General Assembly to consolidate city and county school boards. The committee said the amendment "fails to require consent of the people of the area whose schools and school boards might be merged or abolished."

President's Residence

Personal protection of the President must necessarily come under additional scrutiny as a result of the shooting at the Blair House. Few persons realize how assiduously the Secret Service carries out this assignment; the foiling of the would-be assassins, even at the expense of the life of Pvt. Leslie Coffelt and the wounding of two other policemen, proved it. However, the Blair House presents great problems in affording the President an adequate guard. It opens directly upon Pennsylvania ave. and has none of the protection in depth of the White House. Moreover, the automobile exit leaves much to be desired in safety. All these are reasons for the suggestion that, pending return to the White House, a more suitable residence should be provided.

'Nominal' Totalitarians

In an undoubtedly sincere attempt to make some sense out of the crazy-quilt immigration provisions of the McCarran Act, Attorney General McGrath has taken certain liberties with its language which Congress and the courts might not condone in respect of any ordinary law. The McCarran Act says plainly that no alien who at any time belonged to a totalitarian organization may come into the United States. This closed the door in the faces of Germans and Italians who, for the sake of expediency or survival, joined the Nazi or Fascist parties, even in childhood. Mr. McGrath has now ruled that persons who joined under such circumstances were not genuinely members and may enter this country if they have some good reason for coming here. He will be obliged, of course, to make a special exception in each case and to justify it in a special report to Congress.

The virtue of this ruling is that it may somewhat diminish the free world's laughter at this land of the free. It amounts, however, to a partial nullification of the McCarran Act by administrative interpretation. The act itself makes no distinction between actual and nominal totalitarians; this inflexbility and lack of discrimination has been one of the chief causes of complaint against it. Long before the McCarran Act was passed, the immigration law banned admission of Communists and other persons whose presence here the Attorney General considered inimical to the interests of the United States. What Mr. McGrath has done is to return very nearly to the status quo ante McCarran. The only difference is that he will now exclude, in addition to Communists and other dangerous aliens, all bona fide Fascists, Nazis and Falangists. For all practical purposes, we shall be back where we started from.

Assassin's Mania

Probably it would be difficult to show a direct link between Communist machinations and the attempted assassination of President Truman, though there is no question that the Communists have been egging on the small band of fanatical Puerto Rican Nationalists. Publicly the Communists have shrunk from any connection with the Blair House outrage, and it is interesting to note the change of tone in the Daily Worker. Before the affair in Washington the uprising in Puerto Rico was described as a mass movement thus: "The Puerto Ricans are challenging the Taft-Hartleyites, the McCarran Act thought control and the push to atomic war." After the event, however, the Worker referred to the Nationalists in considerably more subdued and accurate fashion as "a small but active splinter group."

Papers in the pockets of the two would-be murderers indicate that they were agents of Pedro Albizu Campos, the Harvard-educated revolutionary credited with instigating the bloodshed in Puerto Rico earlier this week. He has now been arrested, and doubtless an effort will be made to prosecute him. In this connection the possibility of using Puerto Rican courts ought to be considered, for it is important not to give Albizu and his followers the martyrdom at the hands of the Federal Government which can be the only purpose of their plot. For no one, least of all the Nationalists, who number a mere 400, could have expected the mad orgy of bloodshed to bring the "independence" which the vast majority of Puerto Ricans have shown they do not want at this stage, anyway.

The charges of "oppression" of Puerto Rico by the United States, raised by Albizu and by the wife of one of the assassins, and often echoed by Representative Marcantonio, are of course pure and utter bunk. Puerto Rico is a net liability, and many persons in this country would gladly turn it loose. The fact is that the United States has poured close to a billion dollars into Puerto Rico during the last 10 years, and Puerto Rico enjoys a preference over every State in that Federal taxes are remitted to the island government; it also enjoys home rule. Though there are still inequities in land distribution, great progress has been made in diversifying agriculture and in attracting new industries and capital. Intelligent Puerto Ricans know this, and have honored their allegiance to the United States both by their votes and by their military records. It would be unfortunate in any way to stigmatize the Puerto Rican people for this eruption of lunacy.

Accepting Franco

The long and bitter controversy over the international status of Franco Spain appears to have been resolved by the special political committee of the General Assembly of the United Nations. By a vote of 37 to 10, with the representatives of a dozen nations abstaining, the committee repealed a resolution adopted more than four years ago excluding Spain from membership in the United Nations. The resolution of the political committee must now be approved by the Assembly, but there is hardly any doubt that the vote in that body will follow an identical pattern.

The United States was among the nations voting in favor of the resolution. The American delegate, Senator Sparkman, in urging its adoption by the committee, said there had always been deep official misgivings in this country about the wisdom of the position taken toward Franco by the United Nations in 1946, when it was agreed that member states having embassies or legations in Madrid should withdraw their Ambassadors or Ministers. This was not quite tantamount to a suspension of diplomatic relations; the United States continued to recognize the present Spanish government as it has done since early in 1939, following the collapse of the Loyalist republican regime. However, the Charge d'Affaires who remained at Madrid after the recall of Ambassador Armour, was by a diplomatic technicality accredited to the Spanish Foreign Minister rather than to Generalissimo Franco as head of state.

Thus the principal immediate effect of the action at Lake Success will be a new exchange of embassies with Franco. Senator Sparkman was careful to point out to the committee that this action would not signify any moral approval of "the policies or practices of the Spanish government; it merely indicates our desire, in the interest of orderly international intercourse, to return to normal practice." Actually, however, it implies considerably more than that. It suggests a reversion to what was a nineteenth century principle of American foreign policy, namely, the automatic recognition of all de facto governments without regard to their origin or their constitutional legitimacy.

It is precisely here, of course, that the unwisdom of the resolution of 1946 becomes manifest. Had the American statesmen at that time followed what Senator Sparkman now asserts to have been their private judgment and opposed the resolution, the United States would not now be put in to so delicate a position by supporting the move to repeal it. For if our announced desire to return to "normal practice" means a desire to return to the nineteenth century position that neither the philosophic premises nor the internal affairs of a foreign government are relevant to the question of diplomatic intercourse, then the demand will very likely arise that the same principle be applied in the case of the Communist government of Mao Tze-tung, which—whatever else it may be—is certainly a de facto regime.

The new resolution also means that Spain will now be admitted to the United Nations and that its voice will be heard in that body. Whatever may be Generalissimo Franco's philosophical attitude toward Western democracy and his personal feelings concerning Western statesmen, his representatives will be obliged by the logic of events to stand with them against the Soviet bloc. In other words, Spain will be drawn once more into the political orbit of the West and in the long run this fact can hardly fail to influence her domestic institutions.

Uniform Excise Tax

Defense spending may be running at an annual rate of 30 or 35 billion dollars by next June and it is expected to go still higher the following year. To support this scale of expenditure without incurring deficits of such size as to spell uncontrollable inflation heavy increases in taxes will be necessary. Some of the needed revenue can be obtained by raising individual and corporation income taxes but, as the National Association of Manufacturers says, about 60 percent of the income available for spending is not reached by the personal income tax. The NAM also points out that corporate income after taxes amounted to only 17 billion dollars last year before payment of dividends, whereas the amount of untaxed personal income amounted to an estimated 75 billion. It seems obvious, therefore, that much of the additional revenue needed to control inflation must be obtained from a variety of levies that will reach the bulk of consumers in lower income groups who either pay no income taxes or make only small contributions.

It is a thankless task to advocate resort to a comprehensive system of excise taxes, and the fact that it is being urged by the NAM is likely to intensify popular opposition to the proposal. As a matter of fact, the CIO has already issued a scathing indictment of the NAM plan. Taxpayers with incomes under $5000, it protests, will pay eight billion dollars in additional taxes "if they elect the kind of Congress that would accept the NAM sales tax proposal." The answer to this allegation is that the bulk of new revenue from taxes will have to be obtained in any case by taxing all the people, either directly or indirectly. The NAM points out, moreover, that if income taxes are excessive, the formation of capital will be hampered and consumers will then pay the bill in higher prices or lower living standards.

The NAM proposal is worth consideration, not merely because it affords a comparatively quick way of obtaining new revenue, but because it would replace the existing excise tax system which imposes heavy taxes on some industries, leaving others exempt. A uniform manufacturer's excise tax would end discrimination and put producers on an "equality in competing for such consumer dollars as may be available for consumption spending." (For obvious reasons the recommendations do not apply to taxes on alcoholic beverages and tobacco.)

The strongest argument in favor of the proposal is the pressing nature of the emergency that confronts us. To preserve the purchasing power of the dollar a great deal more revenue will have to be obtained through taxes, and there are definite limits to the additional tax burdens that can be imposed on individual and corporate incomes without impairment of the incentive to save income for investment purposes and produce goods for profit.

If the country were at peace, Government spending could be maintained at levels that would enable us to avoid recourse to regressive excise taxes. But under present conditions all the people, not part of them, have to make sacrifices in a common cause. And the sacrifices entailed by a comprehensive form of excise taxation would be compensated for by the greater price stability resulting from an increase in Government revenues and a reduction of Government deficits.

George Bernard Shaw

It will seem less than ever like the same old world without George Bernard Shaw, and the worst of it is there is none to take his place. Whatever the ultimate estimate of his dramatic work, he was certainly the greatest influence in the modern English-speaking theater. He was also the last as well as the cleverest of those public wits who made the earlier years of this century seem such a stimulating and interesting epoch, although there were some learned folk who, citing counterparts in late Hellenistic times or in the Sung dynasty, declared them to be prophets of decadence.

If it is true to say that Shaw owed a great part of his popularity to his power to shock and outrage his contemporaries (and post-contemporaries), it is also true that they were delighted to be shocked by him. He once boasted that he was nowhere so highly admired as in the United States, and attributed it to the fact that he had never in all his life said anything kind or approving about Americans. The infrequent objects of his approval were often, though not invariably, persons held in general detestation both in England and here. He sang by turns the praises of Mussolini, Hitler and Stalin.

Certainly, in his later years he said and wrote a good deal of nonsense, and his record of sour prognostications would have destroyed the reputation of any astrologer or journalistic news analyst. Shaw himself was never in the least perturbed by his mistakes. In July, 1939, for example, he was asserting categorically that there would be no war; three months later, nothing abashed, he was asserting with the same finality that the war was over. However, Shaw's snap pronouncements on public affairs were seldom taken seriously, and it is quite probable that he never expected or wished them to be. He had the reputation, which he did nothing publicly to discourage, of being a hard and close bargainer in money matters; yet those who had business dealings with him found him wholly reasonable and trustworthy. Few men, however, had a sharper understanding of the value of publicity or were more skilled in the arts of getting it.

But none were more mistaken than those who, whether contemptuously or affectionately, fell into the habit of dismissing him as an inspired buffoon or professional bad boy. To be sure, it is not easy to draw the line between what was said by him mainly for effect and what was said with passionate sincerity, but a residuum of sincerity was certainly there. Shaw, for example, meant everything he preached about socialism. He believed as ardently as any eighteenth-century philosophe in the perfectibility of mankind. He recognized of course the perverse and stubborn reluctance of a large part of mankind to be perfected, and this accounts for his contempt of the doctrines of liberalism, which were an obstacle to his plans of forcing everyone to be healthy, happy and secure. It is possible that his admiration for the great twentieth century tyrants, particularly Stalin, arose from his desire to see them as incarnations of the "benevolent despots," dreamed of by the early prophets of the Enlightenment.

And here we come to the greatest of the Shavian paradoxes. Notwithstanding all the originality and genius with which he expounded them, most of Shaw's philosophic ideas seem to have been derived from the stereotypes of eighteenth century thought, and he was in that respect an amazing anachronism.

Bell Report

Allow me to congratulate you for the stand of The Washington Post regarding American continued aid to the Philippines. The Bell Report in effect reflected your editorials and the findings of Correspondent Isaacs in the Philippines.

The Bell Report is, however, just the starting point. More remains to be seen in the way problems of the Philippines will be remedied. The condition precedent to American aid must not for a moment be lost sight of. The present administration in the Philippines must not take this condition precedent lightly. I pray that no deviations will be made.

If I pray for "cleaning house" in the Philippines, it is because I am a taxpayer of the Philippines. More so because the objects of American bounty must be made to realize that America has been and is for them rather than for the persons who have been or are elected to public office in the Philippines.

I also pray that the taxpayers in the United States of Philippine extraction will be afforded the full opportunity to have their say on American relief for the Philippines. They all have information available regarding this matter. Their people in the islands keep on telling them here about the sad plight of Uncle Sam's "nephew," Juan de la Cruz.

After all, it would seem fair to give a chance for the Filipinos here to give their views because they, more than the chosen representatives of the Filipinos, carry daily the badge of either honor or dishonor arising from the bungled affairs in their land of nativity. The Filipinos under the jurisdiction of the United States are more than 100,000.

Prince Georges Schools

Recently at a bipartisan political meeting at the University of Maryland, I asked Mr. Harry McNamee, president of the Prince George's County Board of Commissioners and candidate for reelection, this question: "Why was the county school budget for 1949-1950 cut 1/3 million dollars, yet the county ended the fiscal year with over ¾ million dollars surplus?"

In asking this question I pointed out what the cut had meant. Schools had no clerks—thus adding one more burden, and a big one, to our teachers and principals who are already teaching under difficult, over-crowded conditions; parents and P-TAs had to dig deeper into their own pockets for school materials and janitor supplies, and schools had to go without needed repairs.

Mr. McNamee assured me, the audience and the radio listeners that the full cut had been restored and that the schools did not have to do without their clerks after all. I told him I was aware of the $20,000 restored shortly after school began last year, but again he insisted that the full amount had been restored. After the meeting I again asked him if he had understood the question. We all are aware that clerks were rehired this fiscal year, but last year the cut had prevented it. His answer was vague and confusing.

A check with Marlboro the next morning revealed that the 1/3 million-dollar cut (except for the $20,000) was not restored to the 1949-1950 school budget. Just what was Mr. McNamee thinking about anyway?

Swimming Pools

I have no objection to the printing of Mr. Terris' October 28 letter on nonsegregation in District swimming pools, but why print a letter in which the logic is as fallacious as Mr. Terris' mathematics is?

Using the figures Mr. Terris gives, we see that 415,952 people attended segregated pools, but this does not necessarily mean they objected to nonsegregation. We can only take those who attended segregated, but not nonsegregated, pools as definitely opposed. Subtracting 236,471 (the number attending nonsegregated pools) from 514,952 gives us 179,481. It is revealed by inspection that the larger number (236,471) were not opposed to nonsegregation

Marauding Dogs

In June we bought a new house in the subdivision known as Pleasant Hills and set about fixing up our yard with shrubbery, flowers, etc. However, we discovered that there was a band of mongrel dogs roaming the neighborhood, trampling down the shrubbery and flowers, upsetting the garbage and trash cans and littering the yard. They also roamed around at night, barking and howling.

We therefore contacted the local officials (Mayor of Seat Pleasant) and the Prince Georges County police at Marlboro, and were informed that there was nothing that could be done about the situation unless the dogs harmed someone or actually damaged your property. All, this in spite of the fact that none of the dogs is licensed! Since when are dogs allowed to roam the streets at will with no licenses?

Falls Church Attorney

I am one of the maligned Falls Church "old timers" who have been berated and defended, lately, by a lot of "squatters" who have no leave to speak. Most of the "old timers" do resent change, but some of us try to maintain a sense of proportion and justice. Change will come! In the midst of all the hullabaloo and "smoke-screen," I say the facts are:

1. The city council is composed of able and patriotic citizens.
2. The city attorney is an able lawyer who is persecuted for his devotion to his client (the council, and through it, the city) which he has served with great success through most troublesome times.
3. Falls Church should never have given its schools to the county in the first place.
4. Until the present council and Mr. Van Meter came along, Falls Church was "sold out" to the county time and again.

I believe Falls Church was bled white by county bossism—I say "Falls Church first" and glory to those who help her. Let's strengthen the council by letting it pick its own attorney.

Victory for "Regulars"

In this republic, where the citizen-soldier is invariably exalted and the professional often forgotten, is may be well to point out that the Korean campaign now drawing to a triumphant conclusion was very largely a victory of the regular establishments.

The patriotic men of the Regular Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force are often overlooked in peacetime but the country is always glad to have them when there is fighting to be done.

Arlington School Costs

Because of his many misleading statements and inaccuracies, we of Arlington's citizens committee for school improvement had intended to ignore John Locke Green's tirades against our school program. We and others have tried to present the case for the $7,450,000 Arlington school bond issue openly and fairly in terms of the number of children who have to be taken care of and the clear and obvious shortages in school capacity.

Thirteen county-wide organizations making up the coordinating council for school bonds have indorsed the bond issue, as have many other civic and service organizations and leaders. Also, both major candidates for the county board have indorsed it.

With such broad support, we thought we might be able to ignore the treasurer's tirades. By his own admission, he has not visited any of our new schools. He has admitted that he has not been careful about the accuracy of his figures. He has beclouded the question of school construction needs with numerous misleading and irrelevant issues. We had hoped that the voters would come to understand the true nature of his campaign against adequate school facilities for Arlington's children. But in the event his letter of October 19—apparently sent to all registered voters in the county—his radio addresses, etc., may have raised doubts about Arlington's school program, this letter is addressed to a few of the main points which Mr. Green has tried to make:

School operating costs have risen, of course. But the figures Mr. Green uses on this point, like so many of his figures, are not even close to being accurate, despite the efforts of the school administration to give him correct figures. The facts are that between 1948 and 1950, per pupil operating expenditures rose less than one third of the $134 rise the treasurer claims took place.

Moreover, the moderate increase in the annual operating investment per pupil reflects the creation of a modern school system in place of the shockingly substandard system that Arlington had under the old regime. The public overwhelmingly demanded more adequately paid teachers, the elimination of classes of 45 to 50 pupils and the addition to the curriculum of such essentials as physical education, science laboratories and music. That is why the citizens voted 3-to-1 to have an elected school board which stood for modernizing the school program. In any case, the voters review the operating program of the schools every two years when they nominate and elect school board members. Whether teacher salaries are too high, or the curriculum is too broad, has no bearing on whether we need a bond issue for additional classroom space, when one realizes that there are now more children in Arlington of preschool age than there are in all 12 grades in the schools.

Another point of the treasurer concerns the cost per room of the new schools. Again, he used incorrect figures in spite of having been given accurate ones. Arlington's cost per room compares favorably with costs in the District of Columbia, Alexandria, and Montgomery County, Md. It also compares favorably with costs in Richmond and Lynchburg. These are the cities and counties that should be used as standards of comparison—not the small Virginia cities and rural counties.

There is no excuse in any campaign for falsifying figures. We regret that Mr. Green has taken so much of everyone's time with his inaccuracies. We regret that we have had to ask newspaper space to correct them. The time of all of us could be much better spent planning for relieving Arlington's currently overcrowded schools; studying future school population growth needs; further improving the curriculum, etc.

REED K. POND,
Chairman Citizens Committee for School Improvement.
Arlington.

Coaxing Italy On Reforms

By Marquis Childs

Frustrated Aid Goals

ROME, Italy — Nearly 400 Americans are stationed here in Rome to administer the Italian phase of the European Recovery Program, the Military Assistance Program and other functions growing out of the relationship with America. The number is certain to increase, thereby creating new administrative problems of housing, communication and so on, which in turn require more personnel.

Something like this is happening in every capital in which American aid is being distributed. Yet there is certainly a question whether, in spite of all this American supervision, the basic aims of the aid programs are being achieved.

A big fuss has been raised here over the revelation by American officials that most of the aid dollars seem to have gone to build up the gold-dollar position of the Italian government. That is to say they have gone into the channels of a cautious, conservative financial policy rather than into capital investment to create much-needed new jobs.

The American official chiefly responsible for this disclosure is now, it seems, to be fired. This is apparently because of the conviction at the top, both in the Italian government and the American representation here, that he needlessly disturbed relations between the two countries.

The way in which the facts of Italian financial life were disclosed—through a newspaper "leak"—may have been inept and ill-advised. But in my opinion the American taxpayer will find it hard to understand why American influence should not be exerted to persuade the Italian government to put through certain basic reforms such as compelling the rich to pay their share of the tax burden.

THE United States is taking the lead in building the defenses of the Atlantic community, including Italy. This will mean a great new burden on the American taxpayer in terms of billions of dollars. If it succeeds, the balance of power between the Communist and the non-Communist half of the world may be redressed and perhaps peace can be achieved.

But it is pretty clear that it will not succeed unless the European nations themselves do their share and at least in part pay their own way. Merely handing over weapons bought with American dollars will not be enough.

This gets down to the realities of the Italian economy and the reforms which many here believe to be essential. Unless these realities are analyzed and brought to light, Italy may get away with saying that she cannot afford to spend money on arms; that if America wants Europe rearmed, then America must foot the bill.

I talked about these things with a very wise Italian who has seen many governments rise and fall in this ancient capital. He said:

"I am inclined to agree with many of the criticisms made recently by your ECA administrator. But you see it is the way he made them. He had been talking like a mother-in-law. And in Italy we do not like mother-in-lawism."

THIS SUGGESTS, of course, the extreme difficulty of the American role. How to achieve the desired ends without assuming the character of a common scold lecturing to a proud people?

Significantly in this connection, the Communists are playing a passive game. Partly, to be sure, this is because their popular strength has declined. But it may also be partly on the theory that, given enough time, the American effort is bound to fail and then communism can step in.

It is not for lack of physical and human resources. They are carefully being hoarded. Edmund Stevens, correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor, has shown in a revealing series of articles from Rome that the hard core of communism in Italy is based on a trained and disciplined fighting force.

The partisan action groups enroll a minimum of 150,000 trained and experienced fighters. There is good reason to believe that they have extensive hidden munition dumps which the Italian police have never uncovered.

They are maintained with Moscow's help for the hour of showdown which would probably come at the outbreak of a general war. They can be resisted and overcome only by a people willing to sacrifice and fight for what they believe to be their own collective self-interest. The will to resist can never come solely through an infusion of American dollars no matter how massive.

Parking Violation

The ways of the police are often puzzling to a common citizen, but the other day, officer 469 of the Third precinct baffled me completely. While I was looking out of a restaurant window on G st. nw. near the AAA, I noticed a car parked with the "violation" flag showing on the meter controlling its parking space. About 12:30 policeman 469 came along, stopped, and began talking to the occupant of the car (Virginia plates 164-913). My lunch over shortly before 1 p. m., officer 469 was still talking to the occupant of the car and meter G 17-5 still showed a "violation."

Pigs And Policemen

CHICAGO.—The career of that august figure, Scott W. Lucas, majority leader of the United States Senate, is seriously threatened by the price of hogs and the surprising wealth of an elderly police captain.

As for the hogs, their price is down, and that traditionally spells trouble in rural downstate Illinois for any incumbent politician. As for the police captain, his name is Daniel A. Gilbert, and he is the Democratic candidate for sheriff of Cook County. He is not very good at catching the perpetrators of Chicago's frequent gang murders, and he is very good indeed at making money. These characteristics of his running mate are hurting Lucas badly here in Chicago.

Whether the hogs and the policeman together will be fatal to Lucas depends largely on how effectively Col. Jacob Arvey, the small, shrewd, energetic boss of Chicago's Democratic machine, performs his allotted task. Arvey's task can be understood in terms of simple mathematics.

The Republicans are sure to have a huge lead in rural downstate Illinois and in the Chicago suburbs. Arvey himself estimates this lead at around 350,000. If Lucas is to win, therefore, Arvey's organization must deliver this kind of majority to Lucas in the City of Chicago proper.

ARVEY'S admirers give him credit for being a remarkably perceptive organization boss. From the day he took over from the late Mayor Ed Kelly, they say, he recognized that the era of the old-fashioned machine candidate, whose only qualifications were obedience and a proper understanding of the value of patronage, was over. As a result, candidates of the stature of Mayor Martin Kennelly, Gov. Adlai Stevenson and Senator Paul Douglas were backed by Arvey, and won by whopping majorities.

Arvey's numerous critics say that Kennelly, Stevenson and Douglas were forced on Arvey by circumstances. However that may be, Arvey is now saddled with a candidate of a very different stripe, who looks the very prototype of the old-fashioned machine candidate. To Arvey's visible distress, Capt. Daniel Gilbert has become a major issue in this campaign.

The reasons are simple. First, Gilbert has amassed a fortune of well over a third of a million dollars, on a $9000 salary as chief investigator for the State's attorney. Second, in the 18 years Gilbert has held this job, there have been 187 gang murders (the most recent the killing of former Police Capt. William Drury, just before he was to testify before the Kefauver Committee) and not one of these murders has been solved.

THIS reporter spent an inconclusive but interesting evening with the controversial captain, as he went about his campaign duties. He spoke before a series of ward heelers' rallies, and always the burden of his address was the same: "Not a finger of proof has been laid upon me." This, though oddly phrased, is true. But his real punch line came at the end: "When I'm elected, my patronage is gonna go to the loyal members of the Democratic Party." This was always greeted with wild applause—understandably, since the sheriff of Cook County controls upward of two million dollars worth of patronage.

The captain looks like an elderly Shakespearean actor, and he is an entertaining companion, with a memorable vocabulary and a fund of gory reminiscences of Chicago's bad old days. Asked about his wealth, he replies that he has been "very fortunate" in speculation—and that is no doubt possible. As for the unsolved murders, the captain points out that it is difficult to deal with murder when it is organized as a business—even "the Feds," he says, only caught Capone on a "phony income tax rap." This may be reasonable too.

Yet the fact that the "richest cop in the world" is his running-mate is not helping Lucas. Lucas is persevering with what is called a "high-level campaign" with heavy emphasis on the crucial part played by the majority leader in the present international crisis. Yet in an atmosphere redolent of unsolved gang murders, lush payoffs by that shadowy organization, "the syndicate," and mysteriously rich policemen (Gilbert is by no means the only one) it is difficult to conduct a "high-level" campaign.

This is no doubt unfair, since Lucas is no more responsible for the dark doings in Chicago than he is for the price of hogs. Yet Lucas is still given a slight edge here. Fortunately for Lucas, the best the Republicans can offer here is an unctuous neo-isolationist. Everett M. Dirksen, much beholden to Col. Robert R. McCormick, of the Chicago Tribune. Here, as elsewhere, the Republicans have a big opportunity this year. But, unlike Captain Gilbert, the Republicans do not seem to be very good at grasping opportunities.

nouncement yesterday that the Air Force is working in the same field.

"The Air Force," he said without elaboration, "is also taking necessary action to develop further its capability to support the ground forces with atomic weapons."

Finletter declared that USAF tactical aviation must be increased and called it of "equal importance" with air defense and strategic air attack in the Air Force's mission. Prior discussions of the USAF role had stressed the latter.

Pace said that atomic and other new weapons under development by the Army "indicate the shape of the future." But, reflecting the popular reaction to prior optimism of some Army leaders over the prospects, added:

"We must avoid a false sense of security in the knowledge of our scientific advances. These new weapons are not yet in the hands of our troops and no weapons, however advanced, dispense with troops."

Dated Before Korean War

Much of the four semi-annual reports are dated, inasmuch as they refer to conditions, shortages, etc., before Korea. Nor was there much reference to the Far East fighting.

Johnson said that his original prediction that military unification would make possible savings at the rate of a billion dollars a year by the end of the 1950 fiscal year had been more than achieved by last June 30. He also declared the Nation's armed forces were in a greater state of readiness then than ever before in peace-time.

Before he was replaced by Secretary George Marshall, Johnson had been under heavy criticism. Some Congressmen and columnists attacked him, saying the United States was shown by Korea to be unprepared and that Johnson's economies were largely responsible.

Both Pace and Matthews said that the health of the Army and Navy had reached an all-time peak, while Finletter reported the health of the Air Force to be improving. All of the Secretaries declared that lack of adequate housing was harmful to service morale.

Johnson declared that racial relations were improving and that there were broadened opportunities for Negroes in the service.

"Investigations established," he said, "that the integration of the two races in military occupations, schools and living quarters did not represent insurmountable difficulties but brought a decrease in racial frictions."

Hope Amid Chaos

Ideal of United Europe Stirring Western Germany

(This is the last article in a series of five on conditions in Western Germany. The author has just returned from a journey to Bonn, Berlin, Munich, Dusseldorf and other population centers, where she interviewed political leaders, industrialists, social workers and labor leaders to gain an insight into German views on economic conditions, European defense and resistance to communism.

By Agnes E. Meyer
Post Reporter

Amidst social chaos, mental stress and general impoverishment, a new hope is dawning in the German breast. All Western Germany yearns for the speedy implementation of the Schuman Plan. The Germans cannot live without an "ideal." The ideal now is a united Europe in which the peoples of all nations can find their rights, their responsibilities and a wider world of brotherhood among men. The psychological repercussions of the Schuman Plan are just as important to the German masses as the economic possibilities for a bigger market and a better standard of living.

When I was in the Ruhr I interviewed a dozen or more of the leading steel, coal and chemical magnates, to evaluate their sincerity in regard to the Schuman Plan and their whole attitude toward the West as opposed to the East. I found them indignant about the ineptitude of our decartelization but unanimous in their wholehearted acceptance of the Schuman Plan.

Gunter Henle, chairman of the board of the great Klockner Steel Works at Duisberg, and one of the ablest of the younger industrialists, maintained that "the surest proof of our eagerness for the closest cooperation with the West lies in our immediate and enthusiastic response to the Schuman Plan. We can with good conscience give world opinion the assurance that German industry will not disappoint the hopes which are based upon our contribution to the defense of the West."

Hugo Stinnes went further and said: "The only solution for definitely winning the cold war is a customs union between Germany and France, with the door open to the Benelux countries, Scandinavia and, ultimately, Italy."

Peace Treaty Sought

The following week, when I was in Paris, I heard from two French cabinet officials that the enthusiasm of the Ruhr magnates for the Schuman Plan has weakened since the rearmament program has increased their orders and raised their production rates. I hope this is merely an expression of the very natural suspicion which the French have of all German sincerity. But if the Ruhr magnates prove to be hard bargainers and threaten the rapid implementation of the Schuman Plan, the German people will feel themselves betrayed and will sweep the conservative Christian Democrats out of power. Then nothing can prevent the nationalization of the coal, steel and chemical industries by a triumphant Social Democratic Party.

Equally important to the German people is the immediate realization of the peace treaty, whereby the occupation laws and the heavy annual occupation cost of four billion marks can be revised, and the Germans can become once more a respected nation among nations, with more responsibility for their own political, economic and social development.

If these two important steps could soon be taken, they would act as a shock therapy upon the German people, especially German youth, and a renewed sense of living would bring about a healthier mental and emotional atmosphere than exists in that country at present.

Berlin a Bastion

All the things I have said about the German state of mind applies only to the West Zone. Berlin is something all by itself. It is poorer, yet more democratic, more alive than any other German city. Its defiance of Communist aggression through sheer power of mind and spirit is an inspiration to all freedom-loving people. Berlin is the last brave outpost of civilization. It reminded me of the stockaded communities of our frontier days that endured incredible hardships and went about their business cheerfully under the daily menace of Indian attacks.

Yet Ernest Reuter, Mayor of Berlin, whose calmness in the face of the Russian menace is the result of constant danger constantly defied, well knows the different mentality of the West Zone. It was his acute awareness of this difference which led him to say to me: "The remilitarization of Germany has to be educationally prepared. First, it will be necessary for America and Britain to send some of their best troops over here. For there must never again be a German army. The Germans must become a part of a European army under a unified command. If the Germans see your troops arriving, their own will to resistance will be revived. The moral and military strength of the American people must become a source of strength to the German people."

Thus it is actually a blessing in disguise that France objected to the immediate raising of German military units. If we started recruiting in Germany now, we could raise a huge army of volunteers from among the unemployed, especially the unemployed refugees and expellees who still hope to get back to their homelands. But the morale of an army composed of the unemployed and the rejected would scarcely be very trustworthy.

On the other hand, if German youth were forced back into military life in its present undecided, bewildered and psychopathic frame of mind, they might well become a source of trouble and even of disloyalty to the Allied cause. But if the German peace treaty is implemented and the Schuman Plan becomes more than a mere promise, a new self-respect will begin to heal the innumerable wounds from which the Germans are suffering. The recruits which can then be drawn into the European army will be dependable allies and a source of strength against the Communist peril.

The President's Calling List

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday had the following White House appointments:

9:45 a. m.—George Allen, former RFC member, with Judge Ernest Tipton of Missouri's Supreme Court.

12:30 p. m.—Secretary of State Acheson.

1 p. m.—Lunch.

Roland Harriman Named by Truman As Red Cross Head

New York investment banker E. Roland Harriman will be the new head of the American Red Cross, President Truman announced yesterday.

Harriman, son of the railroad financier, E. H. Harriman, and brother of W. Averell Harriman, Mr. Truman's special assistant on foreign affairs, will succeed Secretary of Defense Marshall as president of the agency. Marshall had been head of the Red Cross since September 22, 1949.

The new president is a partner of the New York banking firm of Brown Brothers, Harriman & Co., and chairman of the board of the Union Pacific Railroad. He has been active in Red Cross work for several years, having been a member of its board of governors and later, vice chairman of the organization.

All So Unnecessary, Truman Says of Attempt on His Life

Building. He had some announcements to read, but first he grinned and acknowledged the ovation.

He said he wasn't running for anything. Then, with just a touch of acid mixed in with his chuckle, he said that the applause would have sounded mighty good in 1948. (That was the year when most reporters thought he would be an also-ran in the presidential race.)

Belittles Occurrence

Mr. Truman seemed determined to belittle the attempted assassination at Blair House on Wednesday.

There was no story as far as he was concerned, he said, about the world-shaking event. He was never in danger. The thing he hated about it was the killing of White House Policemen Leslie Coffelt and wounding of Policeman Birdzell and Joseph H. Downs.

It was all so unnecessary for a thing like that to happen, he said.

He had said earlier, at a ceremony in the White House rose garden, that he was "sick" over Coffelt's death. This was after he had taken his customary early-morning walk.

Mr. Truman, once Wednesday's melodrama was out of the way at his news conference, reverted to his old role as political warrior. He talked with some spirit about Franco Spain, about Helen Gahagen Douglas, who is running for a Senate seat, and about next Tuesday's congressional elections.

Puerto Rico Discussed

In discussing Puerto Rico—homeland of Griselio Torresola and Oscar Collazo, the two assassins—Mr. Truman seemed puzzled. He said he felt now, as he had always felt, that the Puerto Ricans ought to have the right to determine themselves whether they wanted to be free of the United States. He recalled that he was the first Chief Executive to name a native Puerto Rican governor. Thinking about these things, and the attempt on his life, he seemed to be asking—"Why?"

Mr. Truman spoke in terms of high praise of Mrs. Douglas, saying she had wholeheartedly supported the Administration's foreign policy. She is the Democratic nominee for Senator in California, and her Republican opponent is Representative Richard M. Nixon, who did much to expose Alger Hiss.

Mr. Truman said that it was going to be a long, long time before the United States sends an ambassador t oSpain.

He said, apropos Tuesday's election, that he still thought there would be a Democratic triumph—that things were getting better all the time.

"Mr. President," said Jack Doherty of the New York Daily News, "back in 1932 when President Roosevelt was shot at, a lot of reporters were caught off base in the train and didn't cover it. The President came back to the train and he dictated to them his own account of the shooting. A lot of us reporters were not in front of Blair House yesterday. Could you give us . . ."

Mr. Truman broke in and suggested that the reporter read all the newspapers. He suggested the New York Times, the New York Herald Tribune, the Washington Star, The Washington Post, and even the Times-Herald, which he called a sabotage sheet. There was laughter at this point.

Mr. Truman then went on to make the remark that there was no story as far as he was concerned.

He was asked by Warren Francis of the Los Angeles Times if he had considered the action of the Los Angeles City Council in directing Housing Administrator Tighe Woods to decontrol rents in that city.

The Chief Executive said he had directed Woods not to do anything about it. If the reporter wanted to know what he thought about it, he said, there ought not to be decontrol in Los Angeles.

Defends Mrs. Douglas

A little later, after talking about the Democratic Party's bright prospects in Tuesday's election, he went to the defense of Mrs. Douglas and called Reporter Francis' attention to what he was about to say.

Mr. Truman then charged that there had been a lot of misrepresentation in the case of Mrs. Douglas in the California press. The newspapers out there, he said, boycotted her most of the time or mentioned her in an unfavorable manner.

They've got a rumor now, he continued, that Mrs. Douglas is not wholeheartedly in favor of the foreign policy of the Untied States. He pointed out that, as a member of the House of Representatives, she had served the Administration well on the Foreign Affairs Committee. He said that she was wholeheartedly in accord with the President's foreign policy—which was, he added, more than could be said for most California newspapers.

He was reminded that a 60-nation committee of the United Nations had urged lifting of the boycott against Spain, and was asked if he had decided upon the appointment of an American Ambassador to Madrid.

Mr. Truman said he had no thoughts on that at all. Then he made the remark that it was going to be a long, long time before an ambassador was sent to Spain, and that the reporters would have plenty of time to think it over.

Attitude on Island

At the outset of the news conference—after Mr. Truman had announced the appointment of E. Roland Harriman as head of the American Red Cross and the appointment of 24 members of the National Science Board—he was reminded of a speech he made in Puerto Rico in 1948. In that speech, he said that the people of Puerto Rico should have the right to determine themselves what the island's relationship to the continental United States should be.

Did he still feel that way?

Mr. Truman said his sentiments had never changed. Then he went on to point out that Puerto Ricans have freedom of movement all over the United States; that he favored giving them their choice of freedom, statehood, or what they are voting on next Saturday. This is a proposed constitution, approved by Congress, which would put the islanders on a statehood basis, except that they wouldn't be entitled to Senators and Representatives in Washington.

He said that the Puerto Ricans seem to be satisfied, and apparently favored the new constitution. But whatever they wanted, he said, it was all right with him.

Praise of Mrs. Douglas Brings Nixon Comment

Representative Richard M. Nixon (R., Calif.), a candidate for the Senate in California, commented briefly yesterday on President Truman's hearty defense of his Democratic rival, Helen Gahagan Douglas.

"When the President speaks of Mrs. Douglas as being wholeheartedly in favor of the Administration's foreign policy," said Nixon, "does he mean, among other things, her vote against the Greek-Turkish loan, embodying the Truman doctrine to stop communism?"

It was noted by reporters that Mr. Truman, in praising Mrs. Douglas, said nothing about James Roosevelt, who is running on the Democratic ticket for Governor of California against Gov. Earl Warren, Republican incumbent.

Roosevelt, eldest son of the late President, is widely regarded as an underdog in the race. For a time in 1948, young Roosevelt boosted Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for the Democratic nomination for President.

The plump, 42-year-old Puerto Rican-born woman was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Edward W. McDonald after questioning by Secret Service agents. Lacking the bail money, she was placed in a cell.

MRS. ROSA COLLAZO
. . . wife of assassin

Her husband, 37-year-old Oscar Collazo, whom she described as a Puerto Rican revolutionist with a burning zeal to gain the island's independence, was wounded in the gun battle outside the President's home.

Mrs. Collazo was accused of conspiring with her husband, to injure the President of the United States.

Mrs. Collazo's arraignment came after 13 persons were detained here for questioning by Secret Service men. McDonald said warrants were being prepared here for Oscar Collazo and for two unidentified persons. The others, reported to be relatives and friends of Collazo, were released.

United States Attorney Saypol said Mrs. Collazo will be held pending "further inquiry or grand jury action."

Saypol said Secret Service agents learned that the Collazos were "ardent and violent members of the Nationalist Party of Puerto Rico, and dedicated to the overthrow of its government.

He added that a cartridge for a Luger pistol—the type used by Collazo in Washington—had been found in their apartment.

When Mrs. Collazo was confronted by Government men at her Bronx tenement home after the shooting fray, she defended her husband's act and said:

"Why should I be sorry? We are both members of the Nationalist Party."

The party is on the United States Attorney General's list of subversive organizations which "seek to alter the form of government of the United States by unconstitutional means."

Puerto Rico Police Round Up 400 Nationalists, Communists

Nationalist and Communist Parties, police arrested Juan Santos Rivera, Communist Party secretary; Saez Corales, president of the General Union of Workers, which is described by Governor Munoz Marin as a Communist front, and Pablo M. Garcia Rodriguez, son of the executive vice president of the Sugar Producers Association. Police said Garcia is a Communist.

Among the Nationalists arrested were Elio Torresola, brother of Griselio Torresola, one of the two who tried to kill President Truman. The brother was captured at Jayuya, a Nationalist stronghold south of San Juan. He was charged with malicious destruction of Federal property.

Torresola's sister, Doris, was also reported among those captured. She was taken from Albizu Campos' home, where she lived, to a hospital, suffering from a leg wound received two or three days ago.

Albizu Campos was defiant when he reached his prison cell, boasting that his part in the revolt was a glorious one. When newsmen came to see him later he was more composed.

His wife, in Havana, said his arrest was part of "the United States plan" to suffocate his life and stop "the Puerto Rican liberation movement."

The revolt was the most serious since the United States aquired Puerto Rico following the Spanish-American War in 1898. Governor Munoz Marin charged the uprising was a "conspiracy against democracy helped by the Communists," and that it had no real popular support.

Puerto Rico's Independence Party, a minority group formed in 1948, held both the Puerto Rican and United States governments responsible for the present situation in the territory.

Venizelos Resigns Premier's Post in Port Scandal Row

ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 2 (AP).—Premier Sophocles Venizelos today handed his resignation to King Paul I.

It was the third time that Venizelos, Liberal Party leader, had stepped down as head of the government in about a year of stormy political change. His latest government—a coalition of Liberals, Populists (Royalists) and Social Democrats—was formed only a month and a half ago.

Venizelos resigned after Constantin Tsaldaris, Populist leader and Vice Premier, had refused to withdraw from the government in connections with scandals involving millions of dollars at the Pireaus, Athens' port. The scandals were blamed on the Populist Party.

Tsaldaris said he had recommended that the King accept Venizelos' resignation, to be followed by formation of a Cabinet

Of Books and Brentano's

A few weeks ago, an irate art teacher in the Far West wrote a sizzling letter of criticism to Brentano's about a mailing piece we sent out showing our new selection of exclusive Christmas cards by what we called "prominent American and European artists." Not only were the cards not art, the letter said, but Brentano's was in fact rather brazen to intimate that such as Saul Steinberg, Robert Osborn (of Dilbert fame) Morris Graves, Loren MacIver and Toni Hughes were even elementary draftsmen. The criticism, incidentally, included our Paris cards by Utrillo, Van Gogh, Gaugin and George Grosz. There is, of course, room for a great deal of divergent opinion in art, as in everything, and we are rather stubbornly taking advantage of that to go on considering the cards lovely works of art. You might stop in to see for yourself. Especially unusual are the brilliant modern mobile cards in colorful plastic, designed for us by Toni Hughes. They may all be personalized, of course, although November is here and there won't be much more time . . .

Stationery gifts this year seem to display more imagination than usual. Have you seen the fabulous Norma four-color pencil? Quick as a wink, the lead changes to red, black, blue or green. It comes in a variety of metals, ranging from chrome ($4.50) to natural gold ($100.00) . . . or take a peek at "D" Lights. It's a tiny four-inch brass lamp which clips on to a book to form a perfect reading light. It's glare proof, and only $2.95, which makes it a practical gift for almost anyone . . . Norcross has come up with a Christmas note paper which is almost irresistible. It is decorated with pine boughs, and to make the illusion complete, delicately scented with that inimitable pine aroma. Nice for note to special friends at Christmas, or for the inevitable "Thank yous" and only $1.00 for a box of 24 notes and envelopes . . .

Two of the nicest calendars we've seen in many a day are The New England Calendar ($1.25), with 56 full-page photographs of charming countryside scenes opposite week-by-week reminder pads, and the lovely Alpine Calendar ($2.50) with a startlingly beautiful scene in full color of the Swiss Alps for each month.

Snead Grabs North-South Lead With 66

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

UNLESS SOME sponsor comes up with $200,000 for the radio-video package, you won't be seeing the Nats on television next season. Clark Griffith is hiking his price 100 per cent, and the prospect that there may be no buyers leaves him quite indifferent.

He doesn't think the $100,000 he received from radio-television revenue last season compensated the Washington club for the loss in attendance, and he isn't sure that a price tag of 200 Gs would cover the sag in 1951, either.

Povich

"There are too many television sets, and they're hurting," says Griffith. "Bucky Harris brought our club up from eighth to fifth last season, yet we drew nearly 100,000 fewer fans at the home games than in 1949 when we were in the cellar."

The venerable baseball merchandiser blames television alone, not the radio broadcasts. "When they hear the games on the air, it whets their appetite and they start drifting out to the park. Television leaves the fans too well satisfied and they stay home."

GRIFFITH admits one advantage of the television revenue. It's neat. There is no split for the visiting club. But video money is no complete substitute for bigger crowds at his ball park. Once they're in, his concession men sell them hot dogs, cokes souvenirs, and park their cars at splendid profit. A couple of years ago, the concessions black-inked $110,000 on the club's balance sheets.

He's in a business, he says, which if not run carefully can cost him a quarter million dollars in a poor season. Before last season started, he spent the $100,000 he was to get from radio-video by buying four players out of the Coast League. "And most any year, we can depend on our farm system to cost us around $100,000," he adds. "That means we have to get the fans in."

The Boston Braves, he pointed out, have already taken action to limit the televizing of their games after poor attendance last season. "And look at Pittsburgh. They led the National League in attendance even with an eighth-place ball team. There was no television in Pittsburgh."

GRIFFITH is worried about radio, too, in what he calls a completely unselfish way. "It isn't hurting major league attendance, and I always will believe it helps us that way, but it's killing the minor leagues, or at least driving them to the wall, and without minor league baseball there will be not be good baseball in the majors."

The nub of the trouble there, he says, is that big league games beamed into minor league territory saturates baseball interest in those towns and keeps the fans away from the local parks. "The minors fell off eight million in attendance last season, and are suffering. They have a right to cry. The majors have no right to blanket their towns with big league broadcasts.

"We get added revenue from the networks that broadcast our games into the sticks, but it is minor league blood money that we shouldn't take. I have told Commissioner Chandler that it is unfair, and I think he agrees, but we have to take emphatic action to help the minors. The difficulty is that we're mixed up in Government regulations that are hurting everybody."

GOVERNMENT regulations are, indeed, the rub. A year ago, the Department of Justice virtually ordered the big leagues to give permission for their games to be broadcast to all sectors of the Nation. The big stick held by the D. J. was a threat to declare baseball a monopoly because of agreements limiting the broadcasts to favor stations in major league territory.

In theory, the D.J. was acting in the best interest of the fans in the provinces who were being deprived of major league broadcasts. But it blocked out local interest in the minor league towns where baseball has its roots. As big a town as Newark, under the guns of broadcasts and video from the parks of the Yankees, Dodgers and Giants, has had to fold its International League franchise, Griffith points out.

"We ought to take up the case again with the Department of Justice," Griffith declares. "Last season's experience ought to convince them it won't work. We don't want the added revenue from network broadcasts during the season. We want to save baseball in the minors. That ought to be an interest of the Department of Justice, too."

Hoyas to Try Giant-Killer Role Tonight At Miami

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

MIAMI, Nov. 2.—Georgetown arrived by plane late this afternoon for tomorrow nights game with mighty Miami, and didn't exactly create a stir.

Against the unbeaten, eighth-ranking in the country, the Hoyas are 20 point underdogs. They say it isn't difficult to get 25 points if you shop around downtown.

The 38-man Georgetown squad immediately was transported to its hotel just ouside Miami Beach, and plans for a workout tonight were cancelled. Coach Bob Margarita thought it would be too far to go for practice and figured his boys would benefit more by attending a meeting and resting.

Half Backs Bugs Thompson and Dick Doyle both insist they will be ready but they are question marks with pesky ankle injuries. Loss of either or both certainly won't enhance Georgetown's chances. Passer Frank Mattingly is in good shape but he will have to contend with a team that's intercepted 19 passes in rolling over five opponents.

Despite the known prowess of Miami, Georgetown seems to be in a surprisingly cocky mood.

Coach Bob Margarita said, "If our line plays as well as it has in our last three games I look for a mighty fine ball game." Some of the Hoya players even have the temerity to ask, "Who's Miami beaten?"

Only 30,000 to 35,000 are expected. That's small for Miami but will be more than twice as large a crowd as Georgetown has performed before this season.

Children Should Be Taught to Swim Shortly After Birth, Instructor Says

By Frank Frawley

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2 (AP).—Children are born with only two fears, those of noise and of falling. That's why, Crystal Scarborough said today, it's no trick to teach newly-born babies to swim. She's been doing it for 26 years.

A swimmer all her life and mother of 13-year-old June Scarborough, Pacific Coast junior freestyle champion, Mrs. Scarborough has had pupils only a few days old. She says they take to water just like ducks.

"Every child should be taught to swim shortly after birth," Mrs. Scarborough says. "Each year in the United States 8000 or more children drown, most of them in swimming pools. I feel I am giving these children of mine life insurance."

While she was explaining that, 11-week-old David Lawrence Berman was swimming 25 feet across the big outdoor, heated pool in the rear of her Leimert Park home.

SOME OF the babies paddle about the pool attired in hand towels, some wear swim suits fashioned from tops of their mothers' nylon hose. The pool is kept heated to 90 degrees, winter or summer, and Mrs. Scarborough's pupils do their swimming under water, "because it imposes less strain on their hearts."

Ten-month-old Kathleen Mitchell hasn't learned to talk, yet she follows every command of her swimming coach. She does "dolphins," or water somersaults, then takes off under water to swim the full length—45 feet—coming up every few strokes for air. If by chance she gets any water in her mouth she blows it out like a whale.

Mrs. Scarborough pours water over the babies' heads before she takes them under the surface, and finds its easy to teach them to blow bubbles with water running down their faces.

Mrs. Scarborough has taught 7500 youngsters to swim. She calls it much more difficult to teach children of 3 to 5 to swim because they have acquired fears and inhibitions from parents and playmates.

Sam's 205 Tops Palmer And Ferrier By 2 Strokes

By Ken Alyta

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 2 (AP) Sammy Snead, never playing better golf, came slamming through the third round of the North and South open tournament with a six-under par 32-34—66 today to charge into the 54-hole lead by two strokes with a 205 total.

Fazio Has 216

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 2—George Fazio, of Woodmont Country Club in Washington, D. C., shot a five-over par 77 in the third round of the North and South Open golf tournament here today, giving him a 216 total.

His three-day spree of 68-71-66 left him 11 under par and two shots in front of Johnny Palmer, Badin, N. C., the leader through the first two rounds, and Jim Ferrier, husky San Franciscan, who is No. 2 money winner this year back of Snead.

Palmer three-putted the last hole for a par 72 today, while Ferrier also needed three putts there, but earlier misery on the way to the carpet gave him a total of six for 71.

Lone remaining serious challenger going into tomorrow's final 18 holes was Tommy Bolt, former Texas campaigner, now registering out of Durham. He had 68 today, for 208, three strokes back of Snead.

Sharing the spotlight with Snead's sizzling round was the fourth hole-in-one in two days. This one was bagged by Arthur Doering, Richmond, Va., professional, who aced the 206-yard fifteenth to help build a 71 for 216.

Snead's 66 saw the White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., slugger play a near perfect round. He said he never hit better iron shots in all his Pinehurst appearances. His tee shots were their usual booming self, and, to disprove the theory that putting is his weakness, he tossed in a 50-footer for an eagle three on No. 8 and a 40-footer for a two on No. 18.

If Sammy has another 66 in his system tomorrow he can tie the event record of 271 set by Ben Hogan. A year ago Snead's winning score over the 6952 yards of the No. 2 Pinehurst Country Club course was 274.

Snead missed only one green, the short sixth, but he still got his par three there. He was out in 32 with birdies on No. 3 and No. 4 and that eagle on No. 8.

Bill Hawkins Scores 3 as Quantico Wins

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Nov. 2. Eddie LeBaron's deceptiveness and Bill Hawkins' three touchdowns gave Quantico's Marines a 33-14 victory over Youngstown College tonight.

LeBaron, former College of the Pacific star quarterback, pitched out to Bill Hawkins for the winners' first touchdown, piloted the Marines to their second, passed them to their third and sparked them to two other drives in the second and third quarters, when Quantico did all of its scoring.

Rickey's Job Goes to Bavasi And Thompson

BROOKLYN, Nov. 2 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers today named Fresco Thompson and Emile (Buzzy) Bavasi, two of Branch Rickey's brightest aides, to fill the big shoes of the departed general manager.

Both Thompson and Bavasi were appointed vice-presidents by President Walter O'Malley, who said they will share the general managership duties Rickey handled so ably during the past eight years. The 69-year-old Mahatma was both president and general manager until he resigned last week.

Next on O'Malley's agenda is the managership. Right now Burt Shotton, Rickey's field boss, still is the manager. But the betting around Brooklyn's headquarters was that Harold (Pee Wee) Reese, Dodger captain and shortstop, would be at the helm when spring training time rolls around.

Redskins' Attendance 10,000 Below 1949

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The Redskins are not only losing football games, but customers as well.

Home attendance for the first three games this season is about 10,000 lower than attendance for the first three Griffith Stadium games last year, unofficial figures yesterday showed.

While 82,380 saw the local football pros play the New York Bulldogs (now the Yanks), Pittsburgh Steelers and New York Giants last year here, only 72,546 have turned out for games with the Chicago Cardinals, New York Giants and Pittsburgh Steelers this season, attendance figures in an Associated Press survey disclosed.

While attendance in the league as a whole is about 85,000 less than last year, the Redskins' slump is surprising for a number of reasons.

The team had an amazingly successful exhibition season, sweeping its five preseason games to stimulate the sale of season tickets. Some 18,000 of the 20,000 available season books were sold.

Another expected box office boost was the acquisitions of Bill Dudley, who was counted on to pull in many Virginia fans who remembered him as an All-American at the University of Virginia.

Then, too, home games are not being televised this season. They were in 1949, yet the crowds are off this season. Redskins' road games are being televised and money received from this will probably offset the loss of attendance at local games.

Of course, the Redskins' decline at the gate could be a reflection of the team's wretched record to date—only one victory against five straight losses. At this stage last year, the team had won three games, lost three and tied one.

But the Redskins still have two good things going for them—a favorable, from an attendance standpoint, home schedule remaining and Charlie Justice. The Philadelphia Eagles, here on November 12, and the Cleveland Browns, here December 10, will undoubtedly pack 'em in the aisles.

As for Justice, he demonstrated his ability as a drawing card when more than 27,000, the largest crowd of the local season so far, watched him make his debut against the Chicago Cardinals three weeks ago. Justice is given credit for enticing at least 5000 of those fans.

Watner Says He Rejected $200,000 Offer for Colts

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 2 (U.P.). Abe Watner, president of the National Football League's Baltimore Colts, said tonight he turned down a $200,000 offer for the team from a Brooklyn, N. Y., businessman who wanted to switch the franchise to that borough.

He said the offer was made last month by a local advertising agency acting for Alex Radutzky, president of the Independent Candy Co. "I'm not interested," Watner said he told the agency.

But Watner said Radutzky wrote him later, asking him not to make a final decision "until the Colts play their last game of the season."

Colonials Confident

Scarbath's Injury Gives Terps Chance to Alibi, Says GW Soph

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Now Maryland has an alibi if it loses to George Washington Saturday at College Park.

That was the reaction of one G. W. sophomore to the news that the Terps' crackerjack Quarterback Jack Scarbath will miss the game because of a shoulder separation.

"We weren't afraid of Scarbath anyway," the player said. "We beat him and Joe Petruzzo and Dick Modzelewski and the rest of Maryland's big wheel sophs last year in our freshman game, 18-13. We can do it again."

The young man was considerably more outspoken than his Coach Bo Rowland. Bo, usually loose with his words around the banquet table, has clammed up tight on the subject of G. W.'s chances in the Maryland game.

He probably doesn't want to make a provocative statement that might be tacked up in the Terps' dressing room by Jim Tatum to arouse his boys.

The fact is that GW very definitely has an outside chance of winning—even better than that, now that Scarbath is out. The Terps should be weaker with inexperienced Bob DeStefano and Frank Armsworthy in that key position.

Even with Scarbath playing, the Colonials were a threat. Any team with passers such as Andy Davis and Bob Cilento, with Charlie Jones, Charlie Butler, Bill Szanyi and Jimmy Kline as receivers, is a threat to any team.

Here's Where You Can Get Tickets For Terps-GW Game

Here's where to buy tickets for the Maryland-George Washington game Saturday at Byrd Stadium: Fairway Sports Store, 1328 G st. nw.; Mitchell's, 2806 14th st. nw.; Bethesda Sports Mart, 7012 Wisconsin ave. nw.; Capital Airlines (Statler Hotel office), 16th and K sts. nw.; University of Maryland Ritchie Coliseum; Champion Sports Inc., 816 13th st. nw., and rear of Lisner Auditorium, 21st and H sts. nw.

Syracuse Whips Fort Wayne, 92-77

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 2 (AP).—The Syracuse Nationals uncorked a blistering attack in the fourth period tonight to fashion a 92-77 victory over the Fort Wayne Pistons before 3456 fans in the National Basketball Association opener here.

Grimsley Gives Nod to Texas Over SMU

By Will Grimsley

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 (AP).—Can Texas topple Southern Methodist from its No. 1 perch in the national football standings?

The odds-makers say no. They rate the Mustangs 6½ points favorites. Other experts give a one-to-three touchdown edge.

Here's where we lose our union card. We pick Texas in the upset of the day.

We also like Washington over California and Army over Penn in the other big ones.

Score to date: 271 right, 34 wrong, 16 ties. Pct. .760.

TEXAS OVER SMU: The hefty Longhorn line halts Kyle Rote.

WASHINGTON OVER CALIFORNIA: A young man named Heinrich and another named McElhenny combine talents to end Pappy Waldorf's long Pacific Coast winning streak.

ARMY OVER PENN: Al Pollard outshines Francis (Reds) Bagnell.

MIAMI (FLA.) OVER GEORGETOWN: The Hurricanes improve their post-season bowl chances with win No. 6.

MICHIGAN OVER ILLINOIS: The Wolverines' Bennie Oosterbaan said he didn't intend to let Army ruin his conference schedule.

KENTUCKY OVER FLORIDA: Babe Parilli writes new passing exploits as the Wildcats move a step nearer a perfect campaign.

OHIO STATE OVER NORTHWESTERN: If we had to pick a team we'd rather not meet on a Saturday afternoon right now it would be the powerized Buckeyes.

LOUISIANA STATE OVER MISSISSIPPI: The up-and-down Bengal Tiger stops Ole Miss' John Dottley.

PRINCETON OVER COLGATE: Charley Caldwell's single-wing sharpies move closer to the Ivy League championship.

WASHINGTON AND LEE OVER VIRGINIA TECH: The Generals prove themselves a major factor in the Southern Conference race.

The others:

One Hitter Contender in Field of 4

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

PIMLICO, Nov. 2.—The sporting Pimlico Special, winner-take-all event, highlights tomorrow's program here as the Maryland Jockey Club ushers in the first of a 13-day program.

For the first time in many years the daily cards will be devoid of steeplechase tests. In all, four added money fixtures will be run during the session. In addition to the Special, the Pimlico Gold Cup, Futurity and Marguerite Stakes will be decided.

Post time for the meeting will be 15 minutes earlier than the time which prevailed at Laurel. The first race is scheduled for 1:15 p. m., with daily double windows closing 15 minutes before first post.

Although, the mile and three sixteenths Special did not draw any potential handicap champions, the four candidates for the fourteenth running should provide an interesting contest.

Royal Governor Likely Choice

The overnight field includes Mrs. Esther du Pont Weir's Royal Governor, Greentree Stable's One Hitter, Palatine Stable's Chicle 2nd and Lewis J. Shaw's Abstract. Under the weight for age conditions of the test, all will carry 126 pounds.

Royal Governor is likely to carry the chief support in the Special. The Pilate gelding earned his invitation to compete in the Widener Handicap. Although he has but one stake triumph to his credit this season, Royal Governor looks all over the one to beat.

In his lone Maryland appearance this fall the 6-year-old impressed observers by racing to a convincing score in an overnight six furlongs dash. During his lifetime career he has started 70 times, amassing $251,300, mainly through 21 wins.

One Hitter looks the huskiest of the other candidates. The Shut Out colt came in to prominence this year when he turned back Noor on two occasions. His Manhattan Handicap triumph gained him a starting berth tomorrow. Teddy Atkinson will be on from New York City to handle the Greentree 4-year-old.

Inseparable Is 11th-Hour Scratch

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 2.—Inseparable was pulled out of the winner-take-all Pimlico Special tonight leaving four horses for the annual race tomorrow.

Inseparable was included in the list of five horses entered for the race earlier today, but Owner Allie E. Reuben later decided not to ship his horse from Garden State Park at Camden, N. J.

Bill Bennings Says:

These are happy days for Augustino Catalano, the Arlington County boy who once was a student at Staunton Military Academy. He is not only riding horses which he likes to do but is making a big success of the job. During the Laurel meeting he really came into his own, leading the other jockeys by a margin that made it "no contest." In all, the popular apprentice piloted 21 winners. Along with an improvement in the weather Catalano's presence must have been a factor in sending the betting average slightly over last year. He is a modest youngster and appears to be the type who will carry on when his apprentice days are over. Big weekend doings at Pimlico. See you on the rail.—BILL.

They Fished For Fish But Got Sardines

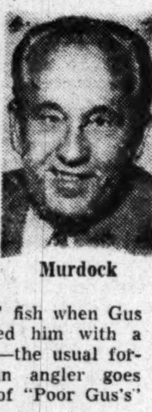
By Ralph Murdock

RAY WILSON, local sports commentator, and two of his pals, Bob Martin and W. O. "Smitty" Smith, took advantage of Wednesday's sunshiny weather and went fishing out of Deale, of Deale, Md. The three only took advantage of the sunshine —not the fish.



Murdock

Literally, Bob Martin ended up with the "most" fish when Gus Berlitz presented him with a can of sardines—the usual formality when an angler goes fishless in any of "Poor Gus's" fishing boats.

BARNEY BARNETT, his wife Katherine and his brother-in-law John Berberich, nabbed 17 stripers the same day from the "Lazy K," Barney's newly acquired cabin cruiser. Herring Bay and Fairhaven Cove was the scene of action. The Barnetts operate the Knotty Fine Food Shop at Deale, where fishing information pertaining to the tides, wind velocity, and weather conditions on the bay are given gratis. The phone number is West River 6123.

Harold Wild, of Hyattsville, Md., fishing from an outboard motorboat at the same location, nailed seven stripers up to two pounds each. Burdette Gillilan, South Arlington, Va., got one—a 3-pounder. Bill Steel and party from Richmond, Va. captured 10 beauties at the Flagpond which ranged from 3 to 4½ pounds.

Fishing Tips:

ROCKFISH—The big ones are at Eastern Bay, off Bloody Point Light. Wire lines, bottom trolling with eels and large spoons assure better results.

PANSIZE ROCK BASS—Herring Bay should be tops—also lower Potomac River near Blackistone Island.

YELLOW PERCH—The Severn River is the best spot. Minnows available.

'Handicapped' Jim Konstanty Most Valuable

By Whitney Martin

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—(AP)—Jim Konstanty, the Phillies' man of the hour—about 4 p.m. on working days—has been named the National League's most valuable player for 1950, again proving that the best way to become an outstanding major leaguer is to be a little different.

Phil Rizzuto was chosen the American League's most valuable. Phil is just about the smallest player in the majors, with a physique more adapted to crawling through drain pipes to rescue stray cats than to playing baseball.

Konstanty wears glasses, and although there are other ball players who wear glasses the practice isn't exactly common.

It isn't recommended that young fellows go out and strain their eyes so they can become good relief pitchers and win most valuable player awards, or even soak themselves in water and then stand in the hot sun to shrink a bit so they can become star shortstops, but the fact these two handicapped athletes have made good in such a big way should encourage other lads without 20-20 vision or house-moving physiques.

Konstanty's choice will meet with the same general approval as that of Rizzuto, and again it couldn't happen to a nicer guy. The big, easy-going lug is one of the most approachable and affable players in the game.

How a man can live without nerves is a mystery, but big Jim does it. He's about as jumpy as a 10-ton safe. Before the opening game of the World Series in which he was a surprise starter he was, outwardly at least, the most serene man in the park, sitting there on the bench as loose as gravel and exchanging banter with those about him, his mobile face creased by a big grin.

The choice of a most valuable player is delicate business, as circumstances so often enter the picture. Maybe Konstanty would have won the honor had the Phils lost out in a close finish, but the tendency always is to favor a player on a championship club.

Konstanty has his record of winning or saving innumerable games to back him and that's an advantage a pitcher has. There is no definite yardstick to measure the value of, say, Eddie Stanky, but observers have a pretty good idea of what his fiery presence meant to his team.

Trainers Can Win Tie for Division Title

By Bill Gilbert

For the second time in five years, Roosevelt's Rough Riders will attempt to play the role of spoilers when they meet heavily favored McKinley Tech's Trainers in an Interhigh League game at 3 p. m. today at Tech.

Tech, with two wins and a tie, can clinch a tie for the Group II championship, but the Trainers' road to the title game will be roughened a bit if history repeats

In 1946, after the Trainers already had clinched a playoff berth, the underestimated Rough Riders spoiled their dreams of an undefeated season with a 12-7 victory that ranks as one of the all-time major Interhigh upsets.

That was Ed Solomon's first year as head coach at Tech, and this time, "Solly" is not brushing off Roosevelt's chances. He's been driving his boys hard all week, not giving them much of a chance to think about an easy victory.

The scoring punch today will rest on Halfback John Wege, a good passer and powerful runner, and Scatback Benny Colandreo.

Solomon says that, "We don't have any real stars on this team. If everybody plays together, we usually click. But we have to have everyone working together."

Roosevelt Coach Pete Labukas, who was still attending George Washington U. when Roosevelt upended Tech in '46, will have Bobby Smithers, Bill Smith and Tony Grimaldi going for him in the backfield on offense. Smithers and Smith both pass and run well.

Labukas is unimpressed with his team's chances, but does not say that Roosevelt will lose. "We know we're underdogs," Pete says, "and we know Tech is good."

In another league game today, Coolidge is at Eastern, that game also starting at 3 p. m.

CU's Ennis, Mauiri Play Last Home Game Tomorrow

More than a dozen veterans will make their last home appearance in Catholic University football uniform tomorrow when the Cards play host to Gallaudet College at 2:30 p. m.

The list includes Bucky Ennis, the best all-around halfback developed at CU in a decade; Joe Mauiri, one of the few triple-threat quarterbacks in the school's history, and such dependable linemen as End Billy Maher, Guard Cliff Sisler and Tackle Gene Higgins. Their departure will make a terrific dent in CU's football future.

Hayes Will Miss Tennessee Game

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Nov. 2 (AP).—The University of North Carolina's chances of victory in Saturday's football game with Tennessee at Knoxville were jarred today by the announcement that Billy Hayes, senior fullback, would not make the trip.

Hayes of Arlington, Va., received a fractured cheek bone in the William and Mary contest last week and has not been released by the team physician.

'Pee-Wees' Battle

The "Pee-Wee" 75-pound division of the Metropolitan Police Boys' Club Football League winds up its first-half tournament at Fairlawn Field in Anacostia tonight with Club No. 10 battling Club No. 4 for the championship at 8 o'clock.

At National Horse Show

Virginian Circus Rose Leads Open Jumping

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 (AP).—Circus Rose, 5-year-old gray mare from Hi-Rock Farm, Warrenton, Va., went into the lead here today for the Open Jumping Championship of the National Horse Show by winning the second event of a three-day touch and out competition.

Meanwhile, the United States equestrian team won the first event of the three-day international low score competition challenge trophy with a faultless performance. Great Britain was second and Mexico third.

Circus Rose, winner of the Open Jumping crown of the Harrisburg, Pa., show last week, was ridden by Joe Green. She was the only one of 32 horses contesting the 10-obstacle course to finish without a fault. Hero, from Meadow Brook Stable, N. C., is in second place.

Tonight, Black Watch, a black gelding owned by Mrs. Don J. Ferraro of New York, tied Circus Rose for the open jumping—knockdown and out lead by winning the final event of a three-day competition. This gave Circus Rose and Black Watch 10 points each.

Black Watch was one of six horses to compete the 10-jump course without a knockdown, as 39 others faulted. In a jump-off, Black Watch jumped clean again, the only horse to do so. Circus Rose faulted on the third barrier in the initial tour of the course.

Other Washington, D. C., area entrants to place high today were:

Martin Vogel, jr's, Bartigon of Warrenton fourth in the Jockey Club Cup (horses suitable to become hunters).

Col. and Mrs. H. H. Polhl's Fitzrada of Leesburg, Va., second in Working Hunters (any weight).

Morton W. Smith's Royal Chief of Middleburg, Va., fourth, and Bartigon fifth in the $300 Green Hunter stake.

Roxhill Stables' Lariat of Woodbrook, Md., fifth in Class 114C knock and out.

Circus Rose tied for second with Millarden Farm's My Goodness of Anville, Pa., in Class 114-$1250 knock down and out final.

Mrs. Loula Long Combs Radiation of Lee's Summit, Md., first in single harness ponies (not exceeding 14.2).

The United States Civilian Equestrian Team which wasn't organized until seven weeks ago brought the Madison Square Garden crowd up with a roar as the final member completed the hazardous, eight-jump course.

On the team are two women, Norma Mathews, 27-year-old rancher of Sacramento, Calif., Mrs. Carol Durand, a 32-year-old Kansas City housewife, and Arthur McCashin, 40-year-old Pluckemin, N. J. gentleman farmer.

The Mexican Army team won the General Manuel Avila Camacho Trophy for International jumping teams tonight. Only a disqualification of the British team, however, gave Mexico the Camacho Trophy. W. H. White of England crossed the baseline border on his mount, thus eliminating his team under the rules.

Coast Slugger Fights Wagner at St. Nick's Tonight

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 (AP).—Irish Bob Murphy, touted as a terrific slugger on the Pacific Coast, makes his eastern debut tomorrow night against Dick Wagner, the light heavyweight division's "trial horse," in the main 10 at St. Nicholas Arena.

The socking sailor has been established a 1-to-3 choice on the strength of a record which shows 44 knockouts in 52 pro fights.

Only 2000 fans or so will watch at the small arena, but a television audience of several millions will catch it via TV. (WNBW will telecast the bout and WMAL will broadcast the bout in Washington.)

Parker-Gray Routed, 33 to 0

Rubin Jarvis scored two touchdowns on runs of 7 and 14 yards to lead Booker T. Washington of Norfolk to a 33-0 triumph over Parker-Gray High of Alexandria last night at Alexandria.

It was the fifth consecutive Virginia High School Conference victory for the visitors. Parker-Gray has an overall record of two wins, one loss, and a tie, and has a 1-3 mark in the conference.

| | | | | | |
| Parker-Gray | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |

Carolina A&T And Tennessee Play Tonight

North Carolina A. and T. College will rule a slight favorite over Tennessee State College when the interconference rivals meet tonight at Griffith Stadium in the ninth annual Capital Classic.

The Aggies, coached by Bill Bell, former Ohio State All-American tackle and former Howard mentor, will bring an impressive 5-1-1 record into the battle, having scored 108 points against their opponents' 13 and unscored on in the CIAA.

Big gun in the Carolinians' offense is expected to be William "Red Fox" Jackson, sophomore quarterback of Alexandria, Va., who will be supported by a line averaging 210 pounds and a trio of stellar backs, Park Smith, Bill Meadows and big Jim Fisher, 215-pound fullback.

This quartet will match power with two Tiger standouts, Carl Carter, a fine passer, ans Eddie Claiborne, fullback.

Coach Henry Kean's eleven has a 4-2 record, having lost to Wilberforce, 6-0, and Langston, 13-9.

Classic festivities will begin at 3 p. m., with a U Street parade, with the kickoff set for 8:30 p. m., preceded by a 15-minute "miniature classic" between two 90-pound midget elevens of the Southwest and No. 2 Police Boys Clubs.

The half-time show will feature the crowninv of "Miss Capital Classic" by Tiny Bradshaw, orchestra leader, and music by the 120-piece A. and T. College Band and the prize-winning Booker T. Washington High School Band of Norfolk, Va.

Chisox's No. 4 Follows Ol' Luke in Retirement

CHICAGO, Nov. 2 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox, who recently retired veteran Shortstop Luke Appling, today retired his respected "No. 4" uniform.

The 20-year Sox infield mainstay officially ended his playing career yesterday. He agreed to sign a one-year contract to manage Memphis of the Southern Association, a Sox farm club.

Gilchrist, Thomas Added to Cooper, Pasco Fight Card

Two more of the District's outstanding fighters have been added to the boxing show at Turner's Arena next Monday night which features a 10-rounder between Jimmy Cooper, local featherweight champion, and Rudy Pasco, highly-touted French-Canadian.

Matchmaker Gabe Menendez announced that he has closed out a five-rounder between Pat Thomas and Eddie Gilchrist, promising young local lightweights.

Slowing Noted In Bank Loans Here in Week

By S. Oliver Goodman

The first full reporting week since the recent tightening of credit controls by the Federal Reserve Board resulted in a slowdown in Washington bank loans.

For the week ended October 25, loans of the 17 Washington banks which are members of the Federal Reserve totaled $289,390,000 as compared with the previous week's all-time high of $289,527,000.

Business loans dipped to $120,707,000, against $120,810,000 in the previous week. Real estate loans, which had been climbing steeply, leveled off to $96,692,000 against $96,424,000.

Miscellaneous loans, including the vital consumer credit, showed an expansion to $69,090,000 from $68,744,000. Loans to brokers and dealers in securities displayed a drop to $1,968,000 from $2,588,000.

Individuals and businesses here drew down their savings accounts sharply during the week, further contributing to the current high level of spending. Demand deposits as of October 25 totaled $807,625,000, against $831,861,000 in the previous week.

GAS REPORT: Washington Gas Light Co. and subsidiaries yesterday reported consolidated net income of $1,894,985 for the first nine months, an upturn of $1,013,326 over the same 1949 period. September resulted in a net loss of $211,051, compared with a deficit of $147,628 in like 1949 month. Operating expenses for the month increased $206,087 over last year, principally due to an adjustment in Federal income taxes for the higher rates recently legislated.

WHO'S NEWS: A. J. Somerville was honored by the board of directors of the National Metropolitan Bank with a special resolution on his birthday anniversary. ## Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, Nov. 2 (AP).—A last-minute spurt by soybeans featured a firm market on the Board of Trade today.

While the rampaging bean market took the play toward the close, other sections of the list had spearheaded by early advance. New seasonal highs were set by all oats, all soybean oil, all corn except December, and July rye and July soybeans.

Wheat closed 1⅛ lower to ¾ higher; corn was 1⅜ to 1⅝ higher; oats were 1 to 1⅝ higher; rye was 2⅛ to 2½ higher; soybeans were 5 to 6½ higher, and lard was 7 to 15 cents a hundred pounds higher.

Beans went to their best prices since last July, when the Chinese boom in July beans was setting the market's pace. Since October 14, only a little more than two weeks ago, beans have skyrocketed 39½ to 41½ cents a bushel. Minimum initial margins are 30 cents a bushel.

New York Cotton

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 (AP).—Cotton futures declined $1.45 to $2.20 a bale today under pressure of liquidation and hedge selling which found only limited mill demand.

The market was influenced partly by higher ideas on the next Government cotton crop report. Private survey released today estimated the 1950 crop at almost 10,500,000 bales, or better than 600,000 bales above the Government's October forecast of 9,869,000 bales. Previously there had been ideas in the trade of an increase of some 100,000 to 200,000 bales, based on the more favorable weather that has prevailed over most of the cotton belt during the past month.

Steel Shares Lead Upturn In Slow Deals

New York, Nov. 2 (AP).—The stock market advanced decisively today in the slowest trading in nearly two months.

Demand centered on steel shares most of the day. Toward the close oils stepped into the limelight.

Buying in other major groups was never very aggressive and many issues responded easily to only small orders.

Only 1,580,000 shares of stock changed hands, the smallest total for a full day since September 7. Business Wednesday amounted to 1,780,000 shares.

| WHAT STOCKS DID | Thur. | Wed. |
|---|---|---|
| Advances | 677 | 522 |
| Declines | 190 | 333 |
| Unchanged | 230 | 298 |
| Total issues | 1097 | 1153 |

Some brokers claimed the approaching elections on November 7, clamped down on trading activity.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 60 cents a share to $82.90, the largest over-all gain in around two weeks.

Only two of the 15 most active issues declined — Socony-Vacuum at $23.75 and Boeing Aircraft at $33.25, each down 12 cents a share.

General Motors, the most active issue, moved up 75 cents to $50.75. Buying was influenced by hopes of a generous yearend dividend at an approaching directors' meeting. Chrysler also did well, tacking on 87 cents at $75.62.

Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing turned in a sparkling performance with a jump of $6.75 at $136.75 a share. This was in addition to Wednesday's rise of $5.25. The company just announced plans to split the common stock on the basis of four shares for one.

Chesapeake & Ohio took a rather wide swing for this issue, gaining 62 cents at $31.50. As in the case of General Motors, traders were guided by hopes for favorable dividend action.

U. S. Seen Facing Engineer Shortage

TROY, N. Y., Nov. 2 (AP).—The United States is facing a shortage of engineers, president Livingston W. Houston of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute said today.

Moreover, said Houston, there is growing evidence that the shortage will become acute and impede the Nation's expanding defense program.

Industry has fully absorbed the available supply of engineers, Dr. Houston reported, and there are not enough students enrolled in engineering schools to meet anticipated needs.

Houston reported that "employment representatives of large industrial concerns have been on the campus almost every day to interview students who won't be graduated until late in January and in June. There is much more of this recruitment than usual, and it was begun much earlier."

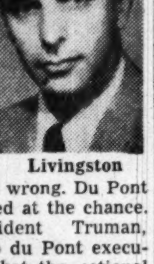
Ability Cramps du Pont Style, Can't Say No to Government

By J. A. Livingston

E. I. DU PONT DE NEMOURS & CO. is going to get itself heartily disliked by Josef Stalin, Pravda, the Daily Worker, Communists, and party-liners. Du Pont is not performing according to Karl Marx. It's not acting like a "capitalist warmonger and profiteer."

Only recently, the Atomic Energy Commission asked du Pont to build and operate a plant to make hydrogen bomb materials. Du Pont demurred. But the AEC insisted that du Pont was best qualified with chemical knowhow to do the work. Still du Pont hesitated. Obviously, from Pravda's standpoint, this was all wrong. Du Pont should have leaped at the chance.



Livingston

Finally, President Truman, himself, talked to du Pont executives. He urged that the national security of the United States depended on du Pont's doing the work. So, the company reluctantly consented. And again, du Pont foiled Karl Marx and Pravda. Explaining the agreement to shareholders, Crawford H. Greenewalt, president, said: "At the company's request, the new contract provides that the Government will pay all costs, that du Pont receive a fee of one dollar, and that any patents growing out of du Pont's work become the property of the United States Government."

Then follows the pay-off sentence: "While recognizing fully management's obligation to earn a profit on its operations, it is felt that the nature of this undertaking makes it inappropriate to require a fee." Not only does du Pont demur at making weapons but it refuses a profit.

THE DU PONT attitude shows how foolhardy are pat generalizations about corporations and the capitalistic system as it operates in the United States. Obviously, it's not correct to say that the profit-motive, pure and simple, makes the wheels go 'round. Here is a case where a company regarded a particular type of profit as a liability in public relations. And would rather not have it. Profit—immediate profit—was not du Pont's goal. Officials acted in the larger and longer-term interest—and profit—of the company.

During 1934 and 1935, the Senate Munitions (Nye) Committee, investigating World War I profits, slipped on du Pont the tag "merchants of death." Company directors and officers were determined never to give cause for such a charge again. Thus when du Pont engineered, built and operated the plutonium plant at Hanford, Wash., the company refused a fee. The contract stipulated payment of $1 for construction, another $1 for operation—$2 in all.

Du Pont is not entirely consistent in its merchants-of-death position. It stays in the explosives business—and makes a profit—even on war orders. However, here again it's at the Government behest. After World War I, du Pont considered getting out of explosives, which amount to only about 2 percent of its business. But the Army and the Navy wanted the company to keep its hand in. And a good thing, too, considering that du Pont people were the nucleus around whom the giant World War II explosives industry was built!

THE DU PONT decision goes to prove the complexity of the relationship between a modern corporation and society. In the early part of the century, a company might well have told the Government to find another contractor. The directors would have controlled a small, independent, economic empire among many other independent empires.

But today, a corporation the size of du Pont cannot do that. It has become so big, so knowledgeable, and so dependable, that it can't refuse a Government request that involves national security. It can't say, "Let XYZ Corp. do it"—because it's not at all certain that XYZ could. It's a clear instance in which power and strength beget responsibility. The dependence of the Nation on du Pont for knowhow and experience deprives du Pont of its independence.

And it's ironical that at the very time the Atomic Energy branch of the Government was urging du Pont to work on the hydrogen bomb, the Department of Justice branch was trying its best, through anti-trust actions, to fission du Pont's power. That's a good example of how democratic capitalism works. But not a totalitarian government, such as Stalin's! In Russia, policies are dovetailed into one another, determined from the top. In the United States, where debate and differences of opinion flourish, neither ends, means, or policies are ever decisively clear. That's a price democracy pays for democracy.

Arlington Drops Milk Ban Pending Court Ruling

Virginia Official Advises Return to Open-Door Policy; State Law Attacked

Arlington County's shutdown on "outside" milk was shelved after two days yesterday when a Virginia official advised a wait-and-see attitude pending a final court decision on the District's ban.

County Manager A. T. Lundberg said C. F. Hangef, assistant director, drug and food division of the State Agriculture Department conferred with Washington health officials and then recommended a return to the previous "open door" policy on milk sales.

District Court Judge Alexander Holtzoff will hold a hearing Wednesday at 10 a. m. on a request by Wakefield-Model Farms Dairy for a permanent injunction against Washington's ban on sales of "outside" milk.

Meanwhile, on another flank of the milk market controversy, 13 groups of consumers in the Newport News area yesterday asked the Supreme Court to declare the Virginia State Milk and Cream Act of 1934 unconstitutional.

The Virginia State Milk Commission draws its authority to fix prices from this act. Traditionally, the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association, which supplies 86 percent of the milk consumed in Greater Washington, follows the commission's prices.

Included in the appealing group were parent-teacher associations, women's clubs and a county board of supervisors.

Gas Co. Calls Proposed Rate Rise Unfair

A Washington Gas Light Co. rate consultant yesterday told the Federal Power Commission that an increase asked by the Atlantic Seaboard Corp. was "discriminatory."

Walter J. Herrman said the proposed rate schedule had the effect of charging both old and new customers of Atlantic with the cost of the firm's new pipeline.

The Washington firm, as an old customer, had already paid its share of the developmental costs of the original line, Herrman told the commission. He proposed an alternative rate schedule which he said would not penalize Washington.

The hearings have run for several weeks and will continue today. The Washington firm has told the commission the proposed increase would add $1.5 million to company costs in 1951 and two million dollars in 1952.

Childrens' Book Fair to End With Parents' Night

The Washington Post Childrens' Book Fair will end today with observance of "Parents' Night."

The fair, held in the Department of Commerce Auditorium under the auspices of the National Capital Sesquicentennial Commission, will remain open until 9 p. m. to permit more parents to see the display of some 1200 books for young readers.

A short film, "It's All Yours," will be shown at 7, 7:30, 8 and 8:30 p. m. Movie star Ralph Bellamy is the narrator for the film about books and reading.

In addition to books, the fair features originals of children's book art, loaned by publishers; exhibits by the District Public Library and State Department, and autographed juveniles from the collection of Dr. Irvin Kerlan, a Washington private collector.

Birdzell Was Blair House Hero; His Wife Not a Bit Surprised

Those who saw Pvt. Donald T. Birdzell dash into Pennsylvania ave. to draw an assassin's bullets toward him and away from President Truman in the Blair House may have been amazed at his heroism.

But one woman wasn't.

"I always knew he was a quick thinker and a good policeman," this one woman said. The woman who knew this was Helen Birdzell, the hero's wife.

Mrs. Birdzell's feelings were tempered, however, by her sorrow over the guard who was killed and the one injured even more seriously than her husband.

Wednesday, Birdzell was guarding the bottom of Blair House steps. He was accosted by Collazo, one of the two Puerto Rican assassins. Shot in the leg, Birdzell, in a split-second decision, backed into Pennsylvania ave. to draw the fire away from Blair House. He fired several shots at his assailant before crumbling to the ground.

"Don thinks he got two shots into Collazo before he fell," his proud wife said. Collazo was wounded. The other assassin was killed.

Birdzell might also have been a fatality or at least critically wounded had the bullet pierced his right leg almost anywhere but where it did.

"The doctor (Dr. Benjamin Deane) told me the bullet just barely missed the two main arteries in his leg," Mrs. Birdzell said yesterday. "He said it might have been a very different story."

The White House guard apparently is doing well and is in fine spirits.

"When I first saw him shortly after the shooting, he greeted me with 'Hi, Toots,'" she said. "Tomorrow they may let him sit up. The doctors say he's doing wonderfully."

She paused a moment and then said: "You know it seems strange. Don went through two tough Pacific landings in the last war. He came out of them without a scratch. . . . And now to get hurt in this sort of thing, in Washington."

Messages on Truman Escape Pour In—But None From Reds

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Expressions of gratitude at President Truman's escape from assassination poured in on the White House yesterday from all the world except the Soviet Union and its satellites.

The one attempt to sound out Soviet opinion got a strange answer. Reporters at Flushing Meadow asked Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky for comment. With an elaborate shrug, he said: "That is a strange question."

In the United States, Republican and Democratic leaders alike hastened to congratulate the President on his escape. Kings, Presidents and political leaders throughout the West cabled expressions of shock and relief.

Whatever the reaction of Moscow eventually may be, the Communist Party in this country issued a statement expressing "profound shock" at the abortive attempt. It said Communists "condemn and reject assassination and all acts of violence and terror," and charged "pro-fascist provocation" and "frameup."

Red Crackdown Demanded

"History is full of instances," it said, "in which similar acts of terrorism have been instigated or used for the purpose of cracking down on the labor movement and peace movement."

Despite Communist denials of connection with the Puerto Rican Nationalists or the assassination attempt, there were prompt demands from members of Congress for a quick crackdown on American Communists. Senate Republican Leader Kenneth Wherry urged the President to have "dangerous Communists" rounded up at once.

The gun battle under Mr. Truman's window at Blair House, Wherry said, was "the bitter fruit of the years of appeasement and coddling of Communism in and out of Federal Government." He demanded that Mr. Truman "enforce firmly" the McCarran Act for control of subversives.

Democratic Gov. Frank J. Lausche of Ohio said in Cleveland he was "sure a Communist conspiracy had something to do with the attempt to assassinate President Truman." He urged citizens to vote November 7, in the assurance that "there will be no Gestapo, no Communist dictator watching."

O'Mahoney Charge

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) saw an "apparent alliance" between Rep. Vito Marcantonio (ALP, N. Y.) and the Puerto Rican Nationalists and said:

"I have every reason to believe that their organization was controlled largely by Communist sympathizers."

He declared Marcantonio alone opposed in Congress a proposal that the people of Puerto Rico draft their own constitution. Marcantonio represents the New York district in which most of the Puerto Rican immigrants have settled.

The New Yorker promptly and vigorously denied everything O'Mahoney said. He insisted the vote denounced by the Wyoming Senator was not against a constitution but against "an attempt to bypass the issue of sovereignty."

Marcantonio Denies Link

"I am not allied with the Puerto Rican Nationalists," he told The Washington Post. "That is a phony-baloney campaign issue, a smokescreen to cover up the derelictions of the Democratic Party. O'Mahoney is not telling the truth."

The Nationalist movement, he declared, is "Catholic and anti-Communist." He added that "I know for a fact they are not Communists; everybody who knows anything about Puerto Rican affairs knows that."

Marcantonio said "this affair should not be used against the Puerto Rican people and their aspirations any more than the act of Zangara should be used against the Italian people."

(Guiseppe Zangara fatally wounded Mayor Anto Cermak of Chicago at Miami, February 15, 1922, in an attempt to assassinate President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt. He was executed in the Florida electric chair March 20, 1933).

Examination of records of the House Un-American Activities Committee showed Marcantonio was one of counsel for Nationalist leader Pedro Albizu Campos in 1936-37 when Albizu was convicted of inciting rebellion. He served in behalf of the International Labor Defense, described by the Justice Department as "the legal arm of the Communist Party."

Senator Francis J. Myers (D., Pa.) was another member of Congress who warned against the possibility of a Communist plot against the President's life. Should such a plot be found, he declared, "every Communist should be put behind barbed wire."

The theme of the inundation of messages to the President and of non-Communist newspaper comment was an expression of thankfulness that Mr. Truman had been spared to carry on his work at a critical moment.

Pope Pius XII sent the President a message of congratulation. A Vatican source said the Pope was "greatly relieved, although highly shocked."

Francis Cardinal Spellman, Archbishop of New York, arranged to say a special mass of thanksgiving at 8 a. m. Friday in the American Church of Santa Susanna in Rome.

Truman to Get Special Protection in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 2 (AP).—Extra security measures are being planned to safeguard President Truman during his St. Louis visit this weekend. He will speak here Saturday night.

"The police department will redouble its precautions," said Chief Jeremiah O'Connell. He will confer today with a Secret Service planning team on police assignments.

Blair House Case Falls to District Police

The attempted assassination of President Truman and the resulting deaths of a White House policeman and one of the assassins Wednesday was a shocking and spectacular thing to the whole world.

But to Washington police, it was a simple case of murder, requiring the same investigation by the homicide squad as is in all murders in the District—an intensive investigation, although this case is regarded as closed.

When the police radio dispatcher first put the call on the air "a policeman has been shot in front of the Blair House," Capt. Jeremiah Flaherty, head of the homicide squad and several of his men responded to the scene immediately.

Although the President and his residence are guarded by White House police and Secret Service agents, it was the job of homicide detectives of the Metropolitan Police Force to take charge of any necessary investigation at once.

Collected the Guns

Assisted by White House police, the Secret Service and other Metropolitan policemen on the scene, they rounded up witnesses and collected the guns fired in the wild battle.

The guns, two fired by the assassins and five by police, will be subjected to ballistic tests.

From the witnesses, White House guards, Secret Service agents and passers-by, homicide detectives took written statements. These will become a part of the "jacket," which police will turn over to the United States Attorney's office to help in the prosecution when the case comes to trial.

The ballistic tests will be made to determine who fired the shots that killed White House Policeman Leslie Coffelt and Guselio Torresola, one of the two assassins, as well as the shots that wounded Oscar Collazo, the other assassin, and White House Policemen Joseph H. Downs and Donald T. Birdzell.

Coroner Called In

The District Coroner's office also was called into the case as in all murders here. The bodies of both of the slain men were autopsied yesterday by Deputy Coroners Christopher J. Murphy and Richard M. Rosenberg.

A coroner's jury will be sworn in over both bodies before the end of the week, and will be called on to return a verdict at a coroner's inquest at a later date.

If the coroner's jury holds Collazo responsible for Coffelt's death, the case will go to the regular grand jury.

If an indictment is returned, the case will be tried in District Court before a jury composed of Washington citizens.

The prosecutor will be from the United States Attorney's office here. First Assistant United States Attorney John Fihelly has already been assigned to assist police in preparing the case.

3 Birthday Cakes Forgotten At Injured Policeman's Home

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

None had candles, and probably never would have.

The cakes were made by neighbors for Billy Downs who reached his 16th birthday Wednesday—the day a Puerto Rican bent on assassination critically wounded his policeman father at Blair House.

Private Joseph H. Downs, 44, father of four husky boys, lives in the Woodmoor section of Silver Spring at 10620 Dunmoor dr.

The cakes began arriving at the Downs house early yesterday morning. Last night the neighbors were inviting the Downs children to supper. They were all trying to help.

"I really don't know what we will do with the cakes now," Mrs. Downs said yesterday. "I doubt if we'll be having any birthday parties right off."

Mrs. Downs and her children were tired. They spent most of Wednesday night at Emergency Hospital.

Downs, a White House policeman the last 12 years, was shot in the stomach, chest and head by the gunman as Downs raced from Blair House kitchen down an alley between Blair-Lee and Blair House to the scene of the Pennsylvania ave. gun battle.

Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, White House physician, told Mrs. Downs yesterday that her husband "would pull through."

Before joining the White House guard, he put in 10 years on the Metropolitan Police force.

Gunman Confesses His Part In Plot to Kill President

and registered under assumed names. Collazo used the name of Anthony DeSilva, and Torresola the name of Charles Gonzales.

Wednesday, they met ouside the hotel and took a taxicab to 17th and Pennsylvania ave. nw., arriving there at 2:15 p. m.

They approached Blair House from different directions. Collazo walked along the sidewalk on the north side of Pennsylvania ave. until he was in front of Blair House. Torresola walked along the pavement on the south side of the avenue and crossed over toward Collazo directly in front of the State Department building.

Collazo said he pulled out his automatic as soon as he got in front of Blair House. It was a P-38, a German make. His first shot misfired. Then he fired six shots, emptying the clip, put in a fresh clip and fired three more times. Police said he had two other clips of ammunition.

The shots were aimed at a policeman who ran out into the street. This was Donald T. Birdzell, who was wounded and is in Emergency Hospital, not in serious condition. The bullets struck him in the legs.

Ballistic Tests to Come

Ballistic tests have not yet been made to determine which of the assassins' guns fired the bullets which cut down Coffelt and another policeman, Joseph H. Downs, who is in critical condition at Emergency Hospital with wounds in the chest, abdomen and head.

Collazo said that he and Torresola were not sure when they went to Blair House that President Truman would be there. He said they took a chance of finding the President if they were able to get inside.

Police said, however, they believe the two men looked over Blair House and the White House and laid their plans accordingly some time between the time they arrived Tuesday, and Wednesday afternoon.

Although Collazo denied it, officials say they believe the assassination plot was directly connected with the Nationalist uprising in Puerto Rico earlier this week.

Dozens of Arrests

Dozens of arrests have been made in the Puerto Rican district in New York City and in San Juan, Puerto Rico, where Pedro Albizu Campos, Nationalist Party leader, and others were taken into custody.

In addition, the guard around Blair House has been increased, the north sidewalk of Pennsylvania ave. in front of Blair House has been roped off, and West Executive ave. has been closed to traffic.

Three Metropolitan police privates, Sumner E. Peters, First Precinct; Samuel J. Lombardo, Eleventh, and Ronald W. Clark, Tenth, were transferred to the White House police force to replace the three policemen who were shot.

While four other prisoners watched from their beds and police officials, representatives of the United States Attorney's office and the United States Marshal's office and newspaper reporters crowded into the strong room at Gallinger Hospital, Collazo heard the formal first-degree murder charge placed against him.

He lay motionless on the hospital bed, his arms folded across his chest, his eyes bright. He had been pronounced physically able to stand the hearing by Dr. Paul A. Reid, chief of the medical department of surgery at Gallinger. Collazo has a bullet wound in the chest.

Public Hearing Stressed

Both Commissioner Lawrence and First Assistant United States Attorney John Fihelly went to great lengths to make certain that the record showed it was a public hearing as required by law. The name of each person in the room was read into the record.

Lawrence pointed out in detail that Collazo could request an immediate hearing or could ask for a continuance to get counsel. He advised the man to wait until he got a lawyer, and asked if he wanted a continuance.

"I think I will have counsel," Collazo replied quietly.

Then Fihelly requested that he be held without bond, pointing out that it was a "vicious" murder, and that he had intended to kill the President.

Lawrence continued the case to November 21 after Fihelly pointed out that neither Collazo, nor the two wounded policemen would be able to attend a hearing before several weeks.

Lawrence then asked Collazo if he wished to pose for newspaper pictures or to talk to reporters. He advised him against it.

The room where he will be held until his wounds heal is a small one. There are two small windows leading to the outside and two others leading to a hallway. There is one door. All of the openings are covered with heavy steel grating.

Collazo's bed is placed against one side wall, with the head against another wall. The four other prisoners, one of whom was shackled to the bed with leather wristlets, are on the other side of the room.

Collazo is not manacled. However, two plainclothesmen from the Washington police force are on guard in the room, in addition to the usual uniformed policeman on guard outside the door.

Hospital authorities said the prisoner seems unconcerned about his deed, that he has been very friendly and talkative with his police guards, and that he has been eating and sleeping well.

Deputy Coroners Christopher J. Murphy and Richard M. Rosenberg performed autopsies on both Torresola and Coffelt.

The policeman was shot three times in the abdomen. Two bullets were recovered during the autopsy. Dr. Murphy said the slugs ruptured internal organs, and he died of resulting hemorrhage and shock.

Coffelt's body was released to Hysong's Funeral Home. A coroner's jury will be sworn at the funeral home Saturday. Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

Congress Got Warning On Danger to Truman

U. E. Baughman, chief of the United States Secret Service, warned Congress two months ago that more and more persons—mostly mental cases—are trying to harm President Truman. Many are armed, he said.

Baughman issued the warning before the Senate Appropriations Committee in September. He declared protection given the President was "not adequate" and asked for more men. He was assigned 20 extra agents and three special clerks, an increase of almost 100 percent.

Truman Comforts Widow Of Slain Police Hero

President Says Policeman's Death 'Terrible Thing—It Makes You Sick'

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

"He died in my defense."

President Truman yesterday wrote these words to the grief-stricken wife of Leslie Coffelt, $65-a-week White House policeman who laid down his life for the Chief Executive.

"My heartfelt sympathy goes out to you in the tragedy which has taken from you a loved and loving husband," the President wrote to Mrs. Coffelt, confined to her room at the home of friends.

"I wish it were in my power to say a word which would even in light degree diminish or mitigate the sorrow which is yours.

"Your devoted husband has made the supreme sacrifice in the discharge of duty. I am deeply sensible of the fact that he died in my defense and in the defense of law and order and the maintenance of the stability of Government.

A Debt Beyond Discharge

"I can but pay humble tribute to his valiant memory and acknowledge a debt beyond any power of mine to discharge.

"Mrs. Truman and I are thinking of you in this crushing sorrow and pray that the everlasting arms will enfold you and that the God of our Fathers in whom all creatures live will comfort and sustain you and yours in this dark hour."

Relatives and friends were at Mrs. Coffelt's side trying to comfort her, as was Dean John W. Suter of the Washington Cathedral, where funeral services for the slain hero are set tentatively for Tuesday with burial in Arlington Cemetery.

Emerging from a visit with her, Dean Suter told a reporter that Mrs. Coffelt was showing great "courage" in her grief.

Mrs. Coffelt has moved temporarily from her home at 1915 N. Wayne st., Arlington, to stay with a friend, Mrs. Helen Ganss, at 6409 33d st. nw.

President Truman further summed up his feelings about Private Coffelt's death in a brief interview.

"It makes you sick," he said.

The Chief Executive told reporters in the White House rose garden:

"It was a terrible thing to have happen to one of the nicest fellows you ever knew, murdered outright — and two others wounded, too."

In addition to writing the letter to Mrs. Coffelt, the President sent flowers to the hospital rooms where two other White House policemen, wounded in the assassination attempt — Pvts. Donald T. Birdzell and Joseph H. Downs — are recovering from gunshot wounds.

White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters:

No Special Benefits

Ironically, Coffelt's $65-a-week pay as a White House policeman was less than the $71-a-week Oscar Collazo, survivor of the two assassins, earned in his trade as a polisher of metal pieces for women's handbags.

And even that pay was instantly halted by the gunblasts which cut Coffelt down.

Although he was slain in line of duty, there is no provision for continuing the pay of the 40-year-old officer even temporarily for the benefit of his widow and stepdaughter, officials said.

Mrs. Coffelt, who is employed at the Hecht Co., will receive a $125-a-month pension check from police insurance. In addition she will get $60 a month from the Veterans Administration because of her husband's World War II Army service.

Shaw's Ashes To Be Placed With Wife's

AYOT ST. LAWRENCE, England, Nov. 2 (U.P.).—George Bernard Shaw, the great Irish playwright, left behind a will of 8000 words and one simple request when he died peacefully today at the age of 94.

"I want the service to be just like my wife's," he told his old friend, Lady Astor, "and I want my ashes to be mingled with hers. After that you can do what you like. Now, go away."

"GBS" lived to know that some of his works would be immortal. All his plays are copyrighted to the year 2000. They brought him tremendous wealth, but his estate probably will be less than $1,400,000 because Britain's high taxes recently took 95 percent.

His body was taken to a funeral home in Welwyn, 5 miles away, to be prepared for cremation. Tonight it lay in the locked chapel of a country church. The funeral service will be held at 4 p. m. Monday, when Shaw's final request will be honored.

IN THE MUNICIPAL COURT FOR the District of Columbia Civil Division. Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance Company, a corporation, plaintiff, vs. Frederick A. Murgia et al., defendants. No. A-29427. ORDER. Upon consideration of the complaint for interpleader filed herein on April 1, 1950, and it appearing to the satisfaction of the Court that plaintiff, Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance Company, a corporation, should be permitted to pay into the Registry of the Court the sum of $2,500.00 representing the full penal amount of a certain bond issued by it for one S. Frank Soldano in connection with the issuance of a license to him as a real estate broker in the District of Columbia and that all persons who have valid claims against said fund should be required to interplead and offer competent evidence of their right to participate in the distribution of said fund, it is by the Court this 24th day of October, 1950, ORDERED: (1) That the plaintiff, Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance Company, a corporation, pay into the Registry of this Court the sum of $2,500.00 representing the full penal amount of a certain bond No. F241,545 issued by it in connection with the license of one S. Frank Soldano as a real estate broker in the District of Columbia; and (2) That, upon the payment of said money into the Registry of the Court, the plaintiff, Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance Company, a corporation, be, and it hereby is, discharged from all further liability under said bond No. F241,545 to said defendants named in the complaint herein and to all other persons similarly situated in relation to said bond; and (3) That, as of the date of this order, each and every defendant named herein and all other persons similarly situated in respect to said bond be, and they hereby are, restrained from commencing or prosecuting any suit at law against plaintiff, Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance Company, a corporation, in its capacity as obligor on said bond No. F241,545 or in any way affecting the said penal sum of $2,500.00 otherwise than as provided hereafter; and (4) That the defendants and all other persons similarly situated, namely, having claims against the penal amount of said bond F241,545 resulting from claims against said S. Frank Soldano arising out of his conduct as a real estate broker in the District of Columbia be, and they hereby are, required to interplead in these proceedings and offer competent evidence in support of said claims; and (5) That a copy of this order be published in the Washington Law Reporter and The Washington Post for the next three weeks following issuance of this order requiring the defendants and all other persons with valid claims against said S. Frank Soldano as a real estate broker to cause their respective appearances to be entered herein, and present their claims, on or before the fortieth day, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays, occurring after the day of the first publication of this order, failing which they shall be barred forever from any participation in the proceeds of said bond. October 24, 1950. FRANK H. MYERS, Judge. A true copy. Test: (Seal.) WALTER P. BRAMHALL, Clerk. By WILLIAM M. NEDROW, Chief Deputy Clerk. Oct.27,Nov.3,10

VIEWPOINT

By Dave Gerard

"A shotgun? Why you are just a boy! What do you know about guns? No, Sir! You'll have to wait till you're 21!"

"You dad started begging for a gun when he was 7! His father finally bought him one on his tenth birthday!"

USED CARS "Serviced" by POHANKA

We believe that today's used-car market is the most favorable buyer's market in years. Compare our prices of today with those of a month ago—and with others today. They are, in many cases, up to 25% lower. Most of the cars listed below are one-owner cars that have been traded to us on new Oldsmobiles. All postwar cars are sold with W.A.T.A. guarantee and can be purchased for cash or on terms. Trades accepted.

Walter Winchell ... In New York

New Yorkers Are Talking About . . .

Gov. Dewey's capitulation to makeup for his televised appearances. Pancaked from chin to behind the ears. Mrs. Dewey stands on the sidelines ready with comb in hand . . . The reported Sumner Welles-socialite Patti Stokes merger plan. The ex-State Dept. exec. assures intimates they are dear friends and that romantic reports are poppycock . . . The new Doubleday book, "MacArthur, Man of Action," which sold out completely in its first edition . . . The 4th son over at the James Linens. Pop's publisher at Time . . . Olsen & Johnson's "Pardon Our French," shellacked by the critics, grossing $146,325 in its initial month. Not bad coin for a pair of millionaires . . . Margaret Truman's observation to an interviewer: "How much progress would I have made if I were Maggie Smith?" Well, honey, among other things, you might be the only woman in the U. S. Senate. That's the monicker for the Honorable Lady from Maine.

Sidney Kingsley, whose last hit was "Detective Story." He just mailed backers another dividend of 25% although the show folded months ago . . . McCall's piece called "Meet Mamie Eisenhower," auth'd by Nanette Kutner It is orb-arresting . . . Billy Rose's tome, "Wine, Women and Words," now at the 600,000 copy mark . . . Bandleader Campo's lawsuit against the railroad involved in a recent accident. His wife Diosa Costello was on the train. Campo demands $10,000 "for loss of companionship of my wife." He means, one assumes, he had to eat out . . . Paul Crabtree (only 28), who wrote, directed and acts in "A Story for a Sunday Evening" due at the Playhouse on the 17th. Noel Coward was that age when he crashed the B'way heavens with "The Vortex" . . . The New Yorker mag's teevy show assassin, Philip Hamburger, whose raps make sense.

The Marquis de Cuevas, who reportedly dropped $500,000 on the Yurropean tour of his ballet. He married a Rockefeller . . . Lisa Kirk, who headlines soon at the Waldorf's Wedgwood Room. She taught Sunday school in Roscoe, Pa., six years ago . . . George Jean Nathan's latest "Theater Book of the Year" (Knopf), always good. He rebuttals the familiar charge that he never likes anything. "I like too many things," he argues, "and do not find enough of them in the theater" . . . Robert Lewis Taylor's comment about publisher Macfadden in The New Yorker. Regarding his newspaper flop, the Graphic, Taylor notes: "It launched a new school of journalism . . . publishing Winchell. The merits and demerits of such columns have been argued for years . . . It is possible that the enterprise of columnists has kept regular news coverage from becoming stereotyped. Newspapers tend to grow set in their ways, and reporters assigned to runs too often work in groups, for mutual protection. For good or evil, a great deal of news besides lovers' spats is first printed by the columnists."

Pravda's latest sneer at "the scandalous" election campaign in New York. Imagine giving the voters a choice of more than one! . . . The Rainbow Room's click with Billy Reardon at the helm. Just seeing Manhattan from 65 stories up—is thrill enough . . . The amazing admissions by ex-banker Crowe (in Cosmopolitan mag) on why he thefted over $800,000. For which he served 8 months . . . William Shirer's first novel, "The Traitor," which slugs hard in its implications. Shirer's on-the-spot news from Berlin (during Hitler's rise to power) led the field . . . The blazing feud between M. Todd and the producers of "Bless You All." Over the latter's $150 per week offers to "Peep Show" belles, several of whom have deserted . . . The N. Y. Times editorial which declared: "What we have to realize is that we are actually fighting a war." For realizing that long ago the same editorialist flung a banana peel on our stoop.

"Headline Happy" by Florabel Muir, one of the best books on newspapering. She credits Damon Runyon with the nifty: "It must be wonderful to be a newspaper reporter. You meet so many interesting people," to which the retort is: "Yes, and they're all in the newspaper business!" . . . Damon didn't say it. James Cannon did in this dept. . . . Charles D. Rice's medal to author Russel Crouse for saying that "Call Me Madam" should be called "Call Me Merman." We lose more damned medals that way . . . Mrs. Eddie Cantor (Ida) making her teevy debut with him Sunday . . . Disc Jockey Martin Block's comment: That cockdull parties must've been invented by a fellow who wanted to meet some folks he knew but couldn't stand spending an entire meal with them.

The N. Y. Better Business Bureau's report: That the phony cancer groups exposed this week "have no connection with the American Cancer Society or the Runyon Fund" . . . One of the counterfeit outfits had the gall to announce "awards" to all the New York newspapers for their help—with all the editors falling for it. Let them remember the name Joseph L. Brandt well. He was the brains dept. behind the racket. If he ever solicits funds for causes again, he will be jailed. Why again? What about now? . . . The careless spelling by Tennessee Williams in his foreword to Marian Gallaway's book, "Constructing a Play." She taught him playwrighting at the U. of Iowa . . . The new miracle drug Terramycin which kills your germs but leaves you mighty limp . . . The news commentators who kept calling him John Bottiger when it is pronounced Betta-ger.

"This Is New," one of the loveliest of the songs that will linger long . . . CBS's new offering Sunday eves at 10:30—Eugene Lowell's Choraliers. Good for the ears . . . The happy news about Buddy Clark's beautiful widow readying marriage. Few people have suffered her agonies . . . The way Jolson dealt bigotry a blow in his will. Leaving most of his millions for educating poor boys of all faiths. Betting on thoroughbreds to the last. El Punko Judge Armstrong of Texas must have had a fit . . . The irony of the attempt by Puerto Ricans on the life of our President. Most of the Puerto Ricans living here are on relief! . . . The Secret Service guard who died protecting the President. They are among the underpaid gov't people. Not long ago the Secret Service branch was thinned for economy reasons.

The second Nielsen Rating for the new radio season. It reveals that teevy hasn't dented the scores of the familiar favorites . . . The big talk among the politicos in the New York campaign: "Who are the Communists going to vote for?" They are against all the candidates . . . The coast columnar report that "all the eulogies for Jolson in the columns forget they reported him a has-been when he couldn't get a role ten years ago." All? . . . The talk among the literati: "How can Hemingway's new book be such a success when nearly all the papers panned it?" FDR learned you can get panned by nearly all the papers and become President! . . . And the big shot gamblers whose Pecora money got the jitters last night. They shifted it to Impellitteri who, they say, "is home."

The Charm Is There

Margaret Takes After the Old Man

By Sonia Stein

IF I WAS Coca Cola I'd grab Margaret. Miss Truman's television debut last Sunday night on "Toast of the Town" wasn't 100 percent successful, as Miss Truman herself will doubtless note when she sees the kinescope recordings of it. But the girl's singing is such a small fraction of the girl, that I wouldn't be daunted if I were Coca Cola.

Miss Truman

I'd sign up Margaret to compete with Faye Emerson of the Pepsi Cola payroll, either on alternate nights on CBS (7:45) or on a rival network if CBS shows proper unwillingness to cooperate in such competitive skullduggery.

And I'd have Margaret interview people. You'd never know it, to judge from the TV show Sunday, but Margaret glows with charm, gentle humor and the socially acceptable manifestations of a good mind.

The Truman voice is pleasing enough—even to the carping critics—when it's not essaying opera, and Margaret might sing a folk song or ballad on each show. Cf. the daily Kate Smith show on WNBW (4 p. m.) for possible format.

I'm all for a small, informal show where Margaret can relax. A couple of peeks at the kinescope and she'd get over all that eyebrow lifting and grimacing she does when she sings; the silent picture speaks louder than the most vociferous critic under some circumstances.

And I think Margaret's audience would be wide and loyal. Just as Faye epitomizes what most men want in a woman (and most women would like to be) Margaret epitomizes what most people want in a daughter. She's nice but not stuffy, she's clever but not sarcastic, she's gay and friendly, talented and—properly photographed—pretty enough.

THE PHONEVISION experiment in Chicago is being held up again for lack of enough first quality film, according to a request filed by Zenith with the Federal Communications Commission for permission to postpone the 90-day test until the first of December. The Zenith Radio Corp. has already installed the necessary equipment for the test in 300 Chicago homes—representative of the community at large—and has the transmitter tuned to a fine point. The pictures to be sent out, however, pose the problem. Since the Hollywood producers are dependent on their theater exhibitors, they are most sensitive to the exhibitor's wishes. And since the exhibitors are the one group of people who may lose something if the Phonevision, or pay-as-you-view television system is adopted, they are wearing the double deep frown line. Naturally, in order to induce people to pay for a TV show, it's got to be a movie that's not seven years old. Those they can get free.

If the Zenith test goes well, and people turn out to be willing to pay a fee to see something on TV which they cannot get—or at least cannot get in precisely that form—for nothing, TV might turn into a tremendously varied medium, dispensing lessons in algebra, Sanskrit and domestic science along with the World Series.

It will, in effect, make it possible to cater to a small audience which is willing to pay for a type of program the soup manufacturer cannot economically do since his motive is to reach the most people possible.

It will not, of course, replace TV as we know it. The object is to use television in many ways, instead of as an entertainment medium directed at the largest audience possible.

Cranberry Branches Out On Its Own

By Lucia Brown

CONSIDER THE CRANBERRY! It's a berry that starts in a bog and winds up as the most cheerful, eye-appealing treat on the table!

Time was when the cranberry was known only as a companion piece for turkey. Now, it has branched out on its own and turns up in all sorts of dishes. It pops up in pies, in delectable nectars, in ices, in salads, in cakes, in bread.

Gone are the days when to think of the cranberry was to think, automatically, of Thanksgiving and Christmas. Especially this year, when a bumper crop has been scooped from the bogs, it offers all sorts of opportunities for brightening the family dinner table.

TRY SOME OF THESE recipes for preparing America's oldest berry, one that grew wild here long before Columbus came and is now cultivated in Massachusetts, New Jersey, Wisconsin, Washington, and Oregon. Some of the recipes feature canned sauces and juices which makes for ease in modern cranberry cookery.

CRANBERRY APPLE PIE

1 can whole cranberry sauce
3 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons grated orange rind
2 tablespoons butter
1½ cups chopped apple.

Mix corn syrup, cranberry sauce, cornstarch, salt. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil. Remove from heat. Add orange rind and butter. Cool. Add apples.

Pour into unbaked pie shell. Arrange lattice top. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) 10 minutes. Reduce heat to moderate (350 degrees Fahrenheit) and bake 40 minutes longer, or until crust is brown and apples tender.

CRANBERRY SHERBET

1 can jellied cranberry sauce
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
3 tablespoons sugar
6 tablespoons orange juice
2 stiffly beaten egg whites, or
1 cup heavy cream whipped

Break up cranberry sauce with fork. Add lemon rind and sugar, dissolved in orange juice. Freeze in refrigerator tray until partially set. Fold in egg whites or cream. Freeze until firm. Serves six.

CRANBERRY FRUIT MOLD

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup dates, chopped
2/3 cup nuts, chopped
2/3 cup apples, diced

Crush cranberry sauce with a fork. Place gelatin in non-breakable glass cup. Add cold water. Let stand 2 minutes. Place cup with gelatin in pan of boiling water and heat until dissolved.

Add dissolved gelatin to crushed cranberry sauce and beat with rotary beater until smooth. Chill gelatin until partially set. Fold in salt, dates, nuts, and apples. Turn mixture into large mold and chill. When firm, unmold on lettuce or other salad greens. Serves 12.

HERE'S A GROUP of quick cranberry notions. You can mix these in a jiffy and we'll guarantee family and guests will go for them.

CRANBERRY FROST APPETIZER: 1 pint cranberry juice cocktail, 1 pint lemon, lime, or pineapple sherbet. Place a scoop of sherbet in bottom of each fruit glass. Fill with chilled cranberry juice cocktail and serve.

SAUCE FOR GRIDDLE CAKES

1 cup fresh cranberries, ½ cup sugar, ½ cup crushed pineapple, and ½ cup water. Combine ingredients and bring to boil. Cook until all cranberries pop open—about 5 minutes. Continue cooking over low flame until mixture is slightly thickened, about 10 minutes. Serve hot over griddle cakes for a delicious supper dish. Good, too, with cake squares, puddings, etc.

10-MINUTE CRANBERRY SAUCE

2 cups sugar, 2 cups water, 4 cups fresh cranberries. Boil sugar and water together 5 minutes. Add cranberries and cook without stirring until all the skins pop open—about 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Cool sauce in saucepan. Makes 1 quart.

BAKED HAM CRANBERRY GLAZE

1 cup 10-minute cranberry sauce (see above), ½ cup honey, and ½ cup stewed pureed apricots. (Apricot canned for infants can be used.) Combine ingredients as given. Mix well. Spread over surface of ham during last half hour of baking.

CRANBERRY FESTIVAL CAKE

1 package white cake mix, 1 can whole cranberry sauce, 1/3 cup orange juice. Prepare mix according to directions on package. Spoon cranberry sauce over bottom of square (8 by 8 inch) baking dish or pan. Stir in orange juice. Spoon cake batter carefully over orange-cranberry mixture. Bake at 375 degrees Fahrenheit for 40 to 50 minutes.

While cake is still warm, remove from pan as you would regular upside-down cake. When cake has cooled thoroughly, cut in squares and serve with or without whipped cream. Serves 9.

JUICY GOODNESS: This tart, delicious pie is made with cranberries and apples

Market Memo

Thanksgiving Can Start Right Away

NOVEMBER MAY have drifted in on a cloud of summer air, but its plentiful food list reads like the menu for a good, crisp Thanksgiving day.

MORE TURKEYS than ever before in history will be available this month, says the Department of Agriculture. Among these will be a number of lightweight birds.

A CRANBERRY CROP that's the second largest on record is being harvested. Apples are plentiful and generally of good quality. Abundant vegetables listed by the Department include cabbage, onions, carrots, Irish potatoes and sweet potatoes.

BROILERS AND FRIERS are coming to market in record-breaking numbers for the time of year. The Poultry and Egg National Board reports that prices generally are at the second lowest point of the last 12 months, only a little above the level of last spring.

PORK IS the only red meat tagged as plentiful by the Department of Agriculture. Protein foods that you'll find in generous supply include eggs, cheese, and cottage cheese.

QUICK APPETIZER: Float lemon, orange, or pineapple sherbet in sparkling cranberry juice cocktail for a refreshing first course. It's easy to make with canned cranberry cocktail and store-bought sherbet. You needn't wait for Thanksgiving Day to try this "cranberry frost," because it will whet appetites for the humblest stew in your kitchen repertory. Of course, it's the perfect starter for a holiday dinner, too

DOWNRIGHT REFRESHING! This light dessert is made of chilled pineapple cubes, topped with cranberry sherbet

Mary Haworth's Mail

Reviewing Her First Year of Marriage, Wife Says It Has Been the Unhappiest Period in Her Life, Due to Her Husband's Inconstancy; What's Wrong?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Dick and I have been married exactly a year. We have a baby 3 months old, a home of our own, and everything anyone would want, except happiness. I love my husband very much, but this year has been the unhappiest time of my life.

We went together seven years before we married, and I thought I knew what our life would be like, but I was mistaken. Dick went out with the boys continually, and wouldn't say where he was going or where he had been; but I never felt that he was unfaithful. I trusted him. Then one night he didn't get home until nearly dawn, and later I learned that he and one of his friends had taken two girls home from a dance.

Then last Spring he and another married man took two young girls on a picnic. Needless to say, I was heartbroken. At that time he told me he didn't love me; then he left me; but a week later he returned, saying it was a big mistake. I forgave him, hoping this was the end of our troubles, but it wasn't.

More recently we went to a dance, and I sat with him all evening until he walked away without a word. Then I joined some of my old classmates until the dance was over. I went looking for Dick and found him in the dining hall, and when I asked if he were ready to go home he answered with an obscenity. I'd had enough, so I slapped his face. He wheeled and walked out, and I went back and told the girls we'd wait in the car for him. When we got outside he and the car were gone, and we had to find a ride home. Dick said later, "I knew you didn't want to ride with me anyway."

The night of our wedding anniversary he told me he hadn't been worth a plugged nickel since an old girl friend of his got married,—after we did! Half an hour later he said he didn't mean a word of it, that he was just talking crazy. There is much I could tell you in the same vein; it happens over and over again. I still stay home and wait for him; we argue, make up, then quarrel again. What am I doing wrong? We live in a small community, where there is no marriage clinic; so I must ask you to advise me. Please answer soon. V. B.

DEAR V. B.: As I get the picture, you and your husband are about the same age, somewhere in the early twenties, at most, I gather; and the fact that you went together for seven years before marriage probably provides the clue to your domestic difficulties with Dick.

Seven years' courtship is an inordinately long preface to marriage, especially in the younger generation; and combined with all else you say about Dick, I take it to mean that he leaned on you, in the dating years, and let you lead him socially. Evidence indicates that he is attached to you, after a fashion, but resentfully, and without feeling "in love," happily and wholeheartedly.

Dick may have plugged for this marriage, but more likely you ushered him into it when you felt ready, without trying to fathom his true desires, and without considering whether he had the sense, strength and stability of character to be a reliable husband and father. His post-marital running around with the boys, also his other escapades, truancies, and fickle talk described herein, simply show that he isn't grown up enough for marriage.

He is fighting against this fateful life-sentence, as it seems to him. That's why he left you once, then stumbled back, to receive forgiveness from his mammie-wife. In the lengthy pre-marital years of taking his cues from you, Dick was daydreaming of other girls at times, I suppose, thinking them more attractive, more desirable, than you, perhaps. But he made no move in their direction then, because he couldn't count on a good reception, whereas he felt sure of your devotion any day.

Your great yen for Dick has been your great hold on him; but now that he feels really tied, and is fighting it, he mutely resents your woeful, wistful, all-forgiving air of wifely waiting. Maybe he construes it as weakness of sorts; and maybe it is. But he also feels guilty about his struggles, which explains his contrition at intervals.

For advice—the only solution of this type of problem is for each to try to mature himself. You can help Dick only by becoming a more complete person in your own right; and for guidance in this, please study Dr. Rudolf Dreikurs' fine book "The Challenge of Marriage" (Duell, Sloan & Pearce). It is simply written, full of wisdom, and a pleasure to read. M. H.

I Love You, Lord

I love You, Lord, for all the gifts . . . That You have given me . . . The breath of life, eternal faith . . . And every memory . . . The strength to walk, the tongue to talk . . . The will to rise and grow . . . And every truth of age and youth . . . That I have come to know . . . I love You for my health of heart . . . And for my daily bread . . . And for the comfort of the dreams . . . That fill my sleepy head . . . For greater courage in defeat . . . And hope beyond despair . . . And for the eagerness in life . . . To do my equal share . . . I love You, Lord, and thank You for . . . Each moment I am here . . . And pray that I will always be . . . Devoted and sincere

Pregnancy Calls for Skin Care

By Ann Lawrence

Betty revivifies skin with massage

AS BETTY'S PREGNANCY progressed, she began to notice a change in the texture of her skin and of her hair.

Both had a lack-lustre look. And although she had anticipated this "fading", commonly associated with pregnancy, she was determined not to give in to it.

There is no mystic hocus-pocus routine that need be followed during the months before the baby is born. A sensible program of scalp, hair and skin care, to which the mother-to-be strictly adheres, will serve, provided, of course, her health remains good.

Now, Betty learned, she needed a scalp treatment. The daily hair brushing, with a good, stiff brush, would serve to relax tired nerves. It would also stimulate the scalp with a fresh supply of blood, would coax a soft, shining look back into the hair. It would also serve, as always, to keep the hair clean between shampoos. Scalp massage, with elbows resting on a table, hands cupped, and all ten fingers working in tiny circular movements, rotating all over the scalp, was another relaxer—and her scalp-stimulator.

AND ALTHOUGH IT SEEMED almost too much to add to her full day's program, she found the five minutes before bedtime well worth it. Betty reported a sounder, more restful sleep following the nightly brush-and-massage routine, and noticed, within two week's time, that her hair seemed less brittle, easier to manage, and certainly, more lustrous.

To revivify her faded and dry skin, she followed another simple program of nightly beauty care. Step one: Thorough cleansing with an all-purpose face cream. After two applications—one to remove make-up, the other to "rinse" the face—she applied another light film of the same cream and with gentle motions, massaged her face and neck. The massage movements, upward and out, gave the necessary stimulation, sent the blood coursing to her face. The rich oils contained in the cream helped to feed back the diminishing supply of natural oils.

ONCE A WEEK, BETTY treated herself to a home facial-mask. This bit of pampering (or so it seemed to her), served two purposes: The strawberry-colored concoction, with astringent properties was another stimulant and helped greatly to relieve the pale, faded look. It also helped to erase the tiny fatigue lines which were forming around her eyes.

'Let There Be Light' Is A Good Motto for All Women Furnishing a Home

THE ADMONITION, "Let there be light," is one that can't be repeated too often in the modern home. Dim lights are not only gloomy; they also ruin the eyes. Bent on selecting good lamps, T. W. writes:

DEAR ANNE:

I am planning to buy table lamps to go at each end of our davenport. In this connection, I will also have to buy end tables and I am bothered by the fact that all the lamps shown me for this use are so tall. I want really good light as my husband will be reading there and the children studying their lessons. However, I want the effect to be attractive, too. How tall do you think the tables should be? And how tall should the lamps be?

P. R., Fairfax, Va.

The present vogue for tall lamps is a fine one from the standpoint of good lighting. Since they're definitely the style, you'll be smart from a fashion standpoint and will also safeguard your family's eyesight, if you buy them.

The top of a lamp table should be level with or ½-inch higher than the arm of chair or sofa. The average end-table height is about 27 inches. The lamp should be 28 to 30 inches high, at least, including the shade. The lamp should be tall enough and the bottom of the shade wide enough to throw a good light on the reader's book or newspaper.

DEAR ANNE:

I hope you or some of your readers will be able to help me with some questions. My husband has just been sent to Hawaii and I plan to join him there as soon as possible.

I would like to know from some Navy wife who has been there recently: (1) How is the housing situation? Is there a long waiting list? Can you get civilian apartments? If so, what are the rentals? If we get a Navy house, will it be furnished? If so, what do I have to take with me? What type of clothes do the children and I need?

Mrs. G. R., Washington.

You should be able to get a great many of these questions answered by calling the Department of Defense and asking for the section which supplies such information to personnel. However, if other Navy wives write to give you their personal slant on the situation, I'll be most happy to forward the letters to you.

Sacred Fire Burns at Embassy

By Marie McNair and Elizabeth Maguire

IN A SARI OF RED-GOLD Benares tissue, Miss Medha Bhat took seven steps around the sacred fire yesterday and became the bride of Ashok B. Bhadkamkar, Second Secretary at the Indian Embassy. The ceremony took place in a brick room on the ground floor of the embassy, and a reception followed in the drawing room.

Mme. Pandit, Ambassador of India, wearing a sari of white silk, gave the bride in marriage. After the giving-away ritual, the second part of the ceremony was the seven vows taken by the bride and bridegroom, vows similar to our "love, honor and obey." Then the final ritual, seven steps around the sacred fire, while Sanskrit hymns were chanted by Dr. J. D. Joshi of the International Bank and N. R. Joshi of FAO.

As there is no Hindu priest in the United States, two Brahman gentlemen, the Messrs. Joshi, were selected to officiate. In India the marriage ceremony takes several days, but in the Westernized version, it is over in little more than an hour.

ANOTHER CONCESSION to Western tradition was the wedding cake cut by the bride and bridegroom following the ceremony. Mme. Pandit's Indian cook was ill and a caterer had to substitute in preparing the wedding feast.

The guests were received after the ceremony in the drawing room, where long French windows opened wide onto a flowering terrace and white chrysanthemums were reflected in mirrored panels.

The bride is the daughter of the Chief Secretary of the Bombay State Government and Mme. M. D. Bhat. She arrived just last week from India with the new First Secretary and Mme. Singh.

The out-of-doors had been brought inside with quantities of green leaves and autumn foliage in russet, bronze and yellow tones studded with clusters of tiny yellow chrysanthemums, India's national colors. In the center of the room was a replica of an Indian mosque.

PARTY PARADE

CHIEF JUSTICE AND MRS. FRED VINSON were ranking guests at the dinner last evening in honor of Mrs. Perle Mesta, United States Minister to Luxembourg, at which Maj. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, Chief of Chemical Corps, and Mrs. McAuliffe were hosts at the Officers Club at Fort McNair.

The French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet were guests and in the group also were Justice and Mrs. Tom Clark, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Eugene L. Harrison, Maj. Gen. Elbert L. Ford, Chief of Ordnance, Mrs. A. J. Bowley, Mrs. Davies Fitch, Col. and Mrs. Thomas MacGregor, Col. Don Lowry, Col. and Mrs. Donald R. Van Sickler, Mrs. Hope Ridings Miller, Fred Roy, Jack Logan and Marvin Braverman.

MEMBERS OF THE UNITED NATIONS Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization were guests of honor at a cocktail party and buffet supper given last evening by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Russell and Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Barkmeier in the Burgundy Room at Wardman Park Hotel. Mr. Russell is vice president of the National Broadcasting Company and Mr. Barkmeier is vice president and general manager of Victor Recording Division of Radio Corporation of America.

Guests represented Europe and South America and the Far East, in addition to the United States.

MRS. BENJAMIN HILL and her daughter, Miss Cynthia Hill, entertained at luncheon yesterday in honor of Mme. Vladimir Rybar and Mrs. Clark Woodward. Other guests were Mme. Popovic, wife of the Yugoslav Ambassador; Mrs. Jesse Saugstad, Mrs. Eldon P. King, Mrs. James Souby, Mrs. Arthur Vennell, Mrs. James G. Pennington, Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, and Mrs. J. J. Mack.

MRS. HOLLIS IMES, who returned recently from two months in Europe, will be entertained at a welcome home luncheon today at the Shoreham Hotel to be given by Mrs. William F. Hellmuth.

Mrs. Imes went to Europe as a voting delegate to the Conference of the Associated Countrywomen of the World, representing the Capital Division of the National Farm and Garden Association.

FOR ART'S SAKE

KALERVO KALLIO, SCULPTOR of note and son of the former President of Finland, was in the receiving line last evening at the reception which followed the unveiling of his bronze bust of Dr. Hans Kindler at 9 p. m. in the George Washington University library.

Mrs. Hans Kindler, widow of the founder and conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra from 1931 to 1949, unveiled the bust which was the gift of friends of the late conductor.

THE SERVICE SET

AS A FAREWELL TO THEIR FRIENDS and to introduce their successors, Admiral and Mrs. Brian Schofield, entertained yesterday at a reception held at their home from 6 to 8 p. m. Admiral and Mrs. John Stephens, who were the guests of honor, received with the host and hostess.

Admiral Schofield has been in Washington three years as Chief of Staff to the head of the Naval Staff of the British Joint Services Mission, and he is now returning to London. At yesterday's party, over 200 guests dropped by, including members of the diplomatic set and friends from Service circles.

The Toy Box

Time for Youngsters to Catch a Train

By Alleis C. Wilson

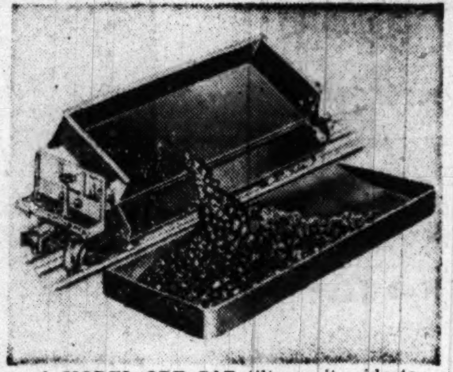
ELECTRIC TRAINS and Christmas go together as well as Santa Claus and the chimney. The popularity of miniature trains is partly due to the fact that they are a lasting gift which can be put under the tree year after year. And a parent with imagination can add a new car or an extra locomotive from time to time.

They also make a fine year-round toy for the attic or cellar. Few fathers can resist the urge to join Junior any evening in highballing a sleek Diesel down the right of way.

The variety of model trains on sale this year is almost endless. Every department store has a roundhouse full of them, and both of the largest American manufacturers have factory-approved dealers in Washington.

AMERICAN FLYER trains and accessories are available at the Gilbert Hall of Science in addition to department and toy stores. Lionel's factory-approved dealer is Superior Lock and Electric Co., but the department stores have elaborate Lionel layouts, too.

Wind-up trains also can help solve the model transportation problem in your house if you have a very young child who would not appreciate the real value of an electric outfit for another year or two. Louis Marx & Co. is manufacturing two inexpensive models. Each has a locomotive, tender, coal car, gondola and a caboose. (Woodward & Lothrop—$2.95 and $4.95.)



A MODEL ORE CAR tilts on its side to release its cargo into a trackside bin

Among the less expensive electric passenger trains is one patterned after a New York Central System streamliner which includes a vistadome coach. (G. C. Murphy —$22.95.)

LIONEL FREIGHT trains begin this year at $14.95, including a transformer. The set consists of a locomotive, tender, two freight cars and a caboose. Ten pieces of track are included. A similar layout that puffs odorless smoke sells for just $5 more.

One of the latest additions to the miniature world of trains is a locomotive with a built-in whistle. Lionel offers one with two freight cars, a caboose, 12 sections of track and a transformer for $29.95. Both smoke and whistle are combined in a locomotive which is included in a larget set for $39.95.

The A. C. Gilbert Co. line of American Flyer trains begins at $15.95, with locomotive, tender, two freight cars and a caboose. A dozen sections of track and a transformer are included. American Flyer equipment has the added realism of two-rail track, although the number of rails has little to do with performance on a modest layout.

A 27-PIECE AMERICAN Flyer circus train would please any youngster. Included are a streamlined locomotive and tender, two circus flat cars which carry an animal cage and tractor, a Pullman car, three-ring tent, several other pieces of circus equipment and a transformer. The price is $27.95.

A freight train that puffs smoke and emits a "choo-choo" sound is sold for $29.95 by American Flyer. Seven other freight sets made by the same company range in price up to $57.50. The top model includes Gilbert's new Santa Fe Diesel with two motors for extra pulling power and speed. It also boasts a built-in electronic air chime horn.

A 5-foot train includes, in addition to the twin Diesel, a baggage unloading car, a loaded girder car, a depressed center flat car and a caboose.

THE PASSENGER TRAIN companion to the American Flyer's Diesel freight includes three streamlined coaches, including a trim vistadome model. The aluminum coaches are among the most realistic this year. The price is $62.50.

Goodwill Guild Gets Ready for Show

MRS. JAMES MURRAY has accepted the chairmanship of the fashion show and luncheon which the Goodwill is holding in the terrace room at the Shoreham Hotel on November 8.

Mrs. Harry Rochester is to be responsible for the table decorations at the luncheon, Fall Fashions in Flowers the motif. Garden clubs and organizations in the metropolitan area are cooperating, each being responsible for a table.

Mrs. Frederick Halstead, chairman of invitations and tickets, is now taking reservations at HObart 0722.

French perfume is included in the favors at tables for the guests. Fashions by American designers will be presented through the generosity of Julius Garfinckel & Co., and all proceeds from the party will go to the rehabilitation project of the Guild.

Good Recipes the Fruit of Research in Test Kitchens . . .

(This is the eleventh in a series of Friday articles written by experts in the food industry.)

By Patricia Collier
Dole Home Economist

Although Dole pineapple is grown and canned in Hawaii by the Hawaiian Pineapple Co., Ltd., all our work in home economics is carried on on the mainland. Some of the pineapple gets together with the California-grown peaches, pears, grapes and cherries at the Dole cannery in San Jose, Calif., where fruit cocktail is processed.

Let's take a look into the Dole test kitchen. It is bright and cheery with its "pineapple yellow" walls; warm and home-like with its birch cupboards, chairs and dining table. Sliding doors prevent banged heads; built-in vertical divisions in the drawers assure a place for each pie plate, cake tin and cutlery.

Many pull-out boards of wood in all sizes are ready to become extra work surfaces for rolling pastry, serving plates, etc. Forest green linoleum work surfaces, table tops and chair seats lend accent. Colorful Hawaiian oil paintings spark the walls.

Both electric and gas ranges stand by for use so that receipes are sure to be right for whichever you have in your kitchen.

NOW FOR SOME OF the recent developments in our kitchen. This fall when you make pumpkin pie try this new twist—make your pumpkin filling using your own favorite recipe—then 10 minutes before the pie is done spoon well-drained crushed pineapple over the center of the filling to within 2 inches of the crust. Return to the oven and bake 10 minutes more. The pineapple flavor simmers in and tastes very special! Garnish with whipped cream—spread between the pineapple and the crust, if you like, for extra richness and decoration.

Here is a salad that's easy, quick and really good eating! Make it ahead of time, store in the freezing unit and you are all set!

FROZEN FRUIT-AND-CHEESE SALAD

1 No. 2½ can Dole Fruit Cocktail (drained).

Mix cream cheese in bowl with a fork; add salt and mayonnaise. Blend with rotary beater or electric mixer (you can use just one beater on your mixer for this and save washing the second one!) When creamy smooth fold in drained fruit cocktail. Spoon into 8-inch square cake pan if your refrigerator freezing unit or home freezer will accommodate it, otherwise use a refrigerator ice cube tray. Freeze for several hours or overnight. To serve cut in squares—(or slice)—arrange on crisp lettuce. Garnish with 2 dates stuffed with nuts for an interesting texture and color contrast. Serves 8 or 9.

One On the Aisle

Strike Up the Band For 'All About Eve'

By Richard L. Coe

STRIKE UP THE BAND for the wittiest comedy of the year, "All About Eve," at the Palace.

But this sharp yarn is more than that. Giving Bette Davis the finest role of her honorable career, it also makes up for Hollywood's previous—and countless—missteps about the live theater.

For here, too, is the theater world as it looks from the inside, the egocentric darlings who nightly lay themselves open to public jeers as well as cheers, who sometimes seem never to grow up, but the best of whom do, when their maturity becomes an understanding of the heart.

More than about the young, ambitious Eve, this is the story of a colorful, vitriolic woman, a star who carries her mercurial passions into her private life. It shows you how, when the mirage of youth seems to be slipping away, a wise woman faces facts. In short, this is an adult comedy, but though it's about the theater and its people, you don't have to be a lover of that world to relish its wit and wisdom.

There's no mistaking the fact that Bette Davis is again giving us the Tallulah Bankhead she mimed in "The Little Foxes." But to Bette's credit—and Writer-Director Mankiewisz'—the recognizable Tallulah she gives us has, besides the sharp tongue of that great lady, her intelligence and understanding as well. For all the characters' glitter, you will sympathize with and understand her, both a tribute to the inspiration as well as the accomplished portrait.

| | |
|---|---|
| Margo | Bette Davis |
| Eve | Anne Baxter |
| Addison De Witt | George Sanders |
| Karen | Celeste Holm |
| Bill Simpson | Gary Merrill |
| Lloyd Richards | Hugh Marlowe |
| Birdie | Thelma Ritter |
| Miss Casswell | Marilyn Monroe |
| Max Fabian | Gregory Ratoff |
| Phoebe | Barbara Bates |
| Aged Actor | Walter Hampden |
| Girl | Randy Stuart |
| Leading Man | Craig Hill |
| Doorman | Leland Harris |
| Autograph Seeker | Barbara White |
| Stage Manager | Eddie Fisher |
| Pianist | Claude Stroud |

We begin with the presentation of the Sarah Siddons trophy to a young actress, Anne Baxter. Through the memories of those watching Walter Hampden make the award, we see how Anne got her honor. At first she seems a sympathetic figure, a stagedoor jenny, thrilled to work for the great star as secretary.

A playwright's wife, Celeste Holm, recalls how she wormed her way into an understudy's role. A critic, George Sanders, muses on how she tried to take the star's lover from her, but wound up, instead, only with her newest role. The star, herself, wryly looks on, reliving how the treacherous youngster weaned her way into the confidence of all she met.

The film is not without a serious flaw; the too-prolonged ending allows us to see a similar trick tried on the newcomer, although it's clearly established that such an opportunity is rare. A tricky ending, it's got no place in a generally honest yarn.

Individual moments stand out: Miss Davis, "Margo Channing," fussing with cigarette lighters and candy boxes before guests arrive for a party; in anger she nips at some of the sweet. The tawdry backstage dressing room where Glamor sits before the harsh, bare light bulbs of a dressing table. The moment in a stalled car when the woman of 40 reflects that life can be empty without someone to share it. The flurried entrance of the star at a rehearsal knocking off her producer's hat. The drunken unhappiness of "Margo" at her own party, urging the pianist to keep playing "Lieberstraum." The giggly blonde from the Copacabana Academy of Dramatic Arts (Marilyn Monroe).

Imaginatively Detailed

Writer - Director Mankiewicz (who put the flesh on the bones of a Mary Orr short story) evidently has been observing the theater world long and shrewdly. With the exception of compressing too much into a single season and stretching out his ending, he's given his players bang-up roles to create, though, as they always do in life, the males seem shadowy compared with the wiser sex.

All are tip-top, especially Miss Davis' brilliant and probing playing of Margo Channing. You'll relish Thelma Ritter as the theatrical maid-of-all-work; George Sanders as the snide critic who longs to own a new star, Celeste Holm as the sensible wife of the playwright, Gary Merrill as the beloved director, Hugh Marlowe as the shrewdly observed boyish writer and Anne Baxter, as the vixen of the title.

You'll want to see "All About Eve" a couple of times.

THAT ADVERT. WARNING about "Continuous Performances" for "All about Eve" stems from a try that turned into a flop for the run at New York's Roxy Theater . . . When the picture opened there a few weeks ago, a policy of admitting the public only at the start of each showing was tested . . . Confusion resulted, our public having been weaned from celluloid infancy that continuous showings are the rule, though the opposite works well in some part of the world . . . As the Motion Picture Herald commented: "Basic policies have to grow. No showman can make over his audience."

AFTER YESTERDAY'S comments on audience fun at "The Relapse," Star Cyril Ritchard called to tell about the brightest matinee audience he's played to . . . Laughter got started early and the second balcony "got" all the little pieces of business, greeting the frolic with a roar . . . The mystery about second balcony enthusiasm was cleared up when it was discovered that Catholic University's drama students, the cast of "The Madwoman of Chaillot" was up on the shelf for an afternoon off . . . Actors always are a wonderful audience.

JOHN WENTWORTH, a recreation department standby, gets director's credit for "All Over Town—1950," the teen-ager revue which will be repeated tonight and tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 at Roosevelt High Auditorium . . . Seats for this Children's Theater of Washington musical are on sale downtown at the Snow Concert Bureau, 1105 G st.

THE FOUNDRY PLAYERS start their season tonight with Ruth Gordon's comedy about her early life stage yearnings, "Years Ago." . . . Jane Plummer Rice has directed a cast that includes Rosalie Iadarola, Marion Beasley, Valerie Stubbs, Elliott Taylor, Dotty Doughty and Alberta Combs . . . The curtain goes up tonight and tomorrow night at 8:30 in the dramatics hall of the Foundry Church, 16th st. at P.

AMATEUR LIFE: The George Washington University Players present "Street Scene" tonight and tomorrow night at Lisner Auditorium, with Joe Elman and Lynn Clark in the leads . . . The Kensington Players at the same time will be acting "George Washington Slept Here" at the Kensington Junior High with Lee Shuttig and Palmer Lewis in the leads.

Bakers Rally to Provide Christmas Cheer for Our Fighting Men

Mrs. Michael J. Hackett, jr., of 2517 Mozart pl. nw., really started something when she reported that a local baker had refused to be bothered with sending a Christmas cake to Marine Sgt. Mike Hackett, currently in Korea.

Several Washington bakers immediately phoned to say they'd not only take the time to wrap cakes for overseas shipment, but would send them as Christmas presents.

Several housewives also called to offer to bake cakes, and I even got one call like that from a man who says he's as good a baker as the next guy and would love to do something to brighten a fighting man's Christmas.

It's now apparent that we'll not only have plenty of fruitcake for Mike, but for several of his buddies. Just as soon as the calls stop coming in, I'm going to print the names of all those who responded. So will local bakers please contact me at once if they wish to participate? Write, wire or call National 4200. If I'm not at my desk, leave your name and number with our operators.

RUSH ORDER

Up at the Democrstic National Committee, where he works as a messenger, Jimmy Lomax of 1112 22d st. nw. is sometimes called "Creepy" by colleagues interested in speeding up the organization's work.

This Wednesday, as usual, Jimmy made his daily trip to the White House. Parking his bike outside, he went in and delivered his mail — then emerged just as the shooting started at Blair House.

When he got back to Democratic headquarters in the Ring Building, Jimmy gasped out the story of what he had seen and, as an afterthought, exclaimed: "This is one time you can't call me 'Creepy.'"

"Didn't have time," replied Jimmy with simple sincerity. "I was in a hurry to get out of there."

"A ROSE IS A ROSE IS A ROSE"—ON ANY DATE

In celebration of National Flower Week, the Rockville Garden Club went all out to get floral displays into every available store, shop and bank. Even the police station was all decked out, and the world looked brighter to everybody but the prisoners.

Toward the end of the week, when most of the work was over and it was just a question of trying to keep the flowers fresh for another day or two, the Garden Club ladies were pretty proud of the job they'd done. Everybody in town was complimenting them on the effectiveness of the displays.

Then, to their dismay, they discovered that they'd been seven days premature with their campaign, because National Flower Week was observed this week—not last.

Now the roses in the cheeks of the Garden Club ladies are slightly deeper than usual—but it was a fine show anyhow, so what's the difference when it was held? Flowers are welcome 52 weeks of the year.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Five-week-old pups, look like mixture of fox and Scotch terrier." (Union 9168 evenings.)

"Mother cat and 5-week-old kittens, part-Persian." (Randolph 1176 after 6 p. m.)

"Large water-cooled gas refrigerator to anybody who will take care of moving and disconnecting." (Adams 2595 after 6:30 p. m.)

"Will deliver male tiger kitten." (Wisconsin 8908.)

NATCH

Commissioner Happy Chandler announces that the Pacific Coast League will be given a higher classification soon—possibly 4-A.

During war years, presumably, it will go back to parity with the major leagues and be 4-F again.

BUT FAR

A news headline says: "Atomic Attack Advice to Be Given Washington Householders."

The best advice I can think of is: Be out of town at the time.

RELAX, DOC; IT'S JUST A FIGURE OF SPEECH

Talking to a friend of his recently, Dr. Edward C. Acheson, associate professor of finance at George Washington University, mentioned that he was checking into the university's hospital the next day.

"Oh, is that so?" replied the friend. "My wife became a patient there today. When I drop by tomorrow I'll see you both and kill two birds with one stone."

"You don't say," mused Professor Acheson. "I think I'll leave word at the desk to have you searched for stones."

Sen. Thomas In Desperate Utah Battle

By Drew Pearson

Two distinguished Mormons out in Utah present a unique contrast in human relations. One is J. Reuben Clark, No. 2 man in the Mormon Church, a Republican; the other Elbert Thomas, senior Senator from Utah, Democrat.

Senator Thomas

Twenty-five years ago, Reuben Clark worked in the State Department, smoothed out many of Secretary Frank B. Kellogg's troubles, eventually became one of our best Undersecretaries.

He was criticized, however, for being a radical because he wrote a document proposing a revision of the Monroe Doctrine, whereby other Pan-American nations would join us in upholding the Doctrine. This theory is now generally accepted, but at that time Reuben Clark and his "bolshevist" views were compared to a waft of red-hot air out of the Kremlin.

Eventually Reuben Clark left the State Department and became Ambassador to Mexico where he did an equally good, though according to some, a revolutionary job. He believed in friendship with Mexico—a new theory in that day.

Finally Reuben Clark retired, returned to Utah, settled down as No. 2 man in the Mormon Church, and as a director of insurance companies, hotels and railroads. Being human, he has also grown old.

Meanwhile, another Mormon in Washington has been pioneering United States foreign policy. Last year Senator Elbert Thomas of Utah introduced a resolution creating a United Nations police force not subject to Soviet veto, but obedient to a majority vote in the U. N. Assembly.

When first introduced, Thomas' resolution was considered revolutionary. However, he fought for it, demanded public hearings, and at these hearings the State Department vigorously opposed Thomas' "revolutionary" idea.

One year has now passed, however, and that idea is now the official policy of the State Department.

Today in Utah, this same Senator who pioneered foreign policy ahead of his time is now facing a desperate re-election battle, with the absurd charge being made that he is a Communist. And politics being what it is, the man who is working hardest to defeat him is the other Mormon leader, who also put forward revolutionary ideas ahead of his time—80-year-old Reuben Clark.

Oklahoma Candidates

The Republican is grandstanding, tub-thumping Rev. William Alexander, a would-be Senator, who suddenly switched from the Democratic Party to the Republicans right in the middle of the Senate primary and is now campaigning with all the enthusiasm of a huckster who has just transferred Lucky Strike cigarettes from one advertising agency to another.

According to the sage of Oklahoma City, Walter Harrison: "Alexander is the greatest showman since Billy Sunday and just about as honest. He has ability, a magnificent physique, a glib tongue, and a sense of timing with choral effects, carillons and musical chairs, which moved in behind his mellifluous voice, can put the dear dames to sobbing and believing that his voice is meant just for them."

Alexander is campaigning for the Senate against Congressman Mike Monroney, Democrat, one of the best young men ever to sit in Congress, and the chief ammunition he is using against Monroney is a clipping from a Washington news social column telling about the Congressman's basement bar.

The fact that anyone should serve drinks in his home is shocking to many Oklahomans in what remains one of the few dry States in the Union; so the new Billy Sunday from Oklahoma is making the most of it.

Wickersham's Record

The other Oklahoman to watch is Congressman Victor Wickersham, Democrat, now seeking reelection despite one of the worst records in Congress for feeding at the public trough. Here is part of Wickersham's score-card:

1. Kept his father on the public payroll first in the Library of Congress, later as an elevator operator.

2. Used a congressional parking area as a lot from which he sold used automobiles.

3. Paid $7720 of the taxpayers' money to James W. Taylor as a congressional salary while Taylor was actually working as a salesman for the Mead Equipment Co. in Oklahoma City.

4. An additional $2298 of the taxpayers' money was paid to Lloyd Matthews, supposed to work in the Congressman's office, but who actually worked in Wickersham's real estate office in Washington. Matthews collaborated with Wickersham in preparing a statement for the FBI, followng which Wickersham rewarded him with a coveted appointment to West Point.

5. Steve Fisher and Phil Symcox of Cordell, Okla., had part of their congressional pay checks withheld by the Congressman during the brief time they worked for him.

6. On top of all this, the insatiable Wickersham tried to sneak a ride back to Oklahoma on an Air Force plane after the last session of Congress. Congressmen are paid 20 cents a mile for travel home whether they use it or not, but despite this, Wickersham tried to bluff a free ride without clearing with Air Force headquarters.

Under the rules, he is supposed to get free air trips ok'd by a congressional committee. Instead, he went to an Air Force pilot and tried to wangle a free ride. The suspicious pilot, however, wasn't buffaloed and the Congressman did not get the free trip.
